PARLEY LIQUIDATION SOUGHT AS AMERICAN GROUP PLANS TO SAIL

Will Leave on Leviathan for Homeward Trip April 22.

SECURITY PACT AIM OF FRENCH, BRITISH

U. S. Delegates Believe Time Too Short for Action Now.

BREATHING RECESS IS HELD ADVISABLE

Three-Power Treaty Likely Without France; Italy's Attitude Resented.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The British-French search for a mutually acceptable security formula, which actively continues, has become in effect, despite thin official camouflage, a search for a formula for liquidation of the London naval conference.

An authoritative American statement tonight that our delegation to the five-power parley will probably sail for home on the Leviathan on April 22, taken in connection with other information confidentially furnished, implies that the United States has abandoned hope for a five-power treaty.

The American view now—less than 48 hours after Secretary of State Stimson issued a public statement that he was never so optimistic over the prospects of a five-power treaty, is that issues of vast importance, covering the whole peace organization of Europe, have now been raised and that the time is so short in which to settle them that a breathing space is advisable.

General Terms Are Known.

Meanwhile, a three-power treaty will be concluded between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, the general terms of which are known.

Confusion existing over the present situation results from British official statements that a four-hour conversation today between Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, which will be continued tomorrow, is concerned with a search for political formula on security.

This is true only in sense utterly different from what a similar statement meant a few days ago. Then the formula was sought to enable France to reduce her naval tonnage and thus make it possible for a five-power treaty to be concluded here. This effort has been abandoned as hopeless.

Seek to Appease France.

Now the two powers are trying to find some formula to soothe aroused opinion in France and to demonstrate that Great Britain is not backing out of her obligations under the covenant of the League of Nations and the Locarno treaties. The present conversations have little or nothing to do with naval questions. It appears probable at present that the whole subject will be adjourned to future discussions at Geneva. The Italians demand that this be done and no other solution seems possible.

In this connection the Spanish government it was learned, has addressed a remonstrance to the British government, and probably to the French as well, against discussion here by two powers of how obligations under the League of Nations covenant should be interpreted. Spain considers that these questions should be considered by all members of the league and not by two members only.

Following the American announcement today hinting at a three-power settlement and quick return home of the United States delegates, M. Briand said in a press conference tonight that he got no clear impression from conversations with the British today and that Mr. MacDonald told him the British cabinet is divided.

Briand Hopes for Reply.

The French foreign minister also said that he may go to Paris tomorrow, but hopes for a reply from Mr. MacDonald on the proposal to close the gap already existing. The French suggestion, M. Briand intimated, is that if the league council, which must be unanimous, disagrees in naming an aggressor, the question must be referred to an arbitration tribunal of judges, whose majority decision would force league powers to take sanctions. In a high British quarter tonight it was learned that no such proposal would be tolerated by British opinion.

The Italians continue to insist that either disarmament must be talked here and general discussion properly belonging to the League of Nations dropped or the conference had better adjourn.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, it is understood, in discussing Anglo-French formulae, told Mr. MacDon-

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Democrats' national chairman, Mr. Raskob, yesterday shone so well before the Caraway lobby committee in comparison with the Republicans' Mr. Huston that there was Democratic talk of sending their pictures out over the country as a contrast between a troubled and an untroubled soul, as the contrast, indeed, between Republican iniquity and Democratic purity.

Whereas Mr. Huston had shifted nervously in his seat and beads of perspiration had gathered on his

AIRMAN DISAPPEARS ON SPEED ATTEMPT

Young Designer Secretly Hops From Coast in Effort to Reach New York.

FLIES NEW SMALL TYPE

Los Angeles, April 4 (A.P.).—After an unannounced takeoff on an attempted nonstop transcontinental flight, A. M. Mooney, 24-year-old Wichita, Kans., aircraft manufacturer, early tonight was believed to be winging his way toward New York in a small low-wing monoplane of his own design.

No news of Mooney's progress was received here after his secret departure from the United Airport at 6:43:57, Pacific Coast time. A watch was being kept at Wichita where officials of Mooney's factory were advised to look for him passing over about 11 p. m., Central time.

The only other town designated on the route was Cleveland, Ohio.

Mooney told the few persons who witnessed his unheralded departure that he expected to complete the flight in 22 hours, which would put him in New York shortly before 8 a. m., Eastern time, tomorrow. His hope was to set a transcontinental speed record for a light plane with a relatively small consumption of fuel.

Only an official timer and a few airport attendants were on hand to see the craft start the long hop.

The manufacturer, flying alone, had hoped to keep the flight secret until he reached New York, explaining to his associates that he did not want the venture known unless he succeeded. The flight did not become public until a message was received at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., notifying officials there of the hop-off.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH SEQUEL TO SLASHING

Fairfax County Man Is Near Death After Gun Tears Hole in Back.

ONE HELD AS HUNT ENDS

Marked by the slashing of two men, a family quarrel over the disappearance of a pocketbook in a Fairfax County farmhouse near Clifton Station Thursday night, culminated several hours later when one of the cut men was shot down from behind and wounded, possibly fatally.

Suffering from a gaping wound in his back made by a charge from a shotgun, Emmett Edwards, 55-year-old farmer and owner of the house where the incidents occurred, last night lay in a critical condition in the Alexandria Hospital where he was taken by his son, Floyd Edwards, 21 years old, who had been cut in the first affray.

Meanwhile, Sheriff E. P. Kirby and Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity ended a prolonged hunt for the brother of the elder Edwards, Taylor S. Edwards, 47 years old, of Free State in Fauquier County, Va., with his capture in the dense woods about a mile from the home on charges of assault with a weapon in connection with the slashing, and for investigation in connection with the shooting.

Taken in custody a few yards from a cleverly hidden lean-to of brush and leaves, the man was lodged in the Fairfax Jail, pending the outcome of the brother's condition. He steadfastly denied knowledge of the crimes.

The altercation started at the house about 7 o'clock Thursday night when Taylor, according to police, suddenly drew a knife and slashed Floyd about the throat, the arms and back when he accused his nephew of stealing a

SENATE GROUP REPORTS PARK PROGRAM BILL

Capper-Cramton Bill for Big Development Goes Before Body.

PRIVATE PROJECT'S DEATH PROVIDED FOR Approval by Committee New Round in Fight for Potomac Scenery.

INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM SHUNNED AT MEETING

Power Corporation Attorney Serves Notice Battle Has Just Begun.

The Capper-Cramton bill, providing for the greatest park program in the history of the National Capital, was favorably reported yesterday by the Senate District committee.

The bill, which has passed the House, goes before the Senate with a provision which power advocates say will kill the plans for private development of hydroelectric power at Chain Bridge and Great Falls.

In approving this provision the Senate committee, in effect, awarded another round in the battle of the Potomac to Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant.

For a week Col. Grant has been in a controversy with a fellow engineer officer, Maj. Brehon Somervell, over the question of harnessing the waters of the Potomac.

Grant Wants Scenic Vista.

Col. Grant, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, favors preserving Great Falls and the Potomac gorge for scenic purposes, leaving the question of power development for a future time. Maj. Somervell, engineer officer for this area, wants a combined park and power project, and declares that to pass up the power project will be to waste $100,000,000.

Power Question Avoided.

The controversy between the two has been marked by some sharp exchanges, and it was expected that at yesterday's meeting of the Senate District committee there certainly would be some echo of it.

As a matter of fact, the senators did not even mention the power question.

After the meeting, however, Elisha Hanson had something to say about it. Mr. Hanson is the attorney for the powerful Potomac River Corporation, which has applied for a permit to harness the Potomac.

"The fight has not even begun," he said after the setback handed him by the committee, and he predicted that the bill would have rough going when it comes up in the Senate.

Fight Still to Rage.

Mr. Hanson had offered an amendment which would permit his company to go ahead with its $80,000,000 project if a permit should be granted by the Federal Power Commission.

This was ignored, and the bill, as reported, leaves it up to Congress to say when and how the water power shall be developed.

As reported by the committee yesterday, the Capper-Cramton bill authorizes appropriations or loans totaling $24,500,000, which is $1,500,000 more than was authorized by the House bill.

This extra sum is to provide for a free Federal bridge across the Potomac at Great Falls.

Free Bridge Authorized.

The free bridge project was authorized in an amendment offered by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia.

SENATE VOTES NORRIS SHOALS PLAN ADOPTION

Nebraska Senator's Plan Wins in Chamber by 45-23 Vote.

GREAT POWER HOUSE COST $150,000,000

Government Will Keep Control of Property if House Also Approves Plan.

(Associated Press.)

Once more the Senate voted, yesterday, to turn over the Government's $150,000,000 nitrate and power project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., to a Government-controlled corporation for experimentation in fertilizer production.

It was the second time in the ten years' controversy over disposition of this gigantic war-time property that the resolution of Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, for Government operation has been approved. The vote was 45 to 23, with the Republican regulars in opposition.

Two attempts to modify the resolution were rejected in the closing hours of the three-day debate. The measure was sent to the House in practically the same form as it was adopted by Congress two years ago. President Coolidge pocket vetoed it then.

Considerable doubt covers the future of the Norris resolution in the House. Leaders there have given no assurance for its consideration. Likewise there is some uncertainty at the Capitol over the attitude of President Hoover toward the proposal. It was opposed by administration leaders in the Senate.

Senator Norris led the drive for his resolution in the Senate. He successfully staved off every attempt at serious modification.

18 Republicans in Favor.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, sought to strike out the provision allowing payments to the States of Alabama and Tennessee from proceeds on the sale of surplus power. That lost on a tie vote, 33 to 33, with Vice President Curtis absent.

Later Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, announced he had voted under a misapprehension and changed his vote, which made the record 34 to 32 against the Vandenberg proposal.

After assailing the general terms and principle of the bill, Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, sought to eliminate the provision for construction of a $34,000,000 dam on the Clinch River in Tennessee at Cove Creek. This was turned back without a record vote.

Eighteen Republicans voted with 26 Democrats and the Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, for the resolution, while 2 Democrats, Steck, of Iowa, and Tydings, of Maryland, joined 21 Republicans in opposition.

How Senators Voted.

The roll call was as follows:

HOOVER URGES RIGID ECONOMIES TO SAVE TREASURY'S SURPLUS

Margin Assured for Two Years if Expenses Are Cut, He Asserts.

INDIVIDUAL INCOME RETURNS OPTIMISTIC

Slump of Last Fall Had Less Effect Than Was Feared, Is Report.

PENDING LEGISLATION SEEN AS DIFFICULTY

Deficit Can Be Avoided, Says President, Only by Curb on Appropriations.

(Associated Press.)

Giving assurance of Treasury surpluses for both this fiscal year and next, President Hoover in a statement yesterday warned that the margins depend upon the "most rigid economy" by Congress and the executive departments.

Mr. Hoover reported that the first installment of income tax collections for this year showed that "the unfavorable developments of last fall did not affect individual incomes to the extent that many had feared," nor prevent corporations "from reporting for tax purposes a net income substantially in excess of that reported for the calendar year 1928."

He said the Government should be able to finish this fiscal year, ending June 30, with a very moderate surplus. Careful Treasury estimates, he added, showed a margin of $47,000,000 to the good for the next fiscal year.

Major Difficulty Outlined.

However, the President said that already Congress has imposed a burden of additional expenditures amounting to $30,000,000 during the next fiscal year which would come out of the $47,000,000 surplus. He added that the major difficulty ahead for next year arises from prospective legislation already favorably reported by congressional committees which entail "an additional burden of nearly $300,000,000 next fiscal year." This, he said, would "inevitably result in a deficit."

Mr. Hoover's warning to Congress specified none of the legislation which he said must be shut off in order to avoid what he feared may result in a deficit.

The text of the President's statement was:

"The information upon the income tax collections for the month of March is not sufficiently advanced to determine their effect upon the budget for the current year.

Result Called Gratifying.

"As a rule, they furnish a close measure of what collections may be expected from this source in the calendar year. The result is most gratifying.

"They indicate that the unfavorable developments of last fall did not affect individual incomes to the extent that many had feared, nor did they prevent the corporations of the country from reporting for tax purposes a net income substantially in excess of that reported for the calendar year 1928. Generally speaking, March income tax collections indicate that the collections from individual taxpayers, excluding the tax reduction factor, will be somewhat less than collections during the calendar year 1929, but will be substantially in excess of collections during the calendar year 1928.

"In so far as corporations are concerned, income taxes paid during the calendar year 1930 will apparently not fall short of collections during the calendar year 1929, notwithstanding a $90,000,000 reduction resulting from lowering of the rate from 12 per cent to 11 per cent.

Predictions Accurate, Is View.

"The Treasury seems to have estimated income tax collections for the fiscal year 1930 with remarkable ac-

Barber, Slugged, Tied And Robbed of $1,650

Police Seek Link Between Holdup and Alleged Rum Operations.

Slugged into insensibility after he was trussed up with rope by three well-dressed men who entered his barber shop at 300½ Tenth street northwest while he was closing at 6:40 o'clock last night, George Kapsaly, 46 years old, was robbed of $1,650 in bills which he carried in his pockets, and a $300 diamond ring.

Kapsaly, revived quickly by tradesmen in the block, furnished headquarters and First Precinct police with a description of two of the men, one about 25 years old and the other about 35 years old, both of whom he said he had seen on previous occasions, but whose names he did not know. A third man stood guard outside.

The description of the two men suggested to police that the pair may have been the same which staged a reign of terror in holdups at Sanitary Grocery Co. Stores throughout the city a few months ago.

Police recalled that Kapsaly was arrested on the afternoon of March

ALUMINUM TRUST CHARGES DROPPED

CASE IS FIVE YEARS OLD

(Associated Press.)

Charges of intent to create a monopoly, lodged against the Aluminum Co. of America five years ago, were dismissed unanimously yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission without comment.

Complaint of violation of both the Clayton antitrust act and the Federal Trade Commission act was first brought against the company in June, 1925. In September of the same year the company filed an answer, denying every charge.

The extended hearings that followed, ending only last Tuesday, carried heightened interest because of the connection of the Mellon family with the concern. Andrew Mellon had resigned active interest in the company with his appointment as Secretary of the Treasury by President Harding.

The complaint against the Aluminum Co. charged that it produced 95 per cent of the virgin sheet aluminum in the United States and that it either owned outright or held large interest in a long list of aluminum fabricating companies, not only in

QUIZ IN MILES DEATH YIELDS FEW FACTS

Few Developments Locally as Inquiry Is Pushed at Other Points.

WOMEN'S VIEWS DIFFER

Although the investigation of the death of Basil Miles, diplomat and economist, who died suddenly June 14 1928, at Emergency Hospital, was still being conducted by Department of Justice agents in other sections of the country, there was no activity in the case locally yesterday and all indications were that the investigation would be officially terminated within a few days and that nothing would come of it.

Interviews with two women—one at Hollywood, Calif., and the other in Washington—Thursday are said to have brought out conflicting statements concerning allegations that Mr. Miles, who was convalescing from an operation of a minor character, was sipping a highball at the time of his death. Mrs. M. G. Nash, who nursed Mr. Miles during the fatal illness, when questioned again Thursday night is understood to have told Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw and Department of Justice agents that her patient had drunk a glass of grapefruit juice just before his death. On the other hand, Mrs. Wells Root, wife of a former newspaperman, who is now an author for a motion-picture concern in Hollywood, is understood to have told the department agents on the Pacific Coast that she was in the room with Mr. Miles and his wife, the present Mrs. H. H. Rogers, at the time Mr. Miles died, and that the former diplomat and economist had nothing to drink.

No effort was made yesterday to exhume the body and the United States attorney's office maintained its position that such a step would not be taken unless additional evi-curacy, and it is apparent that the tax reduction enacted by Congress was fully justified.

"The figures submitted in the budget message estimated income tax revenue in the fiscal year 1930 at $2,480,000,000 without taking into account the tax reduction subsequently provided for.

"The March collections indicate that income tax revenues will actually aggregate $2,400,000,000, which, allowing $85,000,000 for tax reduction, would correspond to $2,485,000 under the old rates.

"On the other hand, there has been a substantial falling off in customs duties, the estimated revenue from this source amounting to $600,000,000, whereas present indications are that not more than $560,000,000 may be expected this fiscal year.

Moderate Surplus Seen.

"From these estimates and the current rate of expenditure, it appears that we should be able to close the fiscal year ending the 30th of next June with a very moderate surplus.

"It is impossible at this early date to estimate with accuracy the situation in the next fiscal year (that ending June 30, 1931).

"The budget indicated, after the tax reduction which has since been enacted, a surplus of $47,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

"On the revenue side the Treasury sees no occasion to make any substantial revision of its estimates.

More Burdens Placed.

"Since the budget figures were submitted, legislation enacted at the present session of Congress has imposed a burden of additional expenditures amounting to $30,000,000 during the next fiscal year.

"The major difficulty in prospect, however, arises from the fact that bills already favorably reported by Congressional committees, if enacted into law, would entail an additional expenditure of nearly $300,000,000 next fiscal year and, as far as we can see today, inevitably result in a deficit.

"The situation clearly calls for most rigid economy and deferment of all even otherwise justifiable expenditures by both the legislative and executive departments."

HOOVER AT RAPIDAN ON FISHING OUTING

President Is Recognized by Few on Motor Trip to Mountain Camp.

HIGHWAY FOUND ROUGH

Orange, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—President Hoover arrived at his recreation camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan River at 6 p. m. tonight on his first fishing trip of the season.

The Chief Executive and his guests tried their luck at fishing before dinner. The President chose a "Royal Coachman" and a "Grisley King" to tempt the trout on his first effort.

At the President's fishing lodge a log fire had been prepared for the party in readiness for their arrival at sundown.

In spite of the short time that remained for fishing when the party reached the stream, the members of the group brought several fish out of the water when they climbed up the banks to go to dinner.

The trip to the camp was uneventful. During the three-hour ride from Washington at several places the presidential party found roads under repair and the pace was slowed while the machines moved over the rough stretches.

Few persons recognized the President, but at Warrenton, a boy shouted fro mthe pavement:

"Hi, Mr. Hoover."

A little farther along the cars left the paved highway for the rough trail that winds up into the mountains. Marines have been stationed near the boundaries of the camp and stood ready to assist if the automobiles of the Chief Executive encountered difficulty.

Climbing up into the hills, the President found spots of green showing here and there along the sides of the mountains. The laurel, a hardy plant which, through the winter, had clung to its foliage, was gathering reinforcements from other vegetation which now and then showed a bit of color.

Fleeing Prisoner Killed by Guard

Desperate Dash at Sing Sing Is Halted by Machine Gun Fire.

Ossining, N. Y., April 4 (A.P.).—A Sing Sing prisoner was shot by a guard with a machine gun as he jumped into the Hudson River today after escaping from the prison by scaling two walls. His body was taken from the water fifteen minutes later.

The prisoner, Alphonse Tarrello, 24, made his break for liberty from the midst of a large group of prisoners who were at recreation in the north end of the yard just before they were to be locked up for the night. The guard at the water front said he called out warnings before turning the fire of the machine gun upon Tarrello.

Tarrello was sentenced from the Bronx, New York City, in September, 1927, to from seven and one-half to fifteen years for robbery.

Gandhi Nears Spot For Law Violation

Volunteers in Camp Only Miles Distant From Salt Fields.

Bombay, India, April 4 (A.P.).—Nearly at the end of their march, opening their civil disobedience campaign, Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, and his volunteers camped tonight at Karadi Matvad, a village only 3 miles from Dandi, where they intend to collect salt in violation of the government salt monopoly.

Addressing a meeting this evening, Gandhi said the district of Jalalpur had been selected for the violation by Vallabhai Patel, one of Gandhi's chief lieutenants and brother of V. J. Patel, speaker of the Indian Legislative Council. Vallabhai Patel was arrested and imprisoned shortly before Gandhi's march began.

The Nationalist leader said Patel had chosen the Jalapur district for violation of the salt law because the monopoly was enforced more strictly there than elsewhere in the Gujerat.

Pirate Pitcher Refused Divorce on Cruelty Plea

Canton, Ohio, April 4 (A.P.).—Burleigh A. Grimes, Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher, lost his divorce case in common pleas court today when Judge Harvey F. Ake dismissed the petition on motion of the defendant, Mrs. Florence Ruth Grimes.

In a lengthy opinion, Judge Ake held that Mrs. Grimes was not guilty of gross neglect of duty or cruelty, as alleged by her husband and that, therefore, a divorce could not be granted on the testimony submitted. The case had been on trial for two days. Witnesses for Grimes had testified that Mrs. Grimes had a violent temper, that she frequently used profane language and that she attempted to cause trouble between her husband and his teammates.

Guard at Auburn Prison Suspended

Convicts Allowed Liquor and Uncensored Mail, Is Charge.

Auburn, N. Y., April 4 (A.P.).—An Auburn prison guard, Edward Drake, today was suspended by Acting Warden Frank L. Heacox on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, based on information that Drake allowed convicts in his charge to obtain uncensored mail, liquor and other things at a town residence.

District Attorney James J. Hosmer late today denied widely circulated reports that letters for prisoners were seized at the residence. The reports had it that these letters discussed details of an uprising being hatched.

For at least two weeks, the prison announcement said, the institution's officers, as well as troopers and city police, have conducted an undercover investigation in the case.

Two persons living at the house were questioned by police today at headquarters. Drake could not be reached by newspapermen.

Trio Sick on Ship; Parrot Fever Seen

British Officer and 2 Arab Crew Members Treated in Baltimore.

Baltimore, April 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—With one English officer and two Arab members of its crew ill with what appears to be psittacosis, or parrot fever, the British steamer Graidwen arrived here today. The three sick men were taken to the Marine Hospital for observation and treatment.

The ship came to Baltimore from the west coast of Africa, having gone there from Brazil. At one time during the voyage, it was said, fourteen parrots were aboard. Seven died and six were sold. One remained when the ship was boarded by Government inspectors today, but was destroyed by its owner at their suggestion.

On the journey to Africa, it was said, a mess boy became ill and was put off at a port in the Ascension Islands. On the return journey two more of the crew and one officer became ill and was left at St. Vincent's Island. No diagnosis of any of these cases has been received here.

Jury Doubt Grows In Triple Murder

Three Versions of Crime Successively Advanced in Florida Case.

Sebring, Fla., April 4 (A.P.).—With William R. Carver, former Philadelphia real estate man, held without bond on murder charges, a coroner's jury late today returned a new verdict in the triple slayings at the Carver home last Wednesday.

Resummoned after discovery of new evidence, the jury heard witnesses and held that Mrs. Carver and her small son met death at the hands of persons unknown to them. The first verdict of the jury was that Ben Whitehead, Negro, killed the woman and child with an ax and was in turn slain by Carver "in justifiable homicide."

The jury recommended that a grand jury further investigate the case. The grand jury already had been called to meet tomorrow.

The case was reopened last night when the sheriff arrested Carver and held him for questioning. Discovery of a $10,000 double indemnity life insurance policy on Mrs. Carver, payable to her husband, and stories related by neighbors and others were cited by the sheriff as his reasons for the act.

TARIFF CONFEREES PROGRESS RAPIDLY

Agreement Reached on 100 Rates in Chemicals Schedule of Bill.

CASEIN IS BIG PROBLEM

(Associated Press.)

Rapid progress was made by the Senate and House conferees on the tariff bill yesterday, agreements being reached on nearly 100 rates in the chemical schedule. The Senate conference committee continued to win a majority of the contests.

Casein, a product of skimmed milk used in the manufacture of paper, proved the first big problem for the congressional tariff adjusters. A final decision on the Senate increase from 2½ to 5½ cents a pound went over. The House bill retains the existing levy.

Representative Garner, of Texas, a House Democratic conferee, in a speech to the House said the conferees were in a deadlock on the casein rate, which has figured prominently half a dozen times during the long pendency of the Hawley-Smoot measure. He said the issue was whether the dairy or paper manufacturing interests were to be benefited and expressed the belief that the House would be called upon to vote on the Senate increase.

Representative Treadway, Massachusetts, and Bacharach, New Jersey, two of the three House Republican conferees, took the Texan to task for advocating the Senate rate and for bringing to the House floor what happened in conference. As a House conferee, they argued, Garner should stand up for the House rates.

The House minority leader replied that he never had stood for the House rates and insisted he would continue to give full publicity to the conference actions.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, head of the Senate conference group, who announced the committee's decisions to newspapermen Thursday after Representative Garner had asked the reporters to follow him if they wanted "all the news," continued yesterday to make public the proceedings in detail.

Two sessions, lasting five hours in all, were held yesterday, and further meetings were called for today.

Court Fixes Date For Murder Trial

Jake Divilbliss to Face Court in Death Case Next Monday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 4.—Jake Divilbliss, of Crucible, Pa., who was indicted at Berkeley Springs early this week for the murder of a fellow-workman, Theodore Wreckman, whose shot-riddled body was found a few weeks ago on a lonely road in Morgan County, will go on trial for his life next Monday. Judge D. H. Rogers, presiding jurist of this judicial circuit, fixed the date of the trial at Berkeley Springs yesterday.

In spite of the fact that Divilbliss is alleged to have made both oral and written statements that he killed Wreckman, court officials believe he will plead not guilty when arraigned Monday and stand trial. He has employed Attorney E. L. Luttrell, one of the best criminal lawyers in this section, to defend him.

The State, at the trial, will attempt to show that Divilbliss coveted Wreckman's automobile and lured his companion to the spot where the body was found; also that he had planned the murder for about a month. The defense, it is believed, will attempt to show that Divilbliss and Wreckman engaged in an altercation and that the latter was killed in self-defense.

Jury Gets Bribe Case Against Three Lawyers

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The trial of Arthur N. Sager, Joseph Shalleck and Edward H. Reynolds, lawyers, charged with having bribed the juror who brought about a disagreement in the Utah Lead case, went to the jury late today.

Five of the eight counts against the three attorneys were dismissed by Federal Judge John C. Knox, on a defense motion before the case was given to the jury. Sager's attorney, Harold H. Corbin, in his summation today readily admitted that John Cruz, the juror who held out for acquittal in the Utah Lead case, was paid $300, but denied the three lawyers on trial were guilty.

$20,000,000 Ship Line Announced for Pacific

Portland, Oreg., April 4 (A.P.).—Ralph E. Williams, Portland banker, said upon his arrival here today from Washington, D. C., that within a month an announcement would be made of a new shipping line from the Pacific Coast to the Orient entailing the construction of five ships at a cost of $20,000,000.

Williams said that K. D. Dawson, head of the States Steamship Co., widely known Pacific Coast firm, is now in New York conferring with shipbuilders and financial interests.

SENATORS TO HEAR PARKER OPPONENTS

Labor Leaders Will Appear at Hearing to Protest Confirmation.

MINE DECISION IS CITED

(Associated Press.)

Labor leaders and others protesting confirmation by the Senate of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court, will be heard today by a subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will appear for that organization. Representatives of the five brotherhoods of railway trainmen also will be present. Organized labor is opposing Judge Parker because of a decision upholding an injunction against the United Mine Workers when he was a member of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Senator Overman (Democrat), of North Carolina, the chairman of the subcommittee considering the Parker nomination, also has invited other protestants to make their appearance today.

He expects Thomas A. Townsend, of West Virginia, who was an attorney in the disputed labor injunction case, to appear. Walter White, of New York, representing the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has sent word he wishes to protest a speech supposed to have been made by Judge Parker in a political campaign because of a reference to Negroes.

Mrs. Mary F. Speers, of Washington, who wrote a lengthy letter to the committee objecting to Judge Parker, has been asked to appear also.

Senator Overman said yesterday he hoped to make an early report to the whole judiciary committee. Other members of the subcommittee, which will hear the protest against Parker's confirmation, are Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Herbert, of Rhode Island, Republicans.

AIRPLANE FIRM HEAD AND AID DIE IN FALL

Both Burn to Death in Wreck of Trimotored Ship After Crash.

INQUIRY IS LAUNCHED

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., April 4 (A.P.).—Plunging to a fiery landing behind a hill near here, a back trimotored monoplane tonight carried to their death T. Warden Hunter, president of the Bach Aircraft Co., and R. W. McAllister, pilot, both of Los Angeles.

The craft had just appeared over the field at the end of a flight from Bethany, Conn.

Field attendants who rushed to the rescue found the two charred bodies only after flames had reduced the plane to a mass of cinders and twisted bits of metal.

Rush to Rescue.

Witnesses saw the plane circle over the field in order to make a landing into the wind, which was rough. Flying over the plant of the Texas Co., in Garden City, the ship suddenly plunged from a height of 200 feet.

Employes of the Texas Co., with hand extinguishers, were the first to reach the scene. But the blistering heat of the fire prevented them from attempting any more to save the men, who occupied the two pilots' seats of the craft.

Hunter and McAllister, on a business tour of the country, arrived here last Wednesday in their plane, one of the standard trimotored ships of the Bach Co. The plane, although in use on several Pacific Coast airlines, was something of a novelty in the East. The ship differs from other trimotored models in that it is made of wood, with a metal framework, while the others are of all metal construction.

Planned Western Trip.

They had planned to leave tomorrow with six passengers for Detroit to attend the air show there. After attending the show and visiting Hunter's parents, who are residents of Detroit, they had planned to fly back to Los Angeles.

George Gardner, Department of Commerce inspector, and E. A. Cuttrell, of Washington, assistant chief of the aeronautical division of the Department of Commerce, immediately started an investigation of the crash.

Detroit, April 4 (A.P.).—T. Worden Hunter, killed in an airplane accident at Roosevelt Field, New York, today, is 35 years old and is the son of Thomas Hunter, a retired Detroit capitalist. He lived here until about a year ago when he went to Colorado Springs, Colo. Later he went to Los Angeles and became president of the Bach Aircraft Co. six months ago. Previously he had been interested in commercial aviation ventures here. He is survived by his widow, Mrs Margery Muir Hunter, and two young children, T. Worden Hunter, jr., 3 years old and Betty, six.

St. Louis Man Bequeathed Residence Where He Was Billeted.

St. Louis, Mo., April 4 (A.P.).—Charles M. Ziegler, St. Louis insurance man and former University of Maine football star, has been bequeathed a fine old brick residence in the Village of Arnage in southern France, where he was billeted as an American soldier during the World War.

Mr. Ziegler was a first lieutenant in the American Expeditionary Forces, and the gift, estimated to be worth $27,000, was the result of a friendship he struck up with Adolph Bonnet, then owner of the property, who died recently.

M. Bonnet was the town's wealthiest citizen. Mr. Zeigler became fond of the place and also of the old man during several months he was quartered there.

"I shall never sell it," Mr. Zeigler said. "I know how Mr. Bonnet felt about it. He gave it to me to remember him and to remember France."

Wild Gusher Is Capped; Gradual Curb Planned

Oklahoma City, April 4 (A.P.).—A 2-ton "overshot" cap intended to curb the wild flow of the Mary Sudik No. 1 oil well in the South Oklahoma oil field was lifted into place today. The well continued to flow wild through a valve in the overshot, as workers dared not shut it in suddenly.

The plan to tame the well that has belched forth a fortune in oil in the last ten days, was to cut off the top valve in the "overshot" gradually, permitting the oil to flow through other connections in to pipe lines.

ELOPEMENT LEADING TO ASYLUM IS BARED

Man Who Fled 15 Years Ago With Girl and Stolen $11,000 Is Arrested.

CHILDREN GET CHARITY

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 4 (A.P.).—A runaway romance of a New Jersey bank cashier and his young stenographer that led the principals to the poor house and the insane asylum and made public charges of their three children was disclosed here today following the arrest of Abram Cornelius, 62, for embezzling $11,000 from the Citizens National Bank of Englewood, N. J., in 1915.

Cornelius is in jail awaiting return to New Jersey to face trial. A certified copy of the indictment against him is en route here by air mail.

After hiding his identity for nearly 15 years Cornelius was arrested yesterday by Department of Justice agents at the county poor house, of which he was an inmate. He confessed and indicated he is ready to plead guilty.

Girl in Insane Asylum.

Loretta Adelgais, the stenographer with whom Cornelius eloped after taking the money from the bank in July, 1915, and deserting his wife and three children in Englewood, is in the Wyoming Insane Asylum at Evanston. Their three children are being cared for in the Cheyenne home for dependent children.

Cornelius related he had been employed by the bank for 25 years when his infatuation for Miss Adelgais caused him to take a package of currency from a vault and flee west with the girl. He was 48 and she was 17 at the time.

The couple came to Cheyenne, where Cornelius was known as A. P. Cornell. He invested $10,000 in a mountain resort which prospered for a time but finally failed.

Cornelius' health failed five years ago and soon after he became a county ward at the Cheyenne Hospital. A year ago he was admitted to the county poor farm.

Girl Supported Him.

Miss Adelgais supported him for a while. She worked as secretary of the Cheyenne Community Chest, in a Wheatland, Wyo., hospital and in a five and ten cent store here.

Last January they were married. Then Mrs. Cornelius' health broke from overwork and she was sent to the State Insane Asylum. Their three children—a girl, 13, and two boys, aged 5 and 3 years—were placed in the home for dependent children.

Cornelius explained he could not marry Miss Adelgais earlier as his wife still was living. The first wife died recently in New Jersey.

Officers revealed that Cornelius was apprehended as the result of a letter sent by his second wife to relatives in New Jersey, telling of the misfortunes the elopers had met. It was the first time she had communicated with her relatives in fifteen years.

700,000 Yellow Perch Put in Virginia Stream

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 4.—Seven hundred thousand yellow perch, a portion of Virginia's allotment from the Federal Government, were turned over to Game Warden P. Blake Lewis and Webb Midyette yesterday and released for restocking purposes in the Mattaponi River, Spotsylvania County. The tiny fish were secured by the two game wardens from the Government hatchery at Fort Humphries.

According to reports, 25,000,000 of these fish will be released in Virginia waters within the next few weeks. Game wardens of the several counties have been called on to deposit the fish in the streams designated as most needing them. The perch were so tiny that they were brought here in a small container. No bigger than tadpoles at present they will grow more than an inch in a year, and it will be at least three years before they attain full growth.

Blaze Destroys Norfolk Theater

Academy of Music Burns Down; In Heart of Business District.

Norfolk, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin this afternoon destroyed the Academy of Music, the oldest theater in Norfolk. The theater was located in the heart of the downtown business district and was about 50 years old.

Flames were discovered shortly before 2 o'clock, apparently after they had been burning inside for some time. All available fire apparatus and the city fireboat Vulcan were called to fight the fire, but little could be done other than to keep the blaze from spreading to adjoining business property. At 7 o'clock tonight firemen were playing streams of water on the ruins.

No estimate of the damage could be obtained at that time. The theater was owned by the C. W. Grandy estate, and until recently had been under lease to Wilmer & Vincent.

Caucus Distributes Cumberland Posts

Commissioner Blye Loses Supervision of Fire and Police Work.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 4.—At a caucus at the home of Mayor Thomas W. Koon last night, the city commissionerships were agreed upon and confirmation is expected at the organizatin meeting Monday. Commissioner Herbert Lee Blye will take the water and light department, and John G. Shearer will succeed him as police and fire commissioner. Joseph H. Griffin, a former commissioner, will take the streets and public property department, and Samuel Wertheimer, finance and revenue.

Commissioner Blye wished to retain the police and fire commissionership, but he was overruled by his colleagues, because of the friction that has existed between him and Police Chief Oscar A. Eyerman.

The greatest interest in connection with the appointments surrounds the tax collectorship. Mayor Koon and Councilman Blye favor the retention of Herman D. Billmyer, but the other three members of the body are opposed to him and as between Theodore F. Shaffer and Joseph Craddock, who are applicants, it is thought Shaffer has the call.

There is said to be strong probability that H. Raymond Sheriger will be replaced as city clerk by Samual Grininger.

Fishermen Ready For Trout Season

Anglers to Descend on the Streams in West Virginia on April 15.

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., April 4.—Monongalia County fishermen will have an opportunity to get out the rod and reel early this year since the trout season opens in West Virginia April 15 instead of May 1 as had been the case until the change in the law by the Legislature of 1927. The season will close on July 31.

Many anglers have their favorite streams in which to fish for rainbow and speckled trout, but generally speaking the upper waters of the Elk River, as well as the streams in the higher reaches of the Cheat Valley attract most of the sportsmen. Some fish on the Greenbrier, Cogar's Mill, on the Elk River, is another famous spot.

Close to 200,000 more trout will be in the streams of the State this season than last, since practically that number were placed in the waters of the various streams during January and February.

The trial of the case ended in a jury disagreement yesterday.

Virginia Leads U. S. In Apple Exports

2,531,476 Barrels Shipped During Last Fiscal Year; Washington Second.

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—Virginia led all States of the Union in apple exports for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, it was announced here today by Henry M. Taylor, statistician for the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

Figures furnished by the United State Department of Agriculture, by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce show that Virginia exported 2,531,476 barrels of its 1928 apple crop, which was approximately 70 per cent of its total production of 3,700,000 barrels.

The State of Washington was second with 2,420,826 barrels exported, Oregon was third with 747,608, and New York fourth with 623,770.

It was the first year that Virginia has reached first place in apple exports since figures by States were made available in 1924, Mr. Taylor said.

FRENCH SUMMATION OF PARLEY IS GIVEN

Paris Delegation Declares Failure of Five-Power Pact Is Not Theirs.

ITALIANS PRAISE GRANDI

London, April 4 (A.P.).—With hopes for a five-power naval disarmament treaty virtually abandoned at the naval conference, the French delegation tonight gave a clear and authoritative exposition of its present viewpoint.

First, and above all, the French hold that if the five-power treaty fails of accomplishment, the fault can not be laid at their door.

From the beginning, they maintain, they have put all their cards on the table. Such and such colonies that had to be protected, and such and such coast line to be guarded against invasion, imply such and such naval needs. Those needs, the French consider, they have clearly stated, and they can not be blamed if other powers refuse to do likewise. Their figures, moreover, were based on needs of today.

View of Italian Demand.

In the French conception, the Italian demand for naval parity with France implies that either the French must reduce their existing fleet by nearly half or the Italians build nearly double.

The first is impossible for them, they say, since their tonnage claims are based on actual needs. To the second, apart from the fact that the present conference was intended to reduce navies, rather than increase them, they would never consent on security grounds.

To the French, the Italian attitude is not a matter for which they feel responsible. They wash their hands of it.

Rome, April 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—With the perfect accord of a well-conducted orchestra the Italian press today holds Foreign Minister Dino Grandi up to public opinion here as the hero of the London naval conference, its saviour and its monitor.

Press Lauds Rome Delegation.

Great Britain has to thank the head of the Italian delegation to the five-power parley, newspapers here assert, that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald decided to reject France's formula embodying the French interpretation of Article XVI of the League of Nations covenant.

To Grandi belongs the credit, says the chorus of Italian editorial commentors, for striding into the foggy atmosphere of intrigue, trifling and dallying prevailing at London and figuratively throwing wide open a window letting in the fresh air of realistic truth. The Italian foreign minister is pictured as calling MacDonald to order by telling him "enough of all this. It is time to end it," and sternly refusing to participate in discussions revolving about the French security formula.

The British premier obeyed the Fascist minister, the newspapers say. Thursday, they chorus, was Italian day in London for Italy's representatives—firm, inflexible, independent—had the courage to speak out plainly to the public of the world, wearied of diplomatic and political deceptions.

Fan Mail Proposals Discussed by Vallee

Vagabond Lover Fails to See Why He Should be So Addressed; Compares His Publicity Drive to Grant's Attack on Richmond.

By RUDY VALLEE.

CHAPTER XIV—UP THE LADDER VIA RADIO.

I had brought back from England several odd tunes that no one else had. Among them was an unusual little song called "Georgie Porgie" that somehow seemed ideally suited to me, so much so that our fans called me "the Georgie Porgie boy" and letters poured in requesting it.

We created such a demand for this tune in New York that a big American publisher who held the American rights to it was forced to publish it here. But it never amounted to anything in the hands of other orchestra leaders, since it was a number that required a certain treatment, which they failed to give it.

This and several other tunes we alone played caused a great many people to tune in and tell others to do likewise, since these tunes were played by no other orchestra.

Fan Mail Increases.

Thus we continued until spring, 1928, building our reputation day by day, and receiving a tremendous increase in fan mail.

We had another outlet, of which I have spoken before, namely, the Herbert Jewelry program over Station WMCA, another small station which called us from beds at noon on Sundays to broadcast at 2 o'clock from the Hotel McAlpin. Although this was a small station it was the only one that dared to broadcast dance music on Sunday afternoons.

We performed on three Sundays for three programs and then lost the account. Mr. Herbert felt the amount he was paying us was too great (although today we receive over twenty times that amount for half the time) and went back to the orchestra he had been using before he gave us our chance. My boys were dismayed, and, after listening to the orchestra he was using, gave up hope entirely.

Sunday Program Renewed.

Feeling that we had something that no other band possessed, I pleaded with them to work very hard with me at the Heigh-Ho Club. I asked Mr. Herbert to tune in on the club and hear us. And in about a month's time I was very pleased to receive a letter from him, saying he wanted our band and would pay our price. So we renewed our Sunday afternoon broadcasts.

As I recall the first Herbert program, I chuckle as I think of our novel and original idea for opening the hour. I intended to electrify our listeners-in and in this succeeded, perhaps too well. That first Sunday when Mr. Herbert tuned in he heard twleve strokes of a clock, two shots and a police whistle. The idea was supposed to be an attempted burglary of the Herbert Jewelry store, with the sergeant boosting Mr. Herbert's collection of blue white diamonds and saying that they were so tempting he did not blame any one for attempting to break in.

The police, however, felt that the thing was too realistic and called up Mr. Herbert, requesting him to have no more such mention of the attractiveness of his alluring diamonds.

Announcer and Director.

Nevertheless we had achieved an unusual result!

As at the Heigh-Ho Club, each boy had a typed program. Again I was fortunate in being allowed to announce my own numbers. I asked for and secured this privilege, due to the complicated nature of our programs; to me, the musical sequence was destroyed by necessary pauses during which a cold and matter of fact advertising announcement was made without music. Both Mr. Herbert and WMCA, which operated, granted me this privilege and I became both announcer and musical director.

Late spring, 1928, found our fame grown noticeably, but it remained at this stage and grew no larger over the summer as we did not broadcast from the Casino at Rye, N. Y. It did not, however, grow smaller, as I found that our admirers were very, very loyal and sincere.

In the fall Mr. Dickerman decided to shift our broadcast from the Heigh-Ho Club to Station WOR, which was one of America's great radio stations. I felt this was our great chance and more than ever did I insist upon the perfection of our programs. WOR had a tremendous area and was especially popular in New Jersey.

Many New Friends Made.

We made new friends and my letters showed that all of our old ones were as loyal as ever. I was fortunate in having two or three odd, unusual and unpublished songs, such as "Deep Night," "The Vagabond Lover" and "Sweetheart of All My Dreams," that no one else played.

We renewed our broadcast for Herbert and were on the air sometimes as often as seven or eight times a week.

We were making a cheap record which I mentioned in our broadcasts and the sales of which were tremendous, indicating that we had a large following. No one was more aware of this following than I, since the increasing fan mail told me the story. The remarkable part of it was that each individual was unaware of the fact that there were thousands of others who were also enthusiastic about our work. Rather was A absolutely unaware of the fact that B, who was probably his neighbor, was just as great a fan as he of this little group of eight men whose music appealed to him. Each felt that he was unique in his admiration. And this, to me, was quite humorous, though nevertheless very pleasant to read.

Reason for Popularity.

I hope I have now shown that we were not an overnight sensation, but that our popularity was the result of a steady hammering through the microphone, comparable to the steady attack made by Grant at Richmond. And now our radio career has reached a new peak with our contract to play one hour a week for 52 weeks at several thousand dollars per hour.

What was overnight and instantaneous was the demonstration at the Eighty-first Street Theater.

Our subsequent vaudeville appearances only went to show that everywhere in the New York territory we had built up, through our radio programs, an army of admirers who were as loyal as the partisans of a baseball team.

Irritated About Fan Mail.

Exaggeration is, I suppose, the life and spirit of publicity. But being a very conscientious New England Yankee, born to state facts as they are, I have chafed under the ballyhoo of many a writeup. One point in particular is a sore spot to me, any mention, however, finished or crude, of my fan mail irritates me. There is nothing quite so sacred or quite so wonderful as the tribute of an admirer to the one who receives it and to publicly make mention of this seems to me as brazen and as unpolished as to open another person's mail.

A periodical which carried my life story, "ghost written," by a girl writer, boasted that I received 20,000 letters a day. Nothing could be more absurd and untrue, and this would be very apparent to any one who would stop to consider the improbability of such a thing.

This paper went on to state, in the little synopsis preceding the story itself each day, that many of these letters were proposals.

Eligibility as Husband.

As I take stock of myself and try to imagine how others might consider me as being eligible as a husband, I personally fail to see why I should receive many, if any, proposals at all. But there is no accounting for taste, and I suppose that I might seriously appeal to some as a husband.

This is not mock modesty, for remember I am well aware of the fact that my appeal is a personality expressed in a voice, and in the average marriage the physical side is of much greater importance than either the mental aspect or personality. People rarely propose to something they have not seen.

I am very glad that I do not receive 20,000 letters or even 500 letters a day, because quite obviously I would never be able to read all of them, as I do now. Although I read fast, it sometimes consumes three hours of my day only to read my daily mail, let alone the extra time it takes to answer it.

Aid in Making Programs.

And I suppose if all the Fleischmann letters were turned over to me I would not be able to read all of my radio fan mail. This is even more unfortunate, as the radio letters I receive help me immeasurably in building my radio program.

However, those I may engage to read the letters, should the number of them ever get away from me, will be individuals who know my likes and dislikes and will understand how to give me a consensus of opinion of the daily batch of letters, as I feel it is most essential and important that I keep a very close and sensitive finger upon the pulse of those who are interested in my efforts.

DEVELOPMENTS FEW IN MILES DEATH QUIZ

dence was discovered or Mrs. Rogers made the request.

It also was learned that no effort has been made to interview Mrs. Rogers. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the department of criminal investigation of the Department of Justice, was in New York Thursday to give testimony in an alleged jury-fixing case, but did not seek to question Mrs. Rogers, it was learned. Mr. Hoover, it is understood, has turned the facilities of his office over to Mr. Burkinshaw for the purpose of the investigation, but himself is not working on the case in any of its phases.

No effort was made during the day to interview Mrs. Thomas Surratte, sister of Mr. Miles, of Concord, Mass., and it was understood that she is in Washington in connection with an entirely different matter. She had not visited the Department of Justice or the United States attorney's office and it was considered improbable that she would do so. Mrs. Surratte is said to know none of the details of her brother's demise.

Mr. Burkinshaw continued to be reticent about the case yesterday, but other associates expressed the belief that the investigation will die a natural death as soon as certain New York newspapers run out of material on which to base their stories. It was at the instigation of two New York newspapers that the investigation was originally launched, it was said.

aid yesterday that suggested interpretations of the Locarno treaties were impossible without the presence of Germany, a cosignatory. He also remarked to the press tonight that if the conference fails and France continues her big building program, Italy will lay down three battle cruisers next year. This suggestion alarmed the British when they heard it, since, if the threat is executed, it would upset the Rapidan figures by causing new British as well as French building.

Japanese Agreement Likely.

The committee of experts considering the Japanese reservations to the three-power settlement met twice today, and will continue their discussions tomorrow. Although nobody doubts ultimate agreement, these sessions are not so simple as expected, since application of the Japanese reservation claiming 70 per cent in big cruisers causes difficulties.

Japan has nominally agreed to the laying down of three more American 8-inch gun cruisers in addition to the fifteen that will be in commission in 1936. These will be building when the present treaty expires. It now appears that the Japanese claim may involve, so the Japanese experts declare, laying down of one 10,000-ton cruiser and one 8,000-ton cruiser each carrying 8-inch guns, in addition to the present Japanese tonnage allowance. This has caused surprise to Americans and the outcome is yet in doubt.

The report on humanization of the submarine adopted by the jurists' committee, which will undoubtedly go through, consists, it is understood, of an agreement in two clauses. The first of these grants, as the French demanded, the same belligerent rights to submarines as to other warships. The second clause compels the submarine to warn a merchantman before sinking it, and prohibits the submarine from abandoning passengers or crew in open boats excepting in close proximity to land when weather conditions guarantee that there is no danger to life. This represents a compromise between French claims and the earlier American adhesion to the Root convention.

Conference Is Now Calm.

After several days of comparative chaos, during which even informed opinion did not know what to believe, the conference has now entered calmer waters and the following main facts sum up the situation:

Inability of French and English to agree on a formula that would grant France additional security enabling her to reduce her fleet, without involving Great Britain in additional warlike obligations. Thus all consideration of a consultative pact in which America might participate disappears. British discussions with the French over security formulae concern subjects belonging rather to Geneva than to the London naval conference.

A three-power agreement is thus all that can be achieved here, excepting possibly some five-power understanding on minor points not involving tonnage questions. Even this last is doubtful, because of the openly hostile attitude of Italy to anything that France suggests or accepts.

Three-Power Treaty Obtainable.

A three-power treaty or agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan is probably obtainable, though not without some hurdles to overcome, and it will have to include a clause permitting Great Britain and the other two signatories to build above Rapidan figures if French and Italian building renders this necessary in British opinion.

Franco-British feeling at the moment appears much more friendly than a fortnight ago, and unless last-minute rows take place, as they well may, there is a possibility, informed Americans and British claim, that a three-power treaty now will not cause bad feeling in France, or, at least, not so much as it would have caused at an earlier stage.

Italian feeling is intensely bitter and there appears little hope of soothing the Italians whose course of action, moreover, is resented by the delegates of the other four powers, including the Americans.

liquor. They reported that they were seeking to determine whether there was any connection between his alleged liquor operations and the beating last night.

"I was alone in the shop, just getting ready to close up, when two of the men walked in and asked me if I was closing," declared Kapsaly to police. "I told them I was, and then the one in front suddenly jumped behind me and tied my hands back of me with rope."

"Then they both cracked me terrific blows in the jaw and I went down, just remembering that one of them was sticking his hands in my pockets and taking my money. Neither one of them had on a mask nor showed any weapons."

Kapsaly was removed in the First Precinct patrol to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a possible fracture of the jaw and severe lacerations about the face, being dismissed at his request.

In Police Court the charge of sale of three drinks was dropped and a jury trial was ordered on the charge of possessing liquor.

Their arraignment today on charges of kidnaping brought the information from Boston that Corbett had filed suit against his wife last November in East Cambridge, Mass., naming Quinn as corespondent. The suit has not been brought to trial.

The three men were held in $1,500 bail each for a hearing next Wednesday.

Police said Mrs. Corbett left her husband about three months ago, leaving her two children in the custody of servants.

Mrs. Corbett is the former Philomena Silva, of Provincetown, Mass. She is a former model for New York and Boston society portrait painters.

THREE-POWER PACT PLEASES PRESIDENT

Now Is Regarded as Most Practical Method of Meeting Naval Problem.

SENATE MAY APPROVE

By ALBERT W. FOX.

A three-power pact again looms as the probable outcome of the London naval conference, according to latest advices reaching officials here. The Italian statement, coupled with difficulties in reaching accord between France and Great Britain, has again reduced hope for a five-power treaty.

President Hoover will regard a limitation pact between Great Britain, Japan and the United States as a distinct achievement even though it may represent only partial progress toward the arms limitation goal. It has been an open secret here for several weeks that the President has anticipated a three-power treaty, rather than a five-power pact, as the ultimate result of the protracted London negotiations. The President's opposition to permitting the United States to become involved in a political pact had the effect of discouraging the recent efforts to purchase a reduction of French tonnage by Anglo-American political commitments for the benefit of France.

Senate Not Unfavorable.

It is generally admitted that no five-power treaty, containing such commitments, could have been ratified by the Senate. Under the circumstances, a three-power pact devoid of political commitments is regarded from the American standpoint as a more practical solution of the problem.

The Senate's attitude toward a three-power treaty may not be unfavorable. In any event there will be no such burst of senatorial opposition as greeted reports that a five-power pact with a consultative commitment was a possibility. The tendency of Senate leaders will be to await more complete information. If a three-power treaty is agreed upon, and it is not improbable that serious discussion may be suspended until the American delegates return from London.

Agreement between Japan, Great Britain and the United States, on the basis of the Reed-Matsudaira formula, has removed one of the chief obstacles to a three-power treaty but there are two other impediments yet to be reckoned with. One is the lukewarm attitude of the House of Commons toward such a pact and the other is the necessity of placating France and Italy in order to remove the impression that a three-power pact is a slight to them.

British Contingent Clause.

This latter phase of the situation may be dealt with by including the three-power naval limitation pact in a five-power treaty under the terms of which France and Italy could adhere to certain clauses at the present conference and would be in a position to participate in the limitation features at some future time, if they so desire. It is regarded as highly important not to permit international friction between any of the powers represented to grow out of the London conference.

The three-power treaty would necessarily have a contingent clause to safeguard the British against the prospective French building program. In other words, the limitations which Great Britain agrees to would apply only so long as the French naval program remains below a certain limit. As soon as the French pass that limit—presumably in about two years—the British would be permitted under the treaty to correspondingly expand their naval building program.

The United States and Japan would have the same right to increase their navies. The extent of naval limitation would therefore depend primarily on France.

LOBBY PROBERS FAIL TO PERTURB RASKOB

IS CONTRAST TO HUSTON

forehead, Mr. Raskob seemed as conscience clear as a new-born babe, never raising his voice above the drawing room tone and saying "yes" and "no" to every question that Senator Robinson asked. He looked on amusedly, in fact, as the committee members got into frequent fights, and at the end got on the train and went quietly back to New York.

Everybody except Senator Robinson agreed that from the Republican viewpoint the comparison might just as well not have come up. But Senator Robinson is a man of unusual hardihood. He comes from a State where the man who can shout "You're another" the loudest survives.

So, instead of being disappointed at the failure of his effort—and he worked hard—he announced subsequently that he would have Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, appear before the committee Tuesday, for just what purpose he himself does not clearly know.

It probably has to do, though, with a piece that Mr. Daniels wrote for his paper recently, saying that because of Mr. Raskob's prominence with the wet cause he should resign as Democratic national chairman.

This editorial was the cause for an outbreak yesterday. Senator Robinson read it as though it were some damaging testimony submitted to a jury of peers.

"Now, Mr. Raskob," he said, "I want to ask you if you intend to resign."

Senators Caraway and Tom Walsh jumped two feet out of their chairs.

Warn Raskob to Be Silent.

"Don't answer that," they shouted in unison.

"You asked Mr. Huston that," shouted Senator Robinson.

"We did no such thing," retorted Senator Caraway.

"You'll find it right there in the record of the first day's hearing. Now what I want to do is to ask the same question of Mr. Raskob."

Senator Caraway retorted that he would have to see it in the record to put any weight in anything Senator Robinson said. It was that kind of hearing.

Senator Walsh at this juncture told Senator Robinson that he would not be permitted to make a "show" of the hearing, that Mr. Raskob would not be permitted to answer the question and, that if the Indiana senator did not like it, he could appeal to the Senate.

"I intend to appeal—I intend to discuss this whole thing very fully," Senator Robinson replied.

Daniels Called Prominent Democrat.

Senator Robinson insisted that his question was important, that "this editorial was written by a very prominent member of the Democratic party."

"Oh, my Lord," ejaculated Senator Caraway, and the audience roared. Mr. Daniels is known as the "Old Mother Grundy" of the party.

"The charge is," Senator Robinson persisted, "that Mr. Raskob left the Republican party and joined the Democratic party——"

"He just wanted to get into an honest party," interjected Senator Caraway.

Subsequently, Mr. Raskob told newspapermen he would not have minded answering the question, and that the answer would have been "no," that he had no intention of resigning.

On the stand, he said he had made no attempt to commit the Democratic party to the wet cause.

Up to Convention, Belief.

"It is my feeling," he said, "that there is no one in a position to commit the Democratic party on this question except the national convention. It is not the business of the national committee and it certainly is no business of the chairman of the national committee."

Both Senators Caraway and Walsh sighed with relief.

Senator Robinson wanted to know if Mr. Raskob thought that by being national chairman he could "more effectively bring about repeal of the eighteenth amendment?"

Senator Walsh would not permit that one to be answered.

The hearing was without doubt one of the funniest things that ever happened on Capitol Hill. Senator Robinson's charge that politics had previously played a part in the committee's work is quite probably true, but there was never such an obvious example of it. There was nothing subtle about his questions. There was nothing subtle about his bringing Mr. Raskob before the committee. He did it because of Mr. Huston's fate in the hope that somewhere, somehow, something might be developed.

Undercurrent of Drama.

Yet beneath the surface humor of it all there ran a thread of drama, or heart throbs, the story of an Indiana boy trying desperately to make good.

He developed the widely known fact that Mr. Raskob had contributed $65,000 or so to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that he is a member of its directorate. But try as desperately as he could, he could get nowhere from that. There he was stopped.

He read a very ominous-sounding letter from a woman about the "big rayon lobby" that had been at work here. She did not profess to know much about it, but she wanted to know why the committee didn't call Mr. Raskob, Lieut. Gov. Lehman of New York and Joe Tumulty.

"Do you know anything about this lobby, Mr. Raskob?" asked Senator Robinson hungrily.

"No," replied Mr. Raskob, very quietly.

Entire Premise Collapsed.

Further questioning took the senator's entire premise from under him. That is, Mr. Raskob explained he did not have a penny invested in rayon, that his association with the Du Pont people, who are interested, had been nominal since he went with General Motors many years ago.

There were times when Mr. Raskob, who came to this country from Alsace-Lorraine, made millions, and has now entered the great game of American politics, seemed to feel sorrow for Senator Robinson. Success seemed to mean so much to him, his eagerness was so apparent. Mr. Raskob seemed actually to wish that he could give him a little bit to help him. That was his appearance. You see, Senator Robinson is in an awful hole. A lot of his Republican colleagues are saying that his slip one day about the Republican party's funds being in Mr. Huston's brokerage accounts was one of the most bone-headed slips ever made.

Not finding anything else to quarrel with Mr. Raskob about, he quarreled with him about his lack of knowledge of the wet association to which he contributes so freely. Mr. Raskob had said he did not know there was a Washington office of the association until two days ago.

Answers Are Explained.

"Are you in the habit of doing business this way?" asked Senator Robinson. It was a question frequently asked Mr. Huston, but with more purpose.

"Yes," replied the unruffled Mr. Raskob.

"Just putting $65,000 into an enterprise and then paying no attention to what is done with it?"

"No."

"I can't reconcile your two answers."

"I think it's because you don't want to," Mr. Raskob replied, mildly, explaining that he had confidence in the executive committee and official personnel of the association and that he did not concern himself with the details.

It was significant, perhaps, that Mr. Raskob was attended at the hearing by Emmett Dougherty, local head of the wet association, instead of Charles Michaelson, director of words for the Democratic national committee. These little shades are important in dealing with the mass mind.

Overlooked Best Bet.

Senator Robinson's idea was to make Mr. Raskob, the wet association and the Democratic party one wickedly moving force, and thereby stir up trouble among the Democratic drys.

After the hearing his attention was called to what would have been his best bet.

He should have developed, he was told, that the wet association is spending money to elect wet Republicans against dry Democrats, when the line-up is that way. Whereupon, he snapped his fingers ruefully and authorized the statement that he planned to have the association's accounts audited to find out whether money contributed by the chairman of the Democratic national committee is being used to elect wet Republicans running against dry Democrats."

That will make a lot of dry Democrats mad, whether it is true or not.

Josephus Daniels Wires He Will Come to Capital

Raleigh, N. C., April 4 (A.P.).—Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer and former Navy Secretary, today wired acceptance to Senator Robinson, of Indiana, to a request that he testify before the Senate lobby committee next Tuesday concerning a recent editorial in which he declared that John J. Raskob "should pay his debt to the Democratic party and resign as chairman of the executive committee."

In the editorial, Mr. Daniels contended that Mr. Raskob was more interested in "breaking down the eighteenth amendment than in the Democratic party," and that as long as he was affiliated with the party "millions of voters would look on it as wet."

SHELL FIRM BRINGS SUIT FOR $100,000

Breach of Contract Charged in Action Brought Against Realty Company.

INDIVIDUALS ARE NAMED

The Shell Eastern Petroleum Products Co., of New York, filed suit yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court against the Penn Oil Co., Paul and Annie Himmelfarb and the Penn Realty Co., all of Washington, seeking to recover $100,000 liquidated damages for alleged breach of contract.

Through Attorneys Peelle, Ogilby & Lesh the plaintiff alleges that in November, 1929, it entered into an optional agreement to purchase fourteen parcels of land owned by the Penn Oil Co., including its plant at Rosslyn, Va.

Charge is made that there was so much delay that the terms of the contract could not be completed within the specified time and that as a result the Shell Co. has suffered considerable loss of business. It also is set out that under the terms of the contract a penalty of $100,000 could be exacted if the defendants failed to comply with the terms of the contract.

The bill provides that henceforth any medical officer of the Army, Marine Corps or Navy will be automatically given the rank of captain or colonel, respectively, while serving in the capacity of White House physician.

Dodge City, Kans., April 4 (A.P.).—H. F. Millikan, Federal census supervisor for 19 counties, today announced that the four enumerators appointed to take the census in Greely County have gone on a strike for higher pay.

The original rate of pay set for Greely County was 8 cents for each person listed and 40 cents for each farm. This rate was increased to 10 cents and 47 cents, but the enumerators still are not satisfied. The population of Greely County was last reported at 1,873.

NATIONALISTS RALLY TO KILL NEW REBELS

Gunboats Are Dispatched and Troops Mobilized Against Northerners.

GOVERNOR'S ARREST DUE

Shanghai, April 4 (A.P.).—China's Nationalist government today began assembling its war machinery to combat the latest rebellion, the northern alliance headed by Gens. Yen Hsi-Shan and Feng Yu-Hsiang.

Rallying to the aid of the central government at Nanking, the Manchurian dictator, Chang Hsueh-Liang, dispatched a squadron of gunboats to Tsingtao, Shantung Province. He also ordered Manchuria's troops mobilized south of Shanhaikwan, the sea end of the great wall of China, built more than 2,000 years ago to keep out northern tribes.

Chang's troops were ordered prepared to move against the City of Tientsin and the forces of the northern alliance.

Aroused by the proclamation of Yen Hsi-Shan, Governor of Shansi Province, that he would head a revolt against the Nationalist government and overthrow President Chiang Kai-Shek, the government's state council tonight approved a mandate for "the arrest and subjugation of Yen. The government is expected to issue the mandate tomorrow. This is considered virtually a declaration of war against the militarist northern alliance.

Supported by Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, who often has changed sides in China's many military conflicts, Gov. Yen Hsi-Shan issued a denunciation against the Nationalist government Wednesday at Taiyuanfu, capital of his Shansi Province. In taking command of the "National" forces, he stated the purpose of the northerners is to overthrow President Chiang Kai-Shek, who he charged is the dictator of a government in which corruption and bribery were practiced openly, while bandits infested the land.

MARCHAND IS FREED FROM BUFFALO JAIL

FUTURE PLANS SECRET

Buffalo, N. Y., April 4 (A.P.).—Henri Marchand, artist and sculptor, was released today from the Erie County Jail, in which he has been detained as a material witness in connection with the murder of his wife, Clothilde Marchand.

Last night he severed his association with the Buffalo Society of Natural Science. His terse letter of resignation, offering no reasons for his action, was mailed from the jail, and Chauncey J. Hamlin, president of the society, said today that it would be accepted.

Asked today as to his future plans, Mr. Marchand said: "I shall go into seclusion for a short time. I don't care to say where. I would be bothered if people knew."

There remained tonight only one figure of the three principals in the trial, the figure of Nancy Bowen, aged Cayuga Indian woman, under indictment for murder, first degree, and accused by Lila of the actual slaying. Just what will be done with old Nancy, haunted by fears of witches and their spells, remains for District Attorney Guy B. Moore to decide.

At his office today it was said that no action is to be expected before next week.

SLASHING FOLLOWED BY AMBUSH ATTACK

pocketbook from him. Police said Taylor, a visitor at the house since last fall, then cut his brother slightly about the hands and face when he rushed into the room.

Seizing a shotgun, they declared, Taylor in making his getaway shouted a warning that if any report was made to authorities he would return and "kill both of you and Sheriff Kirby, too."

The two men, receiving medical aid at their home, summoned Sheriff Kirby and Deputy Sheriff Magarity, whose search of the section had proved unsuccessful.

About midnight, after both policemen had gone, Emmett was shot down from behind while completing his nightly tour of inspection of live stock on his farm. Police said the wound had been inflicted by a charge from a shotgun fired at a range of about 20 yards.

House Group Named For Charleston Fete

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Longworth yesterday appointed Representative Snell, of New York, and Beedy, of Maine (Republicans), and Tucker, of Virginia (Democrat), as the House committee to represent Congress at the 250th anniversary of the founding of Charleston, S. C., to be celebrated next week.

There was some doubt expressed if the New Yorker could attend, and Representative McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, was named as an alternate. McMillan invited members of the House to attend the celebration as the guests of his State.

U. S. Commission Urged For Interstate Power

(Associated Press.)

A measure to set up a new Federal Power Commission with limited power to regulate interstate transmission of electricity was introduced yesterday by Chairman Parker, of the House interstate commerce committee.

The Parker measure would create a commission of three members to be appointed by the President. Their powers of rate control would be limited to interstate sale of energy from producers to distributors but not consumers.

Mormon Centenary Will Be Celebrated

Senator Smoot to Speak at Service Tomorrow in Auditorium.

The 100th anniversary of the establishment of the Mormon Church in the United States will be celebrated in Washington with a special service at the Washington Auditorium at 11:45 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, will be the principal speaker. He will speak on "The Prophesies of Joseph Smith." Another feature of the service will be the reading of an address from the first presidency of the church by Marion Earl. This will come from Heber J. Grant, Anthony W. Ivins and Charles W. Nibley. The message of these three leaders of the Mormon Church will be combined in one address.

The service will be opened with congregational singing of "Thank Thee O God for a Prophet." Representative Don B. Colton, of Utah, will deliver a prayer. A duet entitled, "Angel From On High," will be rendered. The address from the first presidency will follow.

FLIER DISAPPEARS ON SPEED EFFORT

plane was loaded with 186 gallons of gasoline.

The plane has a cruising speed of "easily 100 miles per hour," employes of the Mooney Aircraft Co. at Wichita said. Capt. Frank Hawks, now en route to New York on the first attempted coast-to-coast glider flight, holds the speed record for a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to New York. His time, 17 hours and 36 minutes, was made in a more powerful ship.

Mooney, president of the Mooney Aircraft Co., designed a successful airplane when he was 19 years old, and now holds seven approved type certificates. A thousand ships, his associates said, had been constructed from his designs. The manufacturer, a veteran flier, organized the Wichita company last year and recently constructed the speed-wing plane in which he took off on the projected nonstop flight.

The fuselage of the ship is painted a dark brown and the wings are a grayish yellow. The license number of the plane is X-463-N, an experimental number, inasmuch as the ship has not yet been offered for formal Government test.

Fight on Dry Law Laid to Ignorance

Beers Tells W. C. T. U. Young Generation Does Not Know Saloons.

Representative Edward M. Beers, of Pennsylvania, addressing the quarterly convention of the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union, meeting at Waugh Methodist Church yesterday morning, stated that most opposition to prohibition came from people who were positively ignorant.

Representative Beers ascribed the preponderant antiprohibition vote taken in many of the leading colleges and universities over the country as coming from those who knew not what they were doing. They had not seen saloons in operation, he said, and therefore were not in a position to judge.

"We must constantly talk prohibition," he declared, "not merely in regard to an acceptance of the law as discharging our obligations to it. And we may report progress, for there are now hardly 100 wet representatives in Congress."

Action on Rickenbacker Medal Bill Is Delayed

(Associated Press.)

After spirited discussion on the floor of the House, action yesterday was deferred on the Clancy bill to authorize the President to confer a Congressional Medal of Honor on Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, World War aviator, when Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, objected to the bill.

Representative Spofford (Republican), Wisconsin, member of the military affairs committee, quoted Maj. Gen. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, as testifying in a recent hearing that the War Department should recommend all awards of honor.

Spanish War Pension Bill Comes Up Monday

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Knutson, of the House pensions committee, announced yesterday he had received assurance of House leaders that he would be permitted to bring up his Spanish War pension bill on Monday under a suspension of the rules.

The measure would provide a general increase in the pensions of Spanish-American War veterans.

Former Bondsman Pleads Bankruptcy

J. A. Torrillo Lists Note of W. W. Easterday Among His Assets.

J. A. Torrillo, a former bondsman, who operated on Fifth street northwest near D street, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt.

The former bondsman lists assets of $19,925 and liabilities of $21,436.39. His liabilities include unsecured claims amounting to $10,871.39.

Among the assets is a $600 note signed by W. W. Easterday, former associate of Nicky Arnstein, who last November was removed to New York following his arrest in Washington. The note bears the date of November 2, 1929, and is supposed to draw interest from that date. The note is said to have been given Torrillo on a bond furnished for Easterday prior to his removal. No bond was furnished for the man after he was ordered removed and he was taken to New York in custody of several deputy marshals.

At 4 o'clock each morning our warehouse men begin unloading from freight cars a vast quantity of fresh products that have come to us direct from the fields of the Sunny South. A total of twelve to fifteen carloads are placed on our warehouse floor each morning, preparatory to assembling each store's needs for the day. Even before most of Washington is awake, one hundred men have worked and reworked this vast tonnage to conform to individual store orders, and at 5:30 A.M. the loading of the delivery trucks begins. At 6 A.M. the first truck leaves to begin the distribution to our retail stores. Usually more than three hundred and fifty of our stores are supplied each morning before 8 A.M.

As quickly as deliveries are received in each store the unpacking, cleaning and preparation starts, and shortly thereafter almost every wanted fresh vegetable and fruit is on display and ready for your choosing in our store (Sanitary or Piggly Wiggly) nearest your home.

As production increases with the season, the opening time is pushed forward to 2 A.M., and when local growers begin their deliveries to us, the street is filled with trucks waiting to unload as early as 4 A.M.

To serve you with the freshest and the best is our job; and to do it efficiently is absolutely essential in order that you may purchase most economically.

Today (come in the forenoon for best assortment) will be a great day for those who want the best and freshest and the fullest choice of all the good things which grow.

THE DEMOCRATIC SPLIT.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, did not bring out anything new in his examination of John J. Raskob before the lobby committee, but he fanned afresh the fire that smolders in Democratic ranks. It was already well known that Mr. Raskob had contributed liberally to the organization that is fighting the eighteenth amendment. But it was his own money. He did not mix up Democratic campaign funds, and if he wished to squander a few thousands on wet propaganda it was his right.

Nevertheless, Mr. Raskob remains chairman of the Democratic national committee, and if he remains in that place he will have much to do with the nomination of the next Democratic presidential candidate. Will he favor a wet or a dry candidate, or somebody who will try to sidestep the prohibition question? The dry South will demand that he show his colors; and the wet Democracy of the East will make the same demand.

The Republican party has a rift on the economic questions involving agriculture and industry, but it is not split wide open, as the Democratic party is split on the wet and dry issue. The enactment of the farm relief and tariff bills may be followed by closing of Republican ranks. The insurgent Republicans are always loyal when they are running for reelection, and the regulars are so anxious to remain in power that they overlook a great deal of mischief in the insurgents. But a dry Democrat does not forgive a wet Democrat, and there is no bridging the chasm that divides them.

The Southern Democracy holds that Tammany and wetness have had their fling and that the party must now apply the lesson of the terrific defeat of 1928. If the South has its way Chairman Raskob will be out of a job, not only because of his contributions to wet propaganda but because he personifies the wicked wet East.

Jouett Shouse has had a fine time jousting at the Republicans. He has shown how they are divided, and how they lack leadership. What about the Democratic split, and the Democratic lack of leadership? Bro. Shouse has been enabled to carry on a lively offensive with the funds liberally furnished by Chairman Raskob, and his criticisms of the Republicans have been entertaining and instructive. The Republicans, in fact, are apt to profit by the pointers he has given. They may re-form their ranks in time to present a united front in the fight for control of Congress. But Bro. Shouse has no remedy for the plight of his own party. There is no party rope strong enough to bind together the wet and dry wings of Democracy.

All this is called to attention by the examination of Chairman Raskob. So, although he passed through the lobby quiz without scorching his garments, the Democracy of the dry South will not be comforted.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT.

The postal deficit, always a touchy subject with Congress and the Postoffice Department, was discussed the other evening before the Bronx Chamber of Commerce by Postmaster General Brown. In 1929 the deficit amounted to $85,000,000. Preliminary studies, said the Postmaster General, have convinced department officials that the budget could be balanced if the letter rate were raised to 2½ cents, and since such a rate is easily justified on both practical and theoretical grounds it is not unlikely that the increase will soon be recommended to Congress.

Postage charges enter as completely into the economic life of the whole people as do taxes. In the final analysis it would not make a great deal of difference in the budget of the typical family if the rate on letter mail were increased. With a deficit piling up every year that has to be met from the taxpayers' dollar, a 2-cent stamp does not measure the actual cost of sending a letter through the mail. But cheap postage is highly desirable. It stimulates business, and plays an important part in binding a widely separated people into a homogeneous whole. The postal deficit may worry Congress and the Postoffice Department, but the average man does not worry about it.

Postmaster General Brown said: "All of our financial troubles in the department seem to result from the disregard by Congress of the fundamental fact that in its strictly postal activities the department is a Government-owned and operated public utility, performing without profit a number of different services for its citizens as individuals; that, as such, it should be reimbursed by its patrons for the sum of its necessary expenditures." To increase parcel post, registry, or second-class mail rates, he added, would defeat the purpose of gaining larger revenue, because packages would be diverted to competing private channels. In other words, Mr. Brown suggests that first-class mail should be made to carry the burden of the unprofitable services; but since these unprofitable services are generally reckoned as an indispensable convenience, is it not better that they should be supported by the Treasury, rather than by imposing a tax upon the Nation's letter mail? The deficit is small, after all; and the average citizen would prefer to have it met by general taxation than by imposing upon him the annoyance of splitting pennies whenever he buys postage stamps.

TRIAL BY JURY DEFENDED.

Attorney General Mitchell's opposition to several vital provisions in the Law Enforcement Commission's plan for relieving court congestion lead directly to the conclusion that this scheme of creating a special procedure for violators of the prohibition law has never had the support of the administration.

The first point on which Mr. Mitchell's recommendations clash with those of the commission is on fixing a minor penalty for petty offenses. The commission recommended that casual violations be defined and that punishment consisting of not more than six months in jail or a $500 fine be prescribed therefor. It was intended that such minor cases should be tried without juries before United States commissioners. But Attorney General Mitchell is not willing to have the minor penalties fixed at less than $1,000 or six months in jail, or both. Under rulings of the Supreme Court an offense requiring such severe punishment can not be tried without a jury.

A second point of difference is on the plan of the commission to give district attorneys the right to prosecute for a felony any defendant found guilty of a casual violation if he should demand a jury trial. Sound principles of jurisprudence as well as justice prompt Attorney General Mitchell to oppose this provision. Other minor differences also appear, but they are not important, since opposition to the plan of defining minor offenses puts the administration on record against the whole nonjury scheme.

In transmitting the report of the Law Enforcement Commission to Congress President Hoover did not indorse it. He sent a special message calling attention to the need of action to curb lawlessness, without specifically approving the commission's plan. Later developments have brought out the impracticability as well as the injustice of the suggested procedure. In spite of the fact that a large majority of the House judiciary committee is dry, that committee can not agree on any measures that would make the nonjury scheme satisfactory.

PEASANTS BREAK THE REDS.

Reports from Moscow indicate that the communistic regime in Russia is on the down grade. The first signs of weakening appeared a month ago when Joseph Stalin, the dictator, issued warning to his henchmen to curtail their violent methods of forcing peasants into the collective organizations. Since then various concessions have been made, one of which allowed collectivized peasants to work in the cities during inactive periods on the farm. Now come reports of sweeping concessions to the peasants in the hope of inducing them to support the communist regime.

Until a month ago the dictatorship had been using violence in forcing the peasant population into communistic operation of their farms. Efforts were made to exterminate the kulaks because of their resistance. Apparently the Kremlin became convinced of the futility of trying to "remake man" by force, and decided on a greater degree of persuasion. Stalin's latest announcement indicates that there have been wholesale withdrawals from the collectives. That is just what was expected. The latest concessions are an attempt to mollify the angered peasants who are taking the first opportunity of deserting the communistic ranks.

To all peasants who remain loyal to the bolshevist order Stalin promises freedom from taxation on all cattle and horses for two years, postponement of debt liabilities until after the harvest, cancellation of fines imposed on peasants who refused to carry out the Soviets' agricultural program, and extension of vast sums in credit. Other notable concessions include the right of farmers to withhold their money from the savings banks, and a right to retain a certain part of their earnings for seasonal work in the cities. Such generosity has not been heard of since the red dictatorship first fastened its fangs on Russia.

Stalin insists that the new policy is not a retreat, but the result of "most profound investigations by the central committee." The profundity of the investigations can not be doubted, but the measures taken by the Soviet regime to escape the consequences of its reign of violence make explanations on that score futile. The bolshevists went as far as they dared in trying to force the Russian people into the practice of Communism. The extent of its failure is best indicated in the bribes now offered to the peasants.

The Soviet government is now considering a plan for the collectivization of city life. This would be enforced by forbidding the construction of kitchens in all homes and compelling the people to take their meals from "kitchen factories." Laundering in the home would be forbidden. Children would be taken from the care of their parents and placed in a common nursery. In short, the Russian people would be reduced to the basis of slaves of the state, with little more freedom or individuality than domestic animals.

The only hope of enforcing such a system is in force and terror. If Stalin has eliminated terrorism from the Soviet's program the backbone of Communism is broken. Human beings will not voluntarily submit to an arrangement that reduces them to the status of cattle. It remains to be seen whether or not the Russian peasantry has a leader that can take advantage of this situation. But the signs of disintegration are unmistakable, in spite of the fact that the peasants are leaderless.

HOUSE OF DETENTION.

The District House of Detention has been shifted from one place to another ever since its creation, without ever having an opportunity to settle in a place fully equipped for efficient service. For the last fourteen months the House of Detention has been located in rented quarters at Sixth street and Louisiana avenue. This building has been remodeled to suit the needs of the Detention House and the Women's Bureau of the Police Department. But the House of Representatives has passed the District appropriation bill on to the Senate without any provision to pay the rent for this building.

The House proposed that the Detention House and the Women's Bureau be shifted to a rooming house at 307 C street, which has been taken over by the Government and is awaiting demolition to make way for the new District center. This house is too small for the two institutions, it is suited to the purpose of neither, and is a fire trap. The District has just spent $3,000 to remodel and equip the present quarters of the Detention House. If the institution is moved another outlay for remodeling will be necessary, even though the quarters would be only temporary.

The appropriation bill is now before the Senate. Before it is sent to the floor for a final vote the item for payment of rent of the Detention House should be restored. There can be no complaint of extravagance in retaining the present modest quarters, but there would be serious complaint if the institution should be forced into an unsafe building not suitable to its needs. Let the Detention House and Women's Bureau remain where they are until a place is made for them in the new District center.

THE RISE OF JAPANESE SEA POWER

By Commander H. H. Frost, U. S. Navy.

In 1894 there were but five armored vessels in the Japanese navy. The largest of these was the Fuso—of 3,718 tons and 13 knots. Japanese seapower then ranked about fifteenth in the world, being inferior to such nations as Denmark, Greece, Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Turkey. In that year Great Britain alone had 71 armored ships larger than the Fuso.

The naval successes over China and strained relations with Russia resulted in a rapid expansion of the Japanese fleet. By 1904 she was tied with Italy for sixth place in numbers of first-class battleships built and building. The figures were: Great Britain, 48; United States, 24; Germany, 22; France, 17; Russia, 17; Japan and Italy, 8.

The decisive naval victories won over Russia gave Japan a lesson on the practical value of seapower that she has never forgotten. Despite very weak finances she had reached fifth place in naval strength in 1914. The numbers of battleships and battle cruisers then built or building were: Great Britain, 82; Germany, 48; United States, 36; France, 31; Japan, 20; Russia, 19; Italy, 15, and Austria, 13.

During the World War and afterward Japan passed Germany and France. Her fleet was firmly established in third place when the Washington conference was called. There her delegates accepted the 10-6 ratio proposed by Mr. Hughes, after receiving a bonus in the clause forbiding the increase of our fortifications and naval bases in the Philippines and Guam. As regards cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, Mr. Hanihara stated that the Japanese position was, "generally speaking, to maintain the tonnage allotment of auxiliary craft provided in the original American proposal of November 12," or the 10-6 ratio.

The results of the Washington conference were of great value to Japan. The status quo clause for fortifications and naval bases in the western Pacific was alone worth several battleships to her. The money saved by the cancellation of her large capital ship program was diverted to cruisers, destroyers and submarines. These were designed, in general, to be superior individually to the American ships of their types. By 1927 Japan was possessed of a splendidly balanced modern fleet.

In that year President Coolidge called the Geneva three-power conference. This soon developed into a contest between the British and United States delegations. The Japanese watched the game from the sidelines, picking up such advantages as came their way and consolidating their position. During the final throes of the conference, however, they entered into negotiations with the British. The American delegation was confronted by what Admiral Viscount Saito called a "provisional understanding." This, in a nutshell, allotted to Great Britain and the United States 737,500 tons of cruisers, destroyers and submarines against 481,250 for Japan. The ratio came to 10-6.52. Of course, these proposals came to nothing.

At this time it may be interesting to invite special attention to the figure proposed for Great Britain and the United States. Then the British proposed 737,500 tons—now they are willing to accept 541,700. Those two figures show the change in the British attitude between 1927 and 1929. The American delegation could not accept the tremendous figure proposed for the United States Navy. The naval advisers at Geneva were unanimous against a proposal which would have expanded their own navy to a high level that none of them had ever imagined in their wildest dreams. For this they have been reviled throughout the country—accused of breaking the conference for selfish ends. That figure of 737,500 tons was the primary reason why we came home without an agreement, not the 8-inch gun and 10,000-ton cruiser disagreements.

After the failure at Geneva Japan continued her naval expansion in auxiliary craft. Before the present London conference she announced a demand for the 10-7 ratio in these types. As announced in the press the recent agreement between the Japanese and American delegations—ratified very reluctantly by the Japanese government—gives United States 526,200 tons and Japan 367,000. Japan, therefore, has gained a ratio of 10 to 6.98. Or rather, she has confirmed by international agreement what she already has in actual first-line modern warships.

In accepting this agreement Japan has expressly reserved the right to demand a further increase in 10,000-ton cruisers in 1936. This will amount to about 17,600 tons, if she is to reach the 10-7 ratio in this specific type. Such an increase would alone augment the ratio to 10-7.31.

Japan's naval expansion has been engineered with great astuteness and complete success. We say this with a spirit of admiration—not criticism. Before the era of limitations conferences her construction program was limited only by her finances—and not very much by them. In 25 years her fleet advanced from fifteenth place to third. At Washington we offered Japan the 10-6 ratio. To induce acceptance the "status quo clause" had to be given as a bonus. At Geneva we offered Japan a second time the 10-6 ratio, but by then their demands had risen to 6.5. At London we offered a third time the 10-6 ratio, and Japan with great reluctance accepted 10-7. She has publicly served notice that in 1936 her demands will go to 7.3 at the least.

Now the advantages of a naval limitations treaty to this country are evident to all. We want one—naval officers no less than statesmen. When Americans want something, they are willing to pay for it—and they are accustomed to paying well. It is becoming apparent that treaties of naval limitations must, like everything else, be paid for. I would not say that the price now set by Japan is too high. But one fact is very significant. Every time we go out to get that treaty, we find that the price has gone up. There are indications that in the future it will continue to do so. Where will it stop?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE TOOTH AND THE FAIRY.

I've just tiptoed to her room,
Groping softly in the gloom
For her pillow, where she lies
With her heavy-lidded eyes,
And her chubby arms outspread
Just above her little head.
I've been careful not to make Any noise lest she might wake.

Softly moved my hand around
Till the thing I sought I found,
Tiny pearl of perfect white,
Difficult to find at night;
More so, when too great a stir
Would disturb the dreams of her,
And disclose the dreadful truth
It was Dad who took the tooth.

But I capture it in time,
And I've left the shining dime
In its place, and she will rise
With exultant, happy eyes
And she'll praise that fairy good
All around the neighborhood.
These are surely happy times,
Trading baby teeth for dimes.

EXULTATION.

By STEPHEN B. STANTON.

Light willows that turn gay at spring's first touch
While still the forest keeps its winter gloom.
Loosening yellow streamers to the ground
And lifting leafy ecstasies on high.
Alas! Your gayety is premature.
Like hopes that, rashly held, invite their doom.
More wisely, look—the forest waits to green
Till promise is more sure and skies serene.

They Just Can't Help It.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY Dear Louise: If you had a great and vital decision to make, and I were the villain in the case, I could arrange certain conditions and stage settings and without saying a word could so influence your mind that you would choose the wrong way while fully convinced you were doing right.

Or I could take the hero's part and arrange other conditions and still without saying a word could prompt you to make a sensible decision.

Perhaps you think it couldn't be done, but you will change your mind when I show you how the scheme works.

Your thinking—anybody's thinking—may be a calm and reasonable process on rare occasions, but usually it is influenced by emotion.

And since emotions influence your thinking, anything that changes your emotions will change your thoughts.

Here, then, are the villains that will trick you and cause you no end of trouble unless this warning prompts you to keep a sharp eye peeled.

They are moonlight, the wrong food, odors, music and crowds.

You smile in frank unbelief, but wait.

It isn't by chance that the gentle grass eaters live in the sunshine, while ferocious night prowlers need meat. The chemistry of sunshine makes sanity. In the moonlight and in darkness men lose their matter-of-fact common sense and dream dreams that seem foolish in the light of day.

The second villain, food, is equally subtle, but much more dangerous. The ancients who concocted love philters knew their chemistry, and now our own scientists have learned that fear and bravery, love and hate can be induced or checked by food combinations. Being short of glucose, for instance, you say "No;" give you a lump of sugar and you say "Yes."

Odors and music work in the same way. Some scent that reminds you of a happy experience and some strain of music that softens your heart will combine to make you an easy victim, while the sharp tang of ozone and pines and a blare of martial music will make you a conquering individualist.

Crowds are worst of all. There is a telepathy—a kind of mob hypnotism—that makes men helpless in a panic, or in a mob, or even in the frenzy of some religious rite. To be in a crowd that is stirred by emotion is to be swept off your feet.

That's all of the story.

You can't make sensible decisions in the moonlight, when the wrong food has made you less than normal, when odors and music charm you, or when you are part of a crowd.

Make your big decisions alone in the sunlight, when you are fit and the clean sweet wind in the trees makes your only music.

Promise that you will, and I'll never worry about you. Love,
DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

TROUBLES OF THE CENSUS TAKER.

This is door-knocking and bell-ringing week in all parts of the United States. "See who it is," is the command of the hour. Fairly smooth sailing is being reported by the census takers, but door-slammings and arguments have hit a new high for the year. Here and there a black eye or a cauliflower ear was acquired.

• • • •

It was all to be expected.

• • • •

You can't expect a nation that has suffered for twelve years from gunmen, sneak thieves, tax collectors and assorted snoopers to welcome every knock on the door and greet every stranger with an invitation to come in and have a nice, long chat.

• • • •

Conditions in America have reached a stage where any unknown visitor is regarded with suspicion. And when the stranger opens up a little notebook and asks mother whether popper owns his own home, how old is Aunt Minnie and who's boss around the bungalow there is every possibility of battle.

• • • •

Taking the census in the good old pre-snooping era was simple, but today it comes under the head of hazardous occupations.

• • • •

It was once the custom in this country to greet the stranger at the gate with a smile and a piece of pie, but that was before the public got to feeling that the unknown caller might be a boy bandit, a dry agent or merely a busybody who wanted to know what you kept in the cellar besides preserves and anthracite.

• • • •

Consequently the census takers of 1930 are needing all the tact they can muster. "It's a tough job," said Elmer Twitchell, who is census taker No. 7635. "The first day out I was busy snapping my foot out of doorways in time to save it at the ankle.

• • • •

"When I ask a man if he owns his own house his first reaction seems to be that I am either from the tax office or that I am the lawyer for some fellow who broke a leg on the slippery sidewalk.

• • • •

"This question, 'Do you own a radio?' causes trouble, too. It seems to be a delicate subject with some people. Only yesterday I asked one man that question and he barked, 'Yes, and you look so much like the guy that sold it to me I could knock you for a loop!'

• • • •

"I am having no cinch finding who is the head of the family, either. In most cases where the husband and wife are both home at the time, the question generally ends with one crowning the other with a water bucket, and with the survivor chasing me off the premises."

• • • •

Here Elmer shook his head sadly. "I suppose the census is necessary, though. Unless we find out how many people there are in the United States, how are the toothpaste and cigarette manufacturers going to know whether they're overproducing or not?

"Still, Uncle Sam's going at it the wrong way. If he would wait a few weeks, he wouldn't need a house-to-house canvass. He could find out everything he wants to know at the baseball parks."

Vast Increase of Life Insurance—Writer Gives Credit to Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following astonishing statement appears in the annual report of the executive committee of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee to its trustees and policyholders:

During the calendar year 1929 the outstanding event in life insurance as an institution, according to a recent survey, was the fact that in July, 1929, the total legal reserve life insurance in force in United States companies reached and passed the sum of $100,000,000,000. This amount is more than twice the volume of life insurance in all other countries of the entire world combined, although the United States contains only one-sixteenth of the world's population. The survey further shows that, after 79 years of activity, the United States companies in 1922 attained the first $50,000,000,000 of insurance, and that in the short period of the last six and one-half years there was acquired the remaining one-half of the $100,000,000,000 now in force. It is further indicated that the social and economic benefits of such present amount of insurance are distributed among more than 65,000,000 policyholders, being an estimated average of $1,540 per policyholder and $850 per capita of the total population of the United States.

Apparently, men are now taking care of themselves and providing for their families. The liquor traffic, for which the brewers were largely responsible, used to get their money, and when they died they left debts, poverty, disgrace, shame, and the brewers cared not at all. Now men leave comfortable life insurance policies for their families, and the liquor traffic looks on with a jealous eye.

Mythical "Saving" of $100,000,000 by Destroying Washington's Natural Park and Putting in Power.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his analysis of Maj. Brehon B. Somervell's Potomac Valley park testimony, Col. U. S. Grant 3d, of the National Capital Park and Planing Commission, in my opinion clearly shows that the power-development saving of $100,000,000, as a gift to the public from the Potomac River Corporation of Wilmington, Del., is a mere figment of the imagination.

If it is fair to advance the $100,000,000 argument against the development of what I visualize as the future's most magnificent metropolitan park in the world, why not apply it to other features of National Capital beautification? Why not fill in Rock Creek Park Valley and devote the leveled ground to factories and mills? Why not make an airport of Potomac Park, letting Arlington Cemetery, Arlington Bridge, the Lincoln Memorial, and the Washington Monument stand as shameful examples of millions thrown away?

Perhaps we have been wrong in giving as much attention to beauty as to utility in the erection of House and Senate Office Buildings. Certainly much money would have been saved if Congress had provided for modern skyscrapers to house the activities of the Government instead of the classical palaces now going up.

The value of beauty can not be fixed. What we can afford to pay for it is of course a matter for practical consideration. What we are willing to pay for it will to a considerable extent be the measure of our civilization. Fortunately no one except the hydroelectric engineers seem to be staggered by the prospective price of the Potomac Park system.

Former Senator Jim Reed's Radio Address Praised by an Old-Fashioned American.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The address of former Senator Reed, of Missouri, over the radio has prompted me to lay aside my habitual reluctance to breaking into print.

It was such a masterful presentation of the unadulterated fundamentals of Americanism, as taught by the fathers and defenders of the Republic, and such a magnificent refutation of the sophistry of the present day "internationalism;" that it must bring joy to every true lover of our Government and give pause to the self-seeking propagandists of that iridiscent dream of world peace by the League of Nations-World Court-Five point disarmament route.

His logic is the logic that appealed to the common people in the election of 1920 and it will guide them in 1932.

I am informed that the address is to be distributed by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Ferry to Eastern Sho' Would Help Some and Would Cheer Up Chesapeake Fishermen of Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To bring the National Capital into closer touch with the Eastern Shore the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. asks the Interstate Commerce Commission to let it operate a ferry between Chesapeake Beach and a point 10 miles from Cambridge, Md. I hope the railway's request will be granted. Such a ferry would be of benefit to the business of Washington, and should increased traffic justify the railway in improving its present equipment, it would be a boon to the summer-time outing public. It goes without saying that this extension of the beach trip would be very welcome to the casual fellowship of Chesapeake Bay anglers, one of whom I am which.

QUEEN OF SWEDEN SUCCUMBS IN ROME

End Calm and Painless After Years of Suffering From Disease.

ITALY OFFERS HOMAGE

Rome, April 4 (A.P.).—Queen Victoria of Sweden, long an invalid from a bronchial ailment, calmly and apparently painlessly died here today in the winter home that was her refuge every year from the rigorous climate of Sweden. She was 68 years old.

King Gustave, who returned from a trip to Naples yesterday, and Prince William were at her bedside, and though the queen's death had been forseen for weeks, all present were deeply affected.

Queen Victoria had been gradually sinking in vitality for a long time from a pulmonary complication. Yesterday her condition was disquieting and King Gustave, who had gone on an excursion to Naples and the Island of Capri, was summoned.

The queen, sinking rapidly, died as though she were falling asleep, only Dr. Munte, who has attended her for more than thirty years, realized that she was dead. He felt her pulse, listened to her heart, and turning to the king sorrowfully announced that her majesty had passed away.

Aided by nurses, Dr. Munte clad the body in burial garments of black and laid it out on the bed, over which were strewn roses from the garden that the queen had loved and personally supervised. She used to say that it was the sight and perfume of flowers in sunny Italy that kept her alive.

By a coincidence, today was the first in weeks on which the queen had been deprived of the springlike sunshine of Italy. After weeks of fair weather, rain fell steadily.

Services for her will be held at the German Church in Rome tomorrow, and tomorrow or Sunday the body will be sent Sweden.

Among the first persons to send their condolences were the King and Queen of Italy and Premier Mussolini. The Duce offered all the facilities the Italian government could furnish.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena came in person shortly afterward to the queen's villa. They were received at the gate by the chamberlain of King Gustave, who ushered them into the king's presence, and then they all went to pay homage to the dead queen.

Veteran Hospital Bill Commended

Shaffer Measure Is Lauded by Virginia Legion Commander.

(Associated Press.)

Favorable action on the Shaffer bill to authorize a veterans' hospital for Virginia was urged on the veterans' committee today by Col. Brantz Mayer Roszel, commander of the Virginia department of the American Legion.

Col. Roszel pointed out that disabled veterans in Virginia were transported in most cases over 200 miles to hospitals in Washington, Tennessee or Kentucky. Hospitalization of veterans outside of the State had a particularly bad effect on nervous cases, the commander asserted.

Under the Shaffer bill, $1,500,000 would be authorized for a 400-bed hospital and diagnostic center.

Dr. Adam T. Finch, of Chase City, expressed the opinion that the Soldiers' Home at Hampton would not be evacuated in time to care for the increasing number of veterans' cases.

Other witnesses were Department Adjutant W. Glenn Elliott, of Richmond, and Miss Minnie Etta Harman, of Tazewell, Va., chairman of the rehabilitation committee of the legion auxiliary.

ALUMINUM TRUST ACTION IS DROPPED

this country but also in Canada and Norway.

The company had entered contracts, the complaint charged, whereby it sold virgin sheet aluminum at a lesser price to manufacturing foundries than to jobbing foundries, with intent to create a monopoly. It was said further that the company had discriminated in the price of aluminum sold to certain manufacturers of automobile bodies and cooking utensils, and that it had employed a scheme to gain a complete monopoly of the aluminum sand blasting industry in the United States.

In its answer the company not only denied these assertions but said it had violated no law that "would justify the issuing of any decree by the commission" against it.

It was this answer that the commission—after five intervening years—yesterday accepted as correct.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE is not another man in the Senate just exactly like Senator Robinson, of Indiana, which is to say that if you think he will not do the Democrats some damage in his present undertaking it is because you do not know him. He is perhaps the one man who can do them harm, and that is because he is Senator Robinson.

This is not a brief for the Democrats or one against him. Goodness knows, the Democrats have been having the time of their lives for these many months.

But Robinson will make them feel uncomfortable from now on. The gentleman does not need very much to go on.

* * * *

ONE recalls back in the precampaign days of 1928 when it was generally known that Mr. Smith was to be the Democratic nominee for President, the Indiana senator dug up the fact that Mr. Smith had once appointed Harry Sinclair as one of the racing commissioners of New York State. It was an honorary office and one that called for no pay, and Sinclair, because of his interest in horses, certainly seemed a logical man for the place. And even this appointment had been many years back.

But when Robinson got through with it it was just as serious as the oil charges the Democrats were making against the Republicans. Fine stuff for the Democrats to talk about the Republicans when here was their presidential nominee appointing Sinclair to office, Robinson shouted. And when the Democrats would interrupt to argue the absurdity of his charge, he would hesitate only long enough to let them get the words out of their mouth and then he would shout it again.

* * * *

IT is a foregone conclusion now that he got enough out of yesterday's hearing to give him material for many days. For example, Senators Caraway and Walsh would not let Raskob answer the question of whether he intended to resign from the Democratic party chairmanship or not.

One can hear Robinson shouting from the Senate floor:

"That is the way the committee was conducted; that is how unfair it was. The same question was asked of Mr. Huston."

And when the Democrats seek to explain that if such a question was asked Huston it at least followed in a more logical sequence, he will just shout his charge over again and louder, and after so many shouts a lot of minds will be thinking about Huston's raw deal.

* * * *

ROBINSON is constituted perfectly for his task. Nothing that is ever said to him makes him angry, it seems. Whatever you may call him, whatever you may charge him with, he shouts, "You're another," and goes right ahead.

He is a hard man to handle because of that. You can't get a hold on a man, you can't stop a man who does not respond to the ordinary feelings of men. And Robinson's is a rhinoceros hide. The Democrats fear him, which is, of course, a tribute in the political world.

Highlights of the War

As Related by Veterans Themselves

Not to the M. P.s?

After our division took over a sector in Alsace our 167th (Alabama) Infantry Regiment became very active in making raids, patrols, &c., much to the chagrin of the Germans, who had long counted this a "quiet sector" in mutual agreement with the French troops.

One morning an Alabama patrol found this sign in No Man's Land: "Good morning, Alabam.' This way to Berlin."

Next morning a German patrol found a sign with these words: "Give up. The war belongs to Alabama."

Painting With Iodine

Capt. A. M. O'Brien, a noted surgeon from Sharon, Pa., wealthy, past middle age, a confirmed bachelor, quick of wit and dry of humor, was transferred to the D. C. Organization in France. After having performed a number of serious as well as successful surgical operations under great difficulties, his reputation gradually spread, until the best surgeons at the base hospitals, were sent up to the front to observe his work.

Upon one of these occasions when Capt. O'Brien was performing one of the most serious operations that I saw him do (as I watched him in practically every one), and I was holding a light for him to see what he was doing, I had become so absorbed that I had eventually gotten between him and the patient. He finally straightened up and asked me if I liked the job that he was doing and if I could see o. k. Upon being informed that I could see all right, in his dry way he replied that he was "having quite a job" himself.

The next day he was still chuckling when I saw him.

Happy Returns!

Just eleven years ago today, April 5, we were stationed at LeMans, and it happened to be my birthday. The preceding night I had decided that I would celebrate, and made a bet of $10 with the top sergeant that he wouldn't get any work out of me on my birthday.

I had been detailed to the rifle range, where it would be easy to do some "gold-bricking," but the "top" put over a fast one by having the captain take me off this detail and assign me to K. P.

The night of the 4th I spent playing "Black Jack" and poker with some of the boys who didn't know what to do with the "beaucoup" French francs they had assembled on payday—and from the uninitiated of other outfits. Anyway, luck was with me, and I finally retired with about $1,100 in winnings. Can you imagine me working while I was in possession of such wealth—particularly on my birthday? But I reported to the kitchen at the appointed time, where I found the lieutenant in charge was one with whom I was acquainted, as he came from Ridge Springs, S. C. While explaining my case to him, and getting his excuse from duty, a sergeant came up with the information that an M. P. lieutenant wanted to see me.

Wondering what it was all about I followed the sergeant, and discovered the M. P. lieutenant to be my brother, whom I hadn't seen in three years. We were enjoying a pleasant confab when interrupted by the arrival of the company mail, which included thirteen boxes of home-made cake, candy and other things from home, and a letter with a money order for $100.

I should explain for the benefit of wondering buddies that I had relatives in England, to whom packages were sent from the United States and subsequently forwarded to me, thus avoiding the embargo on packages to individual American soldiers from the States.

While busy opening packages and sampling their contents, a runner came down to my quarters with the information that I had been granted a fourteen-day pass to England. . . . "Happy Birthday"—and ten bucks from the top-kick.

JOHN L. CLERC,
109th Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division. National Capital Post, V. F. W.

(Editor's note: Keeping in mind the date, here's another buck for you on this birthday.)

Pass, Foe!

While in an infantry company at Camp Lee I remember the first night I did guard duty. Along about 2 a. m. I heard some one coming across the stubble field. When he got within earshot I said, "Halt! Who goes there, friend or foe?" To my surprise I heard "Foe!" After recovering somewhat from my astonishment, I said, more to reassure myself than anything else, "Did you say 'friend or foe?'" The answer came back loud and distinct: "FOE! I'm an M. P." Keeping the shadow I saw covered, I then said, "Advance, and give the password," not wishing to call the Corporal of the Guard for one so clever. When he had come near enough, I saw it was one of the boys from the company who had been over-indulgent. How he ever got into camp after 12 o'clock is still a mystery to me. After recognizing him, I showed him the bunk house, telling him to make a bee line for that and not to stop until he got there. Naturally, I was anxious until I saw the bunk house door close behind him. Later I was transferred to the M. P.'s.

Another Paul Revere

While waiting for orders to move up to meet the much rumored drive to be inaugurated by the Germans, I noticed a tall Negro soldier walking a post in most correct military style. Attracted by his appearance and manner, I remarked, "Well, big boy, you look as though you could stop a whole German regiment."

With a most worried look on his face he paused and then replied: "Stop 'em? H—l! I'm gwine to notify ev'ybody in France dey is COMIN'."

CAPITAL PARK BILL REPORTED IN SENATE

Plan to Kill Private River Develoment Included in Measure.

GRANT WINS NEW ROUND

who explained that it not only would clarify the bridge situation but would guard the rights of the Great Falls Bridge Co.

This company was authorized by the last Congress to build a toll bridge at Great Falls, and is about to start construction. Under the terms of the Glass amendment, the Federal Government would indemnify this company for whatever money it has expended or will expend in the future.

The motion to approve the bill was made by Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, and was seconded by Senator Kean (Republican), of New Jersey. It then was carried by the unanimous vote of Chairman Capper, Senator Glass and Senator Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina.

A request by the District Commissioners that they be allowed to pass on the purchase of recreational centers within the District was disapproved by the committee after Col. Grant had declared that this would give the Commissioners a virtual veto power over the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Consultation Is Required.

On the motion of Senator Copeland, it was provided that the Park and Planning Commission be required to consult with the Commissioners before buying such sites, but this doesn't mean anything, inasmuch as such a practice already is in vogue.

The Capper-Cramton bill calls for a great George Washington memorial parkway, stretching from Mount Vernon to Great Falls on the Virginia side of the Potomac, and from Fort Washington to Great Falls on the Maryland side.

For it the Federal Government would pay half and Maryland and Virginia would pay the other half.

Amendments to the bill approved yesterday provide as follows: To take over the old Patowmack Canal that George Washington built; eliminates the proviso requiring donors of land to donate it in fee simple; gives Maryland eight instead of five years to match Federal loans; vests in Maryland instead of the United States the title to land for which the State pays two-thirds of the cost.

Representative Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, author of the bill, yesterday went to the defense of Col. Grant in the latter's row with Maj. Somervell. He declared that Maj. Somervell's "latest outburst" was unfair to Col. Grant.

NORRIS WINS FIGHT ON MUSCLE SHOALS

of Oklahoma, Wash of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana, and Wheeler—26.

Farmer Labor: Shipstead—1. Total, 45.

Against — Democrats: Steck, Tydings—2.

Republicans: Allen, Baird, Dale, Fess, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Hale, Hebert, Kean, McCulloch, Metcalf, Oddie, Phipps, Shortridge, Smoot, Sullivan, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, and Watson—21. Total, 23.

The Muscle Shoals project, erected during the war for the development of nitrogen to be used in manufacture of explosives, consists of a huge dam and two nitrate plants on the Tennessee River in Alabama.

The Norris resolution would put this under the control of a Government corporation to be directed by three men named by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The combined salaries of a general manager and two assistants would be fixed at $50,000 annually.

The corporation would be directed to operate the nitrate plants for the production of nitrogen and also to conduct elaborate experiments in the production of nitrogen. The Cove Creek dam would be used as a reservoir for the Muscle Shoals power project.

The Government corporation would have full power to sell all surplus power generated at the Muscle Shoals and Cove Creek dams with the stipulation that States and municipalities be given preference.

A new provision in this bill would allow Alabama 5 per cent of the proceeds from the sale of Muscle Shoals power and Tennessee 5 per cent of the proceeds from the gross returns on sale of power at Cove Creek.

Senator Vandenberg severely denounced this proposal but Senator Norris defended it on the ground that it would compensate the States for taxes that would be paid if the property were privately operated.

No proposal was advanced during the debate for a lease of the Muscle Shoals to private industry.

Tardieu Reported Better.

Paris, April 4 (A.P.).—Premier Tardieu was said today to have had a comfortable night. He probably will rest today and save his strength to attend at the Senate tomorrow when the Young plan ratification may be fought out. He was taken suddenly ill yesterday.

Structural Labor Parley Deadlocked

Former Gov. Alfred Smith Is Arbitrator in Steel Fight.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Representatives of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers and of the Structural Steel Board of Trade, an open-shop employers' organization, spent five hours today in the office of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, but failed to come to an agreement by which he had hoped to avert a threatened strike.

"The differences which they were discussing have existed for 25 years," the former governor said after the meeting had ended, "and both sides are starting out anew."

One fact that held up the possibility of an agreement was that the board of trade representatives were without authority to negotiate. They have promised to notify Mr. Smith as soon as they have consulted their board of directors.

Young Envoys To Take Over Fine Residence

Studio Apartment Will Be Occupied by Italians.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WHEN the retiring first secretary of the Italian embassy, Signor Leonardo Vitetti, leaves Washington tomorrow, his studio apartment at 2633 Fifteenth street, will be taken over by his successor, Count Guido Roncalli di Montorio, and Signor Adriano Monaco, who has recently arrived to serve as second secretary. Thus the tradition which has made this pleasant group of studio apartments a center for the bachelor diplomats, will be carried on, for Mr. L. G. Van Hoorn, counselor of the Netherlands legation, is already a resident at 2633 Fifteenth street, and so is Mr. Andre Cattani, attache of the Egyptian legatioin.

The establishment which Count Roncalli and Signor Monaco are to share, as Signor Vitetti shared it once with Count Pio Macchi di Cellere and later with Signor Carlo Andrea Soardi, is really two apartments, each with spacious living room and sleeping quarters and each opening on a balcony connecting by a graceful stairway with an enormous studio in the Italian style and boasting a great stone fireplace.

In fact, the whole building is Italian in architecture and in interior decoration, so it is with rather a sense of surprise that one enters Mr. van Hoorn's big studio room, for this is done entirely in the Japanese manner. It boasts hangings of oriental embroideries, magnificent Japanese screens, with mats, cushions, low tables and gleaming braziers as the only furniture. These were collected by Mr. van Hoorn while he was on duty in Tokyo—at the same time, by the way, that the French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, was serving as Ambassador to Japan. Mr. van Hoorn's home is a duplex apartment, with the big studio room above and a library and living quarters below. These rooms are Italian in their decorations and boast many fine antique pieces.

In Mr. Cattaui's apartment are hung many of the charming pastels and sketches, which have won him a gratifying reputation in Washington as an artist. This gifted young attache of the Egyptian Legation, who is in New York to remain until Monday, is also a violinist of no mean attainments and has organized a small chamber music orchestra with which he plays quite regularly.

Count Roncalli is also an artist and musician. He is said to "play the piano divinely" and should be a genuine acquisition to the younger group of diplomats. It will be remembered that Count Roncalli's engagement to Donna Antoinetta Conestabile della Staffa was announced just before he left Italy for Washington. He will return to Rome in the summer to be married.

When Signor Vitetti and Count Pio Macchi di Cellere were living in the apartment which Count Roncalli and Signor Monaco are to have, it was beautifully fitted out, for both young men own a good deal of fine early Italian furniture, rare hangings and whatnot. It is said that Signor Vitetti is taking 28 trunks with him when he sails for home, bound for duty in the foreign office in Rome, 18 of them filled with books and others with bibelots, pictures and embroideries.

Rules and Regulations
Governing Final Period of Campaign
As a matter of caution, and to guard against the possibility of loss to candidates through misunderstanding during these last days of the campaign, final instructions are herewith appended, which should be observed. All candidates, especially those who live in the outside districts, should read and weigh every line carefully.

(1) All remittances mailed from now on should be mailed special delivery to insure their reaching us in time. If you live outside of Washington and intend to mail subscriptions take the precaution to find out what time your postoffice closes, also obtain all possible information as to train service on the railroad which will carry your mail to the campaign office the last day of the campaign, April 5.
(2) You are allowed the privilege of mailing your subscriptions up to Saturday, April 5, 9 p. m. These subscriptions must reach the campaign office by Tuesday noon, April 8, and show a postmark of having been mailed on or before 9 p. m., April 5. The Washington Post will not be responsible for any mail, even though properly postmarked, which fails to arrive within the specified time.
(3) All remittances should be carefully addressed to the Campaign Manager, Washington Post, Washington, D. C. This will assure absolute accuracy and will prevent any of them from going astray.
(4) Examine your official voting ballots carefully and see that the correct number of votes have been issued on same. Pay particular attention to "second payments" and be sure that the proper votes have been issued. If there are any corrections notify the Campaign Manager in person or in writing and proper corrections will be made. The Campaign Department will not be responsible for clerical errors unless notification is given, after which correction will be made.
(5) UNDER NO CONDITION WILL VOTES BE TRANSFERRED FROM ONE CANDIDATE TO ANOTHER. THIS IS AN ABSOLUTE RULE, AND WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED.
(6) Be sure and mark your subscriptions properly, Old or New. Be sure they are marked correctly. Every subscription is verified and switching will only result in regret and disappointment.
(7) "Second payments" must be marked as such on the remittance sheet which is sent to the Campaign Department. Also give the amount of the first payment and the name of the candidate obtaining the first payment, if other than yourself.
(8) All remittances sent in after Monday, March 31, must be either postal money order, express money order, certified checks or drafts, excepting the individual checks of subscribers.
(9) Absolutely no subscription money will be refunded. If you don't receive prompt acknowledgment of remittances you send in during the last few days of the campaign notify the Campaign Department immediately.
(10) Only bona fide subscriptions will be accepted. No sums of money will be accepted, the names of subscribers to be supplied later. All remittances should be accompanied by the usual remittance sheets, properly filled out with the amounts.
(11) On the last day of the campaign the campaign staff will be unable to serve any contestant in any way other than by answering questions pertaining to subscriptions, second payments, &c. Contestants must have their subscriptions properly listed on remittance sheets, taking care that these sheets are properly balanced in relation to the amount of money necessary to cover subscriptions listed. Contestants will then seal their final remittances in envelopes provided for that purpose, personally dropping them in sealed and locked ballot box. Thus no one but the candidate in person will know the amount of final remittances until the auditors break the seal and start the final count.

This work may occupy several days, but all contestants will be properly notified of the awards, date and place of presentation. Every candidate is urged to read carefully the rules and regulations which appear to the left of this column. THESE RULES ARE FINAL AND ABSOLUTE. In case of any misunderstanding communicate immediately with the campaign manager, either by calling at his office on the fifth floor of The Post Building or by phoning National 4205, Extension 60.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE second hotel radio system in Washington will be installed this month in the new Miramar Apartment Hotel, at Fifteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. It will be similar to the one in the Ambassador Hotel, at Fourteenth and K streets northwest, which was the first of its kind in the Capital.

"The Ambassador Hotel centralized radio installation," said Uriel Davis, of New York, who put in the system used in the Ambassador and to be installed in the Miramar, "has performed an outstanding feat, in that it has not required servicing since it was turned on. The grief of the amplifying business is the necessity for regular servicing."

Like the Ambassador, the Miramar will page its guests by radio instead of using bell boys.

A meeting will be held within the next few days by those who broadcast the baseball games locally last season in an effort to work out a plan which will avoid duplication in the broadcasting of games this year. Listeners complained much about repetition last year.

ALTHOUGH he is absolute in radio control, it will be about as rare an event for Gen. Saltzman, who will introduce Katsumi Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, tomorrow afternoon, to be heard over the air as the ambassador.

Broadcasters are continually trying to curry favor with radio officials by endeavoring to get them to speak over their stations, but this will be the general's first appearance since he became Radio Commissioner.

Whoever the announcer is in the above hour, he had better watch his step, for, in addition to what Gen. Saltzman, our own radio lord high executioner, might do to him, the Japanese do not take announcers' mistakes lightly.

Recently at Station JOAK, in Tokyo, an announcer's tongue slipped when he announced the arrival of a boy instead of a girl in the royal family.

Not only was the announcer instantly dismissed, but every executive of the broadcasting station was punished and, according to reports, the station came very nearly being closed down.

BE sure to begin reading about the private life of "Amos 'n' Andy" in the tabloid magazine of The Sunday Post tomorrow.

Second prize was awarded this week to Henrietta B. Baer, of Emergency Hospital, for the best letter describing home birthday parties held in connection with the American Home Banquet broadcasts.

The grand finale of the interscholastic basket ball tournament in Chicago will be described through WRC by Bill Munday from Chicago University courts at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Musical shows of the stage and talking screen, with the original stars in the title roles, will be brought to the microphone from San Francisco studios by the Del Monte fruit packers each week, beginning tonight.

Following the "Amos 'n' Andy" arrangement, the feature will be put on for WRC and Eastern stations at 8:30 o'clock and again later in the evening for the Pacific network. Bebe Daniels will sing her "Rio Rita" role in the premiere.

O. B. HANSON, chief of plant and operation of the National Broadcasting Co. in New York, has been down here looking things over. It may mean that they are thinking about doing something with regard to bolstering up the WRC haywire transmitting equipment.

From Wireless World, London:

A listener who has ceased to be thrilled by the "Surprise Items" has suggested that the British Broadcasting Corporation should give us a surprise in the form of fifteen minutes silence.

This recalls a reply recently sent by the Glasgow station to Savoy Hill, London, in answer to an instruction that silence was to be observed during a certain interval in a forthcoming program.

"Righto," said Glasgow, "and shall we use our silence or yours?"

Jane Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

Novel screens furnish the color note to several settings. (Says Dare).

Paris, April 4.

YOU wouldn't think much about screens and cushions and things like that, unless all of a sudden you were urged to give your living quarters a few touches of spring newness. Then you might decide on screens to furniah the decorative note—a screen for the telephone, one to set behind a bowl of flowers, and one for the nursery to screen off that possible draft on Petite Adorable's bed.

Then you would go out and price them and come back with a thoughtful look on your face. They are expensive, aren't they? But then they are rather worth it, for their decorative possibilities, and besides, with a little practice Clever Fingers can make her own.

Of course, there's something more to making a good-looking screen than just putting a piece of this and that together. You have to know what you are putting together, and then it has to be planned and designed before you put it together at all. To make really nice screens, you mustn't hesitate to call in the assistance of a carpenter for such things as the hinges—even so your screen won't be nearly as expensive as a ready made one.

Like everything else that you make at home, careful planning beforehand and execution will do the trick.

• • • •

So we made a lot of screens for our studio, 'n then we made you an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make them for yourself. There's a darling screen for baby's nursery made of oilcloth, a novel way to make screens to set behind flowers and in front of lamps that look like Japanese lacquer—and oh, a lot of others! Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make them. Some day you may want to make screens, even if you don't want to this spring.

• • • •

Silk voile has replaced georgette in smartness, who cares? Silk voile is nice, of course, and then it's new and we have had a let of crepe georgette these many seasons. Still I'm not going to throw away any crepe georgette for a while. But if you're out buying a new material for a spring dress, better ask to see some silk voile rather than crepe georgette.

I don't think, however, the silk voile can ever replace the crepe georgette for lingerie, because at least as far as I have been able to discover it does not launder as well and as often.

• • • •

Last day in which you can send your stamped, self-addressed envelope for the leaflet telling you how to make delightful dress collars and cuffs for giving the one supreme touch to your new dresses.

• • • •

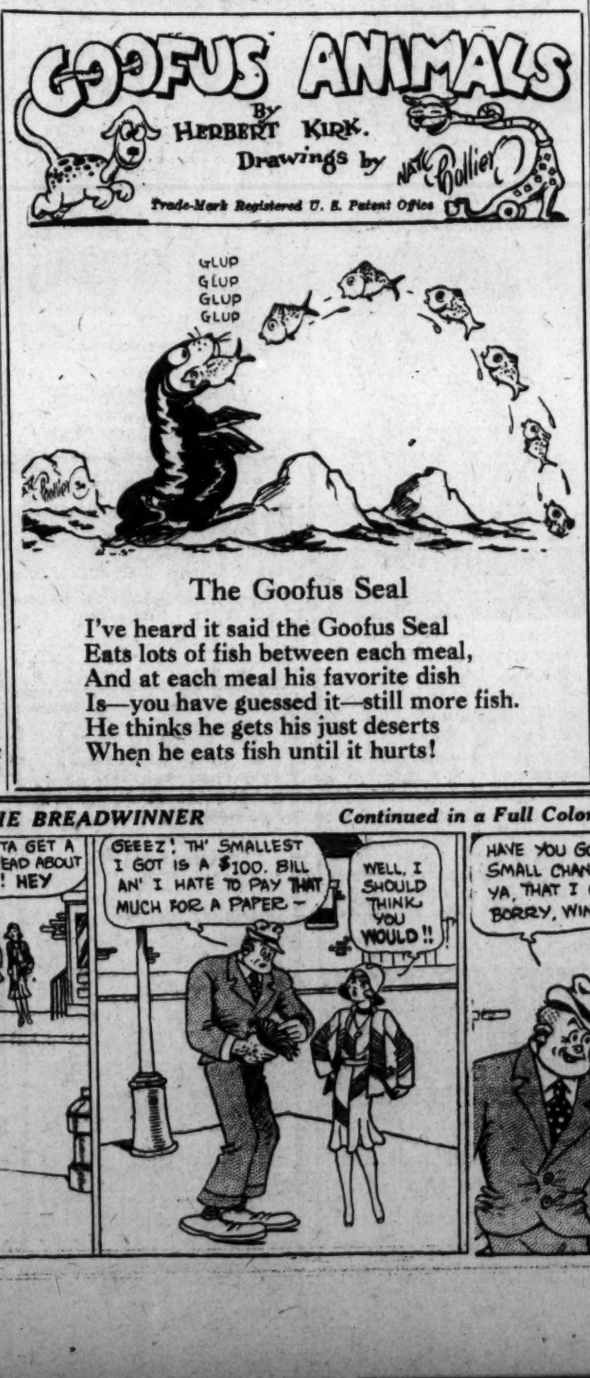
And then there are the adorable evening jackets of mesh threads, silver threads and brilliants that look exactly like one of those mesh coin purses which we thought there was a day we couldn't live without. They are made of paillettes or brilliants held together at fairly spaced intervals by the threads, and, of course, quite show the gown underneath. And you've no idea what variety and smartness they do give to a plain black or pastel colored frock either!

• • • •

And tomorrow's the day for the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's in the big Sunday Post in the usual place. You ought to look for it!

Au revoir!

Baby Mine



The Goofus Seal

I've heard it said the Goofus Seal
Eats lots of fish between each meal,
And at each meal his favorite dish
Is—you have guessed it—still more fish.
He thinks he gets his just deserts
When he eats fish until it hurts!

With NELSON B. BELL

THROUGH the courtesy of a valued correspondent residing at 2817 Eighteenth street northwest, I have come into possession of a comparatively recent copy of the London (England) Daily Mail, in which an unnamed and unidentified writer goes on at great length upon the subject of the American motion picture and what probably will have to be done about it to make it a success.

An amused perusal of the extensive screed forces a reluctant conclusion that the author's only qualification for the performance of his task was a complete and abysmal ignorance of the American motion picture. His views, however, no doubt reflect what is deemed in England an especially erudite grasp of conditions existing 3,000 miles away.

I quote briefly:

"The expression 'film-face' has passed into the language. The industry has already recognized the value of the microphone voice in the person (sic) of all those 'doubles' who have been employed to mouth the words of the celebrated stars who were beautiful yet dumb.

"Presently there will be the 'film-voice.'

"But that happy consummation is much more likely to be achieved in England than in the confused welter of Hollywood, where pulchritude of face and figure has hitherto been the one essential to film fame."

(This, I take it, accounts for the presence in Hollywood of most of the distinguished English actors whose services seem not to be in vast demand in their homeland where the real progress is to be made.)

"Hollywood never—or very slowly—learns."

(And this, of course, explains England's supremacy in the production of screen entertainment and America's hopeless failure.)

There are a great many kindred observations, but the gem of the whole lusty tirade seems to me to be the inspired and complete identification of Gloria Swanson.

"She hails from Sweden, and in the days before she broke into the films she was an operatic singer."

That is wholly correct, barring the minor considerations that Miss Swanson was born in Chicago and before breaking into the films was a high school girl in San Juan, Porto Rico. Her operatic training consisted of studying drawing at the Art Institute in her native city.

Hail Britannia!

About it's being a small world, I wouldn't know; but the movie orbit certainly isn't so big.

Who pops into the office no more than a minute ago than our old friend Ace Berry, formerly managing director for years of the Circle Theater in Indianapolis, Ind., where he was succeeded by Allan Glenn, the lad with two first names, to assume control of the same interests' larger venture, the Indiana Theater, in the same city. Now Ace is territorial manager for R-K-O with headquarters in Washington, whench he will distribute himself, from time to time, over Maryland, Pennsylvania and other nearby bailiwicks.

Whoever handed Mr. Berry his initial monicker knew something!

It strikes this column that there is not much to quibble about in the award of first acting prizes for 1929 to Warner Baxter, for his portrayal of the Cisco Kid in "In Old Arizona," and Mary Pickford, for her first all-talking performance in the title role of "Coquette." Both were exceptional delineations.

Regarding the directors, art directors, musical shows, etc., I might beg to differ, but, again, not in a thousand years with the award of the writing honors to Hans Kraly for his script for Emil Jannings' "The Patriot." I might even go along with "The Broadway Melody" decision if they had not made a full orchestra strike up from the empty bathroom of the sister-act's modest hotel apartment.

Nevertheless, by and large, this way and that, the art awards this year were pretty shrewdly contrived and appropriately allotted—a circumstance that has not always seemed to be true.

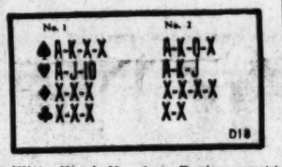
They tell me that making your own in the bathtub doesn't cost anything like $30,000 a year!

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

In Contract the bidding of four-card suits is a recognized feature, and at times it is most advisable to make an original bid of two with a four-carder. When this happens and the partner jumps, it is always possible that the jumper has but three cards of the suit and the adversaries have six; and in such case there is great probability that one adversary will have as many trumps as the Declarer's long hand—possibly more — which would be awkward.

It is advisable, therefore, whenever an original four-card suit-bid of one or two is jumped to three by the partner, for the holder of the four-carder to bid three No Trumps instead of jumping to four of the suit, thereby showing that the initial bid was a four-carder. To illustrate:



With Hand No. 1 a Dealer would bid one Spade, and with No. 2 the bid would be two Spades. Supposing that in either case the next adversary should pass and the partner of the Dealer should jump to three Spades; with a pass from the adversary on the right, Dealer then should bid three No Trumps, not four Spades. This would be a cue to the partner to bid four Spades if he had made his jump with four Spades, but not to do so if the jump had been made with three and the partner should jump to three, it would be advisable for the original bidder to name the other major rather than No Trump because of the danger (for a No Trump) produced by the holding of the worthless singleton.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

If the original bid had been made with some such hand as:

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m

There will be a tendency to take things easy on this date. Progress made in educational and scientific fields—mental growth. A happy time socially and domestically. Few ill winds blowing.

The child born on this April 5 will have a bright, hopeful and cheerful nature. It will have a logical mind and a flare for law work. It will have its own way of doing things and will do better if left on its own. It will be conscientious, truthful and honest.

From early childhood on, you have not been a helpless creature. You are capable to the very finger tips, and full of common sense. In many ways you dare be independent where others do not. In choosing your friends, you pay no attention to society's inconsistency in regard to who are the right people and who are the wrong people—if you find them amusing, sympathetic or interesting. You are not hampered through the fear of what some one else may say or think, and you dare to behave as you choose. You follow your own codes of honor and duty. You will not follow the popular course of the herd, if it does not suit your fancy.

You do not lack reverence for those things in life which really count, and you are capable of exhibiting a great deal of sentiment. You have too many hobbies and too many interests external to yourself to brood or worry. You do not know what self-pity is, but you do knew how to pity others. Your strength and your sympathies are always being taxed by the weak and troubled. Your life is one of service and your rewards are happiness and contentment. You dare to be "individual," and you have the courage of your convictions.

Successful people born April 5:

1—Elihu Yale, philanthropist, after whom Yale College was named.

2—Jonas Chickering, manufacturer of Chickering piano.

3—Frank R. Stockton; author and humorist.

4—John T. Raymond, comedian.

5—Albert of Belgium, king.

6—Lord Lister.

LOITERING Along FASHION LANE

BY THE SAUNTERER

I BELIEVE that style news frequently absorbed is so important to the man who has a penchant for correct grooming that I make it a practice to take my weekly stroll along Fashion Lane with the same earnestness and interest that I devote to my readings of financial news and my gleanings of happenings in the digest of news events.

Fashion Lane skirts the aisles of The Hecht Co. Men's Shops. Its panamora of apparel information lays me in good stead in keeping me posted on "what's what" in the fashion world. And tells me a new and fascinating story each week. For, you know, things develop rapidly and refreshingly in the passing parade of men's appareling.

For instance, take this matter of color in men's suits . . . and color is very important this season. Society Brand sends four new colors . . . Star-Dust Blue, Silver Grey, Desert Tan and Maple Brown. As developed in the famous Staunchley worsted suits they are becoming to any man. New two-button models with military shoulders and slim waists . . . or the elegant double breasted. And $50 is a really reasonable figure for such a fine suit. Society Brand topcoats that go well with the suits are $50, too.

Second Floor, The Hecht Co.

Sheldon Hats, too, have a color complex. The Sheldon Coriscan, a prime favorite, show the tans, greys and browns harmonious with your springtime suit. A dashing note is given by the narrow snap brim. Another hat that is "taking" rapidly is the Sheldon Corporal, a welt edge hat, in the new Naples blue shade . . . which caused a furore when it was first introduced by The Hecht Co. $5.

Main Floor, The Hecht Co.

Trojan Ties in foulards are coming strong. Mostly in small designs or conventional figures. Blues with self figures. Scarlet . . . tan . . . green . . . canary . . . copen . . . all with self-colored patterns. If you would have a smart tie to contrast or harmonize with your spring attire wear one of these. $2.

Main Floor, The Hecht Co.

Manhattan collar-attached shirts have never before shown such popularity among well-dressed men. In keeping with their belated appeal to men who are really fussy Manhattan presents the button-down collar with the button accurately placed to insure the precise set of the collar. In white English broadcloth. $2.50 The Hecht Co. also has a complete line of the newest spring styles in Manhattan shirts . . . plain colors, whites and fancies. $2 to $5.

Main Floor, The Hecht Co.

In this age of good living it's rather hard to get a shoe that is at the same time comfortable and really good looking. Both are taken care of by the new Packard Arch-Aid Shoes. This particular model is called the Barclay. Built on a British custom last with a well-balanced spring toe, widening out comfortably at the ball. Narrow heel makes for a snug-fitting instep, all of which allows one to take his customary 18,000 steps a day in absolute comfort. In black or brown calf. Sizes 6 to 11. $10.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIETING FOR TEETH'S SAKE.

IF a tooth is ridged horizontally the probable cause is vitamin deficiency. Along with the two or three coarse horizontal ridges there are likely to be lengthwise striping and ridging and some tendency to fine saw-edge on certain teeth.

Since the crowns of the first teeth begin to form about midway of pregnancy, the way to prevent this kind of ridging in this set of teeth is to have the prospective mother eat foods rich in vitamins. The crowns of the permanent teeth started forming during fetal life. Therefore, the diet of the mother influences them also. They continue forming during babyhood and the preschool age. Therefore, the diet of babies and young children should contain the proper vitamins. The vitamins necessary for this kind of protection are A and D. The minerals needed are lime and phosphorus. Among the articles of diet and the medicines which supply these vitamins and minerals are milk, cheese, butter, cod liver oil and viosterol. This by no means completes the list.

The principal cause of tooth decay is now generally thought to be vitamin and mineral deficiency. However, there is not complete agreement as to which is the more important protective vitamin. There are those who think vitamin D holds that position. The bulk of opinion, however, now is that vitamin C ranks first. Among those who support the vitamin C contention there is again some division of opinion. For example, Dr. Arnold is disposed to hold that the value of orange juice and other vitamin C foods is the fact that they are all alkaline ash foods, and that this latter quality is the factor which prevents decay. Since this alkaline ash quality is more stable, it is not easily destroyed by keeping, heating or drying, and since the list of foods high in alkaline ash ingredients is much longer than that of the vitamin C foods, it should be easier and cheaper to diet a child than is the case with the vitamin C plan.

While dieting to prevent horizontal ridging applies particularly to expectant mothers and young babies, that to prevent decay extends more to children out of babyhood.

DRAFTS AND COLDS.

G. writes: The one and only male in our office of ten girls is a fresh air fiend who insists that no one can catch a cold by sitting in a draft. We have all decided to make you the judge and advise us whether or not this is so.

REPLY:

Sitting in a draft or getting the feet cold is an important contributing cause of acute coryza called common colds. Doubtless this disease is an infection, but the contributing causes are important. Some people harden themselves until they are not harmed by sitting in drafts. Others are very susceptible.

This is as far as I dare to go in this civil war.

GOSLIN'S HOMER AIDS NATS TO ROUT BARONS, 6-0

PRIMO'S GOAL 200 OR BUST, PERHAPS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Call it depravity if you will, but I have been strangely fascinated by the gall of the sportsmen in charge of Primo Carnera, who have been going about the country rousing out such a succession of scuffed-up bums and paralytics as William Stribling, himself, never had the effrontry to assault. I find myself entering into the spirit of the thing.

It is something like the fascination which the winter league golfers exert on the newspapers when they are touring the Southern boarding-house country, creating new course records on mashie-pitch meadows, day after day. One realizes that they are phony records, but, phony or genuine, records are records, and, in Primo's case, my early qualms have vanished and I envision a record of 100 consecutive knockouts.

Of course, if this be sport, then any dog-poisoner may join the society of nimrods and exhibit the pelts of the poodles and Boston bulls which he has brought down with ground glass and arsenic, as proud as any gunner with a moose, a rhino or a Kadiac bear. Records are records and kills are kills.

Might Copy Names Off Head-stones.

In certain instances in the monster's gory progress across the land I have suspected his managers of copying names off headstones with which to extend his record of consecutive knockouts, like local census-takers in ambitious towns, but on close inquiry have been assured that, in each case, he actually did face and beat down the unfortunate named in the overnight dispatches from out along the line.

There was a certain element of cheer in this, for it was pleasant to learn of old friends, who used to lurch and stagger and presently go booming to the boards, all sweaty and heaving and powdered a cadaverous gray with the resin, that they were not dead in the coroner's understanding of the word, but merely defunct.

At this writing Primo has knocked out thirteen accompanists, most of them truants from various homes for the aged and infirm, including some who never did win a fight so far as my knowledge goes, even when they were young. I feel a morbid desire to further his campaign by suggesting others who would subside with no more reluctance and so have prepared a list of time-tried and certified palookas, confident that none of them would embarrass him as Ace Clark did in Philadelphia on a recent evening.

Ace Clark Repents For Rudeness.

It comes to me that Ace Clark belongs to Mr. Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the celebrated character, and that Primo took the ring expecting to be detained not more than two rounds. But, I am further told that the referee suspected some sordidness and warned Ace Clark that he must come up for round three or stand suspected of acquiescence. Consequently, Mr. Hoff's tearing tiger was forced to intrude upon Primo's time beyond the customary limit, and, in round 3, had the very bad taste to fetch the visiting athlete a hearty swat on his left eye.

Some persons excused this tactless pass on the ground that the Ace was merely swinging his arms to keep warm, insisting that Primo should have remembered to duck. From others, I have heard that swing described as a treacherous and deliberately unfriendly act. At any rate, Primo puffs easily, and by the time the round ended, that side of his face had taken on the blue iridescence of a hot-house grape and the eye bulged out like a baseball in a man's vest pocket.

The referee, a sensitive man, then wished to stop the contest to save Primo, and great was the excitement in both corners of the ring as Carnera's sportsmen pleaded for one more round. This being granted, the Ace made a graceful amend for his rudeness, going quietly and resolutely to the canvas, and Primo Carnera had knocked out another.

Obvious Faux-pas in Six-round Adventure.

I have no wish to question the relations or the state of understanding between Primo's sportsmen and Mr. Hoff. Primo's chief sportsman is regularly engaged in the refreshment trade on Broadway, N. Y., and Mr. Hoff has similar interests on Broad street, Philadelphia, only 90 miles away. In their character as refreshment magnates, they doubtless regard one another as colleagues and social companions, but I would not suggest that such considerations could possibly affect the outcome of a contest between their respective slashing demons of the squared circle.

However, there obviously was a faux pas somewhere in this startling adventure of Primo's, and this sort of thing should never be allowed to happen again. Moreover, it will not happen if he will permit me to place in nomination a list of chaps, culled from memory, of a thousand preliminaries and training camp bouts and from the professional records of William Stribling, James J. Tunney, Luis Angel Firpo and Tommy Gibbons.

G. U. Defeats Cornell by 9-3 Score

Three Hilltop Double Plays Feature 7th Straight Win.

Noznesky Is Wild But Effective; Mooney Hits Homer.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

PLAYING brilliant afield and hitting at opportune moments, Georgetown University's baseball team ran its winning streak to seven games yesterday when it defeated the Cornell Nine, 9 to 3, on the Washington Barracks diamond. Besides receiving errorless support from his mates, Pitcher Harry Noznesky was aided by three scintillating double plays by the Hilltop, each ending an inning, and the final being the closing play of the game.

Walter Dunn, at shortstop, was the initiator of all three twin killings, each time tossing to Scalzi at second, who completed the play with a throw to Mooney at first.

Touched for only six hits, Noznesky nevertheless himself paved the way for the scoring of all three enemy runs, each score being the result of a free transportation to first accorded the batter by the Blue and Gray twirler. With two gone in the fifth, Noznesky walked Handleman, and when Moon's bounder took a bad hop over Wholey's head for a double, the runner completed the circuit. Again in the seventh the New Yorkers scored twice when their first two batters were granted walks, a single and a filder's choice turning the passes into runs.

McCarthy and Dunn Lead Attack.

With Capt. McCarthy and Dunn leading the attack against Boies, the submarine twirler of the visitors, with three hits, and Phil Mooney breaking into the limelight with a long home-run, Georgetown took the lead with two runs in the opening inning and was never headed. Cornell's two-run flurry in the seventh came within one of tying the home team, but the Blue and Gray widened the gap with two more in its half of the lucky frame, and put the game on ice with three more in the eighth.

Aided by three enemy errors, Georgetown scored twice in the opening frame on as many hits and a walk. McCarthy singled through the box, took second on the pitcher's wild throw to first and advanced to third when Dunn beat out a bunt to the pitcher. On a double steal, McCarthy scored when the second baseman let Catcher Heye's peg get through him in an attempt to flag Dunn at second, the latter pulling up at third. When Habicht threw short on Wholey's grounder, Dunn scored.

A triple by McCarthy in the fourth scoring Nozesky, and Mooney's homer in the fifth were the other outstanding features of the victory.

Mart Flanagan Chosen 1930 G. U. Golf Captain

Mart Flanagan, of Riverhead, Long Island, was elected captain of the Georgetown University Golf Team yesterday for the 1930 season.

Flanagan, a senior at Georgetown, has played on the Blue and Gray team for the past two years, and has ranked No. 2 in that same period of time, second only to Maurice McCarthy, intercollegiate golf champion.

Montgomery County Nines Join Capital City Group

Ten Teams Vote to Play in Three-Section Race; Plans for League Battles to Be Made at Post Next Friday.

THE Montgomery County Baseball League, hotbed of diamond rivalry, has decided to affiliate with the Capital City League this season. This action was taken last night at a meeting of the nearby Maryland circuit held at Rockville.

This is the first step in the three-cornered race that the Capital City League has planned for this season which will divide the circuit in Maryland, District and Virgina sectons with the winners meeting in a play-off for the championship.

Managers of the ten Montgomery County clubs were present last night and voted to hold another meeting next Friday night at The Washington Post Sports Department, at which time rules and regulations will be drafted. A member of each club has been named to the committee, which also includes R. J. Atkinson, secretary of the Capital City League.

Indications are that another sensational pennant race will develop in the Montgomery circuit, especially with the added incentive of competing for the championship of the other two sections. Teams represented last night were: Damascus, Silver Spring Giants, Takoma Tigers, Rockville A. A., Dickerson, Chevy Chase Grays, Friendship, eBthesda, Kensington Firemen and Kensington National Guards.

C. U. DEFEATS VERMONT, 8 TO 4

Hurley Turns in 2d Straight Win; Ten Errors Made.

COMBINING timely hits with their foes' frequent miscues behind the steady pitching of Lou Hurley, the Catholic University Nine turned in its third win in as many starts yesterday afternoon in Brookland Stadium at the expense of the University of Vermont Catamounts, 8 to 4. Ten errors marred the fray, but sparkling plays were almost as numerous.

Although Hurley yielded nine safeties and his mates placed him in trouble several times, the Northerners were unable to concentrate their offensive power. Johnny Oliver's home-run drive into deep left and the fielding of McKay and Orrie Jay, of the losers, featured. Kelly's bat played a prominent part in the early scoring of the Cardinals. Irish McBride, the Catamount hurler, worked well at intervals, but his mates caused his undoing early.

The Vermont clan made a threatening gesture in the first round, when a walk to Traynor, Winant's single and two infield outs produced a run. The Cardinals came back to take the lead, never to yield the advantage. Whitey Peifer walked and De Mello singled. Both advanced on an infield out and scored on Kelly's first single.

Peifer Doubles Murphy Home.

The Cardinals gave the decision away in the third when Jay allowed Murphy's single to go through him for three bases and Peifer followed with a double. Kelly's clean hit to left got away but he was thrown out at the plate trying to score. Another run was added in the fifth when Peifer was safe on an error, advanced on Kelly's single and scored on Bonetti's tap to McBride, who became confused and threw to first.

Winant opened the Vermont sixth with a single and reached third on Howard's single base blow. Pires' high fly to center permitted Winant to score. McKay's catch of a high foul along the third base stands stopped a Cardinal rally in the sixth but C. U. came back to score twice in the next round on DeMello's double, Blassi's single, a stolen base and Marucci's single. Oliver's home run added another tally to the Cardinal total in the eighth.

Chet Rutkowski contributed a timely pinch bingle for the Catamounts in the final stand and Stroh followed with a single to center which got by Peifer, Rutkowski scoring. Stroh scored a moment later on Marucci's error.

Babe Ruth's contribution to his team's victory consisted of a double in the first inning. On his other appearance at the plate he struck out twice, grounded out another time and was safe on an error on his fifth time at bat.

Collett, Quier Win Way to Finals

Defeat Miss Orcutt and Miss Hicks in Semifinal Round.

Glenna Winner, 3 Up and 2, in North and South Tourney.

By MILES H. WOLFF.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4 (A.P.).—The national champion, Miss Glenna Collett, and a youthful Reading, Pa., star, Miss Edith Quier, meet here tomorrow in the finals of the North and South golf tournament for women. They battled their way to victory today over the hazardous No. 3 course of the Pinehurst Country Club, Miss Collett giving Miss Maureen Orcutt, New York, a 3 and 2 drubbing, and Miss Quier handing Miss Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, Long Island, a 2 and 1 defeat.

Miss Collett's victory was not unexpected, but general surprise was expressed at the way Miss Quier staged a comeback after a bad start to down her opponent, who holds the Canadian title.

The turn in their match came on the sixteenth when Miss Hicks laid Miss Quier a dead stymie. After studying her position carefully, Miss Quier coolly took her niblick and lifted her ball over Miss Hicks' and sent it trickling in the cup.

Gallery Cheers Players.

The gallery gave whoops of delight at the shoot and they cheered Miss Quier again when, after two bad shots which had landed her in woods on the next hole, she sent an iron shot whizzing on the green within a foot of the cup.

Miss Hicks had a chance to halve the hole, but on her putt she laid herself a stymie which required two more putts.

The early part of their match had seen Miss Hicks taking the second and third holes. Miss Quier steadied, took the eighth and ninth holes to square the match and won the twelfeth to go into the lead. Miss Hicks, however, won the fifteenth to square things, only to have Miss Quier make her remarkable shots on the next two holes to win.

Miss Collett Gains Early Lead.

Miss Collett hopped into a lead on the first hole when Miss Orcutt landed into trape on her drive and her second shot. Miss Orcutt took the next hole, and they stayed on even terms until the sixth when Miss Collett again won. The match stood 1 up at the turn, and Miss Collett lengthened her lead on the tenth.

The 2-up lead stood on the fourteenth when Miss Orcutt apparently threw away a chance to reduce it, taking two strokes to get out of a shallow sand trap.

On the sixteenth Miss Collett's drive carried on the green, 208 yards, while Miss Orcutt's was short. Miss Orcutt was forced to take a 4 to lose the hole.

Hornsby to Be Ready To Start Race, He Says

Los Angeles, April 4 (A.P.).—Take Rogers Hornsby's word for it, no such small matter as a sore heel will keep him from patrolling the second sack for the Chicago Cubs when the season's opening clash with the St. Louis Cardinals rolls around.

The "rajah" offered this information to the Associated Press in no uncertain terms before he entrained here tonight for Chicago, two days ahead of his team mates, who have two remaining exhibition games with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

"Sure, my heel is sore, and Joe McCarthy decided it was best for me to stay off my feet as much as possible until it feels better," said Hornsby. "But I'll be back with the boys when they get to Kansas City and when the season opens you'll find me operating at second base."

Hornsby admitted that he would drop in on a specialist when he gets back to the Windy City, just as a matter of course to see how the heel is getting along, but he insisted that even that fact lacked the earmarks of a gesture to the possibility that he might be forced to have another operation and be out for several months.

Johnson Selects Yankees To Beat Macks for Flag

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4 (A.P.).—The once-proud New York Yankees, almost completely overlooked in preseason baseball championship predictions, have been vouchsafed support from an unexpected quarter—the manager of a rival club.

Walter Johnson likes the Yankees.

"While I have great respect for the Athletics and I should, after the way they beat us last year," says Johnson, "I like the Yankees this time. If Hoyt comes back, the Yankees ought to beat the Athletics. He was off last year, but Waite is a great pitcher when right, and it was only lack of pitching strength that held New York back last season."

The Washington manager is confident his own club will do better work than it did last year and thinks the White Sox will be harder to beat, but sees no improvement in Detroit or St. Louis. Cleveland, he thinks, is a doubtful quantity, with much depending on the condition of Lew Fonseca. He praises the Red Sox as hustlers.

COLLEGIAN SENIORS PRACTICE.

Collegian A. C. Seniors will play a practice game tomorrow at 11 o'clock on Diamond No. 2. All former players and new candidates are asked to report.

Macks 1 to 2 Favorites In Wall Street Wagering

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Wall street today made the Athletics an odds-on favorite to win the American League pennant again. Wagers were reported by commissioners at 1 to 2 on the Philadelphia Club, with the Yankees a 5 to 2 choice.

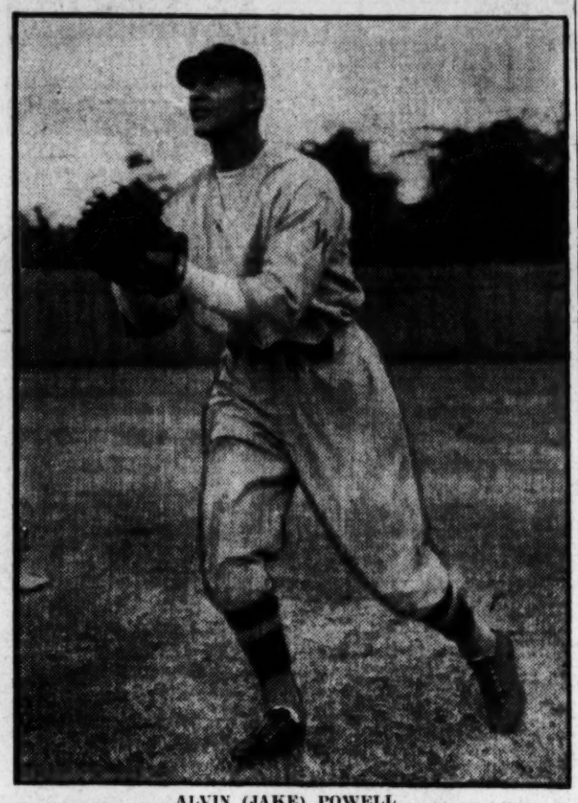
In the National League, the champion Chicago Cubs were made favorites at 6 to 5.

On the basis of early wagering, quotations in the financial district were as follows:

American League—Philadelphia, 1 to 2; New York, 5 to 2; Cleveland, 4 to 1; St. Louis, 6 to 1; Detroit and Washington, each 10 to 1; Chicago, 15 to 1; Boston, 100 to 1.

National League—Chicago, 6 to 5; New York, 5 to 2; Pittsburgh, 4 to 1; St. Louis, 5 to 1; Cincinnati, 6 to 1; Brooklyn, 10 to 1; Philadelphia, 30 to 1; Boston, 100 to 1.

$10,000 Due on Loepp Boon To Powell's Chances as Nat



ALVIN (JAKE) POWELL.

Ex-Oriole on Option, Johnson Learns; Decision Due April 15; Powell's Batting Against Braves to Be Test.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4.—The fact that Outfielder George Loepp is on option with the Nats was not known by Manager Walter Johnson until yesterday and, even then, he learned it from Business Manager George Weis, of the Baltimore Internationals, who stopped off at Chattanooga to play the Lookouts.

When the deal was first made with the Orioles, President Clark Griffith announced that he was giving Pitcher Jim Weaver, Second Baseman Stuffy Stewart and some cash in exchange. Later, it seems, Weis advised Griffith that he would not have to pay the cash and complete the deal until April 15, provided Weaver and Stewart could be kept by the Orioles in exchange for this privilege. The Nats' owner evidently forgot to tell either his manager or the Washington scribes of this change in plans.

Johnson was figuring on keeping Loepp for a while, at least, after the season started. He has in mind carrying five fly chasers, with Goslin, Rice, West and Barnes as sure things, and was counting on the former Oriole as the fifth man. New developments have started him thinking again and may result in Jake Powell, the Takoma Tiger Bearcat, sticking around all season.

Weighs Loepp Against Powell.

It is understood that $10,000 is due the Baltimore Club if Loepp is kept and it is up to Johnson to decide whether Loepp's experience is worth this much more to the Nats than would be Powell, who has shown great power with the bat and who has been tabbed as a fine prospect. Johnson likes Powell's work and declares that he has never seen a rookie improve so fast as has Jake since he first reported at the Biloxi camp, but he is still mighty green and needs at least one season's steady work in the minors.

Although Loepp has not had much of a chance with the Nats, Johnson was planning to postpone giving him a real trial until after he could get the West-Barnes duel settled in connection with the regular middle field berth. He was more or less puzzled tonight in discussing his outfield plans, finally intimating that he would work Rice only a few innings each game to keep him on edge and then use Powell.

Johnson believes that he has a line on Loepp, based on his .310 stick average of last year, and so plans to put it up to Powell to prove that his batting power in recent games is not merely a flash in the pan and that he can continue to hit as the pitching he faces gets better.

Powell Faces Tests In Braves' Series.

Powell's real test should come in the five-game series with the Boston Braves, which starts in Chattanooga Sunday. If he can get his share of hits against the major league hurling he will face, or even if he continues to pound the ball hard in these games, he probably will be kept instead of Loepp.

As a fielder Powell can get by. He is fast, is a sure catch and has a good arm. A little coaching on making return pegs low enough so that the infielders can intercept them and on throwing to the proper bases would qualify him. Johnson admitted this morning that Joe Engel wants Powell for his Chattanooga Lookouts, which means that the youngster must have a great deal of natural ability, for even the jump from the sandlots to a class A league is a big one.

Lisko Will Oppose Barons Today.

Zeb Milan's Barons will be taken on again by the Nats tomorrow, with Adolph Liska, the subway slinger, scheduled to go the whole route. It is on this youngster and Fred Marberry and Irving Hadley that Skipper Johnson is counting most strongly for the first week of the regular season. He plans to work Lloyd Brown the entire route against the Braves in the Sabbath battle at Chattanooga and will let his other regulars, Sam Jones, Myles Thomas, Garland Braxton and Bob Burke continue to come along by easy stages. Carlos Moore and Don Savidge must still be listed as unknown qualities.

It looks as though the Nats owe more talent than they can afford to pay, as Zeb Milan, Birmingham manager told the writer this morning that the Washington Club owes the Barons as acceptable player as part of the deal which brought Carlos Moore to Washington. It is possible that Moore will be returned here, but if he is kept and if Loepp is sent back to Baltimore in lieu of the cash owed, then only Pitchers Don Savidge and Herb Pyle could be spared and it is not known whether Milan wants either of these players.

Marberry and Hadley in Form; Hasty Is Routed by Nats.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4.—Zeb Milan's Birmingham Barons probably wish that Outfielder Goose Goslin had held out a day or so longer, as the work of this big slugger did much in costing them a 6-to-0 licking in his first start as a National this year.

All that the "Wild Goose of the Potomac" did was to crack out three hits out of four times up, one of which was a homer deep into the right field stands with two mates on the bases, while he threw a runner out at home to complete a double play which killed the Baron's biggest threat.

All told, the Nats garnered an even dozen hits off the combined offerings of Bob Hasty, former Mackman, and Ray Francis, who once wore Washington livery, with West being the only Nat besides Goslin to get more than one safety. Five Birmingham errors also helped the Johnson cause.

Marberry and Hadley Effective.

Fred Marberry and Irving Hadley did the Washington mound work, with Marberry particularly effective, although Hadley managed to keep his opponents from scoring. Seven hits were credited the Barons, with Taylor and Yaryan each getting two. Young Jake Powell and Hershel Bennett furnished the best catches of the day.

Hasty held the Nationals to three scattered hits in the first four frames but came a cropper in the fifth when four runs were molded from his slants. Cronin opened the stanza with a lusty triple to left center and scored on Marberry's single after Tate had died on a short fly to left. West then rolled to Sturdy, who fumbled the ball, and, when Bancroft picked it up and pegged badly, Marberry had reached third and West had carried

Abundance of Garden Talent, Reds' Problem

Nashville, Tenn., April 4 (A.P.).—An abundance of outfield material, all acceptable, has made the problem of selecting the regulars an intricate one for Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds. When the Rhinelanders encounter the Nashville Volunteers here tomorrow, Hawley will use Bob Meusel in left, where he is almost certain to start the season, but he will put Curt Walker back in right, where he played last year, and try Marty Callaghan in center. It will be only a tryout, Howley said, after today's practice session. "We must have all the power we can get at bat, but we can not afford to sacrifice too much in the defense."

ZUBLENA, 16-1 SHOT, TAKES BOWIE SPRINT FEATURE

Outsider Wins Purse From Betty Beau

Vimont Leads From Start in Fifth and Pays $103.30.

Vanderpool Defeats Juveniles Easily in Second Race.

THE parade of the favorites at Bowie yesterday was abruptly broken in the fourth race, the Aspirant, for 3-year-olds, when the Rancocas Stable's Zublena, daughter of Zev, swept by T. J. Beauchamp's Betty Beau and won the feature offering by a length and a half. She paid $35.10 for $2 and ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:08 2-5. Betty Beau was second and Irish Polly third.

The Rancocas jockey, Steffen, arrived from New Orleans in time to ride Zublena. Six started in the race and Zublena was the outsider in odds of the field.

The early pace was set by the Dixiana Farm's Irish Polly, with Shanks up. Rodrack and then Betty Beau challenged, and turning into the stretch, Betty Beau took the lead. Steffen, gaining on the bend, came on the outside and down the home stretch, got in front and was going easily at the end.

A very large crowd had gathered in the pleasant weather and the track, slow in the first race, had become good and the high-class field in the Aspirant was inspiring, but the crowd plunged on the wrong horse.

Vanderpool Wins Despite Weak Handling.

Mrs. M. P. Allen's unbeaten colt, Vanderpool, Florida triple winner, got his first Eastern test in the Prospect Purse, second race, in which he was immediately installed the odds-on favorite in spite of the fact that Danny McAuliffe was the jockey selected to ride him.

Vanderpool won easily, after being bumped at the start, and extended for a time in the stretch through bad handling. The Rancocas Stable's Schooner was second, beaten two lengths and H. P. Whitney's Airliner, third, four lengths back. Vanderpool is a fine looking bay colt by Camp Fire and Bramble Rose and is much better than his race today shows. On a heavy track he ran the half-mile in 0:48. The closing price was $2.70.

Vimont Proves Sensation.

Vimont created quite a sensation by romping off with the top purse in the fifth event to reward his backers with the longest price of the current Maryland racing season. Vimont beat the favorite, Gadalong, by three lengths and paid the faithful $105.30 for each $2 win mutuel ticket. Blazing Cinch was third.

Not only the few who held tickets on the winner but the remainder of the $10,000 fans on hand received a real thrill when the winner's price was posted.

Jockey Leyland took Vimont to the front early and kept him in his stride to the wire. Gadalong, favorite, challenged, but tired when put to the test and finished second ahead of Blazing Cinch.

Trickey Colonel Beats Ordinary Lot.

It would be difficiult to bring together fourteen more ordinary horses than the maiden 3-year-olds which started in the 6-furlong dash of the first race. Cuffle, a field horse, unseated Leblanc at the barrier and ran away a quarter of a mile. The field stood at the barrier until the horse was returned and remounted.

Tricky Colonel was restrained off the early pace, came through in the stretch and drew away to win by four lengths, with Workman up. Behave Cash, pacemaker, was second, a length in front of Little Imp, third. Eight lengths farther back, Marley was fourth. Time, 1:14 2-5.

The winner was the favorite and paid $5.30. Behave Cash took a long lead from the barrier, with Little Imp closest in pursuit and Trickey Colonel third. The only change in the positions was when Trickey Colonel took the lead. Little Imp was a field horse.

Apostle Third Straight Choice to Win.

The third successive favorite won when Apostle, carrying the colors of the Mahopac Stable, Fermin up, improved his position enough in the last strides to win by a head from Dreana Lee in the field group, well ridden by Cimerak. Sambo G was third and The Doctor, fourth.

Fourteen platers stamped around at the post for 11 minutes before James Milton got them off to a good start. Dreana Lee set most of the pace. Apostle was far out of it when Fermin swung him to the outside and in a desperate effort saved the day. The winner was $4.90. Time, 1:14. There were five horses in the field.

Searington Closes Fast To Win Sixth.

Searington, which was claimed in his start the other afternoon by J. Coffey, scored for his new owner first time out in the running of mile and sixteenth of the sixth. He paid off at the sweet price of $15.50 for each $2 ticket. The time of the race was 1:51 for the distance, which was very slow.

Belmona outbroke her field and was out in front by five lengths before the half mile was reached. At the final pole she was still leading by two lengths, but tired in the final yards, when Searington, which was always close up, challenged. Maxiva dropped far back at the break, but closed fast to finish third. The daughter of Golden Maxim was a heavily played choice. Dunlin Show is one worth remembering. She closed a big gap in the final furlong.

PEGLER ADDS NAMES FOR CARNERA

Knockout Trail of Primo Strangely Fascinating.

Now that he is so well along on this unique career, I should much regret to learn of his being tapped on the chin and interrupted.

Would Lead Off With Sailor Martin.

For some of my nominees I go quite a far spell back but no further than Primo's sportsmen went when they found old Farmer Lodge for him. For my lead-off man, I would name Sailor Martin, who used to fight Tommy Gibbons along about 1924 and never did him any such dirt as Ace Clark did Primo in Philadelphia. The sailor must be just about ready for Carnera now.

Then, I would let him have Harry Drake, the English chap, who introduced the Cricklewood sprawl into the American ring while serving with Dempsey in Great Falls, Mont., and I would follow him with Wolf Larsen, who wears a callous not unlike a saddle across his shoulder blades from chafing the coarse weaves of many rings. Next man on my list would be Tarzan Larkin and behind him Fred Fulton, the namesake of the town of Smackover, La.

I should like to give some brief reference note with regard to each of my nominees but there are too many and I can only assure Primo that they are, none of them, too tough for him, and, of course, none of them too feeble.

69 More Knockout Foils Suggested.

My other candidates for Primo Carnera's knockout record are Soldier Jones, Sergt. Ray Smith, Chief Metoquah, Johnny Squires, Jack League, Australian Jim Tracey, Tiny Jim Herman, Italian Jack Herman, Marco Polo, Jimmy Byrne, Bunker Hill, Bob Lawson, Ed Keeley, George Cook, Johnny Grosso, Tony Fuonte, Tut (Eight Ball) Jackson, Joe King, Jack Warren, Humbeck, Denver Jack Geyer, Toledo Joe Packo, Arturo de Kuh, Ray Neuman, Hambone Kelly, Pietro Corri, Quintin Romero-Rojas, Floyd Johnson, Harry Fay, Jack de Mave, Fireman Ralph Smith, Big Sid Terris, Joe Lohman, Bandsman Blake, Chief Elkhart, Emmet Rocco, Big Bill Hartwell, Ike McFowler, Sandy Siefert, Benny Touchstone, K. O Clemmens, Big Boy Rawson, Roughhouse Rowsey and Roughhouse Ware, California Jack Lee, Frankie Wine, Leo Gates, Sailor Maxted, Battling Gayhee, Pat Lester, Ludwig Hayman, King Solomon, Gypsy Prince Daniels, Con O'Kelly, Buckey Harris, Pat Joyce, Joe Clancy, Tommy Stone, Buddy (Out-the-window) Gorman, Larry Gaines, Clem Johnson, Bearcat Wright, Napoleon Jack Dorval and Little Boy Blue.

There are 69 more knockouts for Primo's record, most of them one-rounders. With those already achieved, these would give him 82 and by that time I would be ready to find more names for his list to the number of 200. I solicit suggestions. Let us make this a knockout record that will live.

BOWIE NOTES

SOME horsemen are showing original designs this spring on their racing silks. The Joseph Leiter jacket, for instance, is primrose yellow, with bottle green ladder front and back. The yellow jacket with huge cornucopia on the back is that of Mrs. J. H. Buscher. Then there is the blouse with a Christmas tree on the back, which J. Y. Christmas has. G. Lerian, of Baltimore, who made his debut in racing yesterday with Chickweed, has a bright green wreath of holly with red berries on front and back of jacket.

The sixth claim of the meeting was J. Jeffries' of $1,500 for Spurrier.

Jockeys E. Steffens, Rancocas Stable, and Chubby Leonard, New Orleans, and his brother, Bill, from Florida, arrived yesterday.

Prince De Amour pulled up lame yesterday after the morning workout. This New Orleans star was pointing for the Bowie Kindergarten.

It was said by those close to the stable that Siskin, the Epinard 2-year-old that won the Agua Caliente Futurity, would not start in a race until the opening of the Havre de Grace meeting. Siskin is rated the best 2-year-old so far starting this year.

While the attendance at Bowie has exceeded that of any spring at this track, the volume of betting in the pari-mutuels has fallen off, indicating, so those who follow the race track barometer say, a reflection of the money stringency.

Better facilities for reaching the Bowie track would increase the attendance 25 per cent, many believe. A loop for the electric line for the limited electric trains; a roadway and taxicab service to Bowie road crossing would do the trick.

Bellsmith, Lamed, To Be Out of Derby

Louisville, Ky., April 4 (A.P.).—Bellsmith, gelding owned and trained by Jack Weaver and William E. Smith, pulled up lame after a workout here today.

The injury to his left foreleg will keep him out of the Kentucky Derby, Weaver said. Bellsmith also is eligible for the Latonia Derby.

High Foot, another ranking derby candidate, arrived today from New Orleans. He was in excellent condition upon arrival. His owners are Thomas and R. J. Nash, Chicago.

NATS ROUT BARONS, 6-0; GOSLIN STARS

on to second. Powell died on a foul to Yaryan, putting it up to Goslin, who came through with a great home-run drive well into the stands in right.

Meanwhile, Marberry had been having little trouble holding the Barons in check. Before he gave way to Hadley starting the sixth, he had yielded but two hits, and, although he had walked three, he never had been in any serious trouble, only two having traveled as far as second. One of these was First Baseman Sturdy, who pulled a smart play after drawing a pass in the fourth.

Sturdy Breaks For Second.

On the fourth ball he ambled to first and then, without stopping, suddenly broke for second. Neither Cronin nor Myer, who were walking back to their positions with their backs to the plate, was able to cover second in time to nip the runner.

Round 6 contained an alien threat after Francis had retired the Nats in order in the top half. Bancroft greeted Hadley with a single and a moment later took second on a wild pitch. Moore walked and both runners advanced after West took Susko's long fly in deep center. Sturdy then lofted to short left and Bancroft tried to register after the catch, a nice throw by Goslin and some clever diving by Tate completing a double play and helping Hadley out of a hole.

In the ninth, the Nats added two more runs to their total, thanks largely to two errors, which were inherited between Bingles off the bats of Hadley, West and Powell.

Although Sturdy singled and Yaryan doubled in the home ninth, outs separated these blows and the Barons were unable to get a man over the counting block.

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE offers the best card of its meeting this afternoon, featured by the James Rowe Memorial, honoring the memory of the late H. P. Whitney trainer, and has an added value of $5,000.

Secondary features are the Flash Handicap and the Old Dominion Handicap, and there are some finely bred 2-year-olds in the first race, but a few of which ever started.

Richard Pending, track superintendent, believes he can have the drying out racing strip at its best for the holiday card, as the fair weather is aiding his efforts to put it in condition.

FEATURE RACE—Nine 3-year-olds have been entered in the Rowe Memorial, fourth on the program, at 7 furlongs. Among the lot are the Louisiana and Florida Derby winners, MICHIGAN BOY, best at New Orleans, and TITUS, Miami Derby winner. MICHIGAN BOY is picked to win. While he carries top weight of 126 pounds, he is well seasoned in racing, and carried this weight to win at New Orleans at a longer distance. H. P. Whitney's FRUMPER, with the light impost of 104 pounds, and following a very fast workout at this track the other day, is regarded the contender. Walter J. Salmon's BATTLESHIP is next best, at the distance. This stout Man o' War colt will be heard from at 7 furlongs. COLOSSAL, which won at a sensational price on opening day, should have an outside chance. It is believed that TITUS is suited to a longer route. His victory in Florida was a big surprise, but he meets stronger opposition in this race. MR. DESMOND is fit, as was shown by his Bowie race.

FIRST RACE—This race is for 2-year-old maiden fillies. There is little line on them and the selections for the race are necessarily based largely on breeding. HIGHLY, a full sister of Prince of Wales, former champion Maryland sprinter, by High Time—Sand Pocket, is picked to win, for if there is anything in royal breeding she will make a good showing. She races for Preston Burch and his horses are well trained. She has never started. LITTLE AMERICA is rated second. She raced well at Miami and was third in a good field. NORMA CONLAN ran impressively at Bowie the other day, finishing fourth.

SECOND RACE—COG-AIR should repeat in the second race. His last effort, which was on Wednesday, was a game race. ALGOL, if the track improves rapidly, should be the contender, but he is not a mudder. He had a world of early speed in his race at this track, and made a hard effort against COG-AIR. GOLD MINT, New Orleans winner, should take care of third money.

THIRD RACE—In the Flash Handicap, RAPID TRANSIT should atone for his failure in the Inaugural. He did not run his race that day. The strongest opposition seems to be his old Florida foe, GUN ROYAL, which carries the same weight, 118 pounds. BOCARATONE, which beat both in the Inaugural, takes up eight pounds, but may be third. Other fast horses in this dash are MY SIS, STAND BY, CLEAN PLAY and GENUINE.

FIFTH RACE—This race is the Old Dominion. DONNAY, winner of the New Orleans Handicap and third in the Agua Caliente Handicap, the leading handicap horse in the South last winter, will have PAUL BUNYAN to beat in the mile and a sixteenth gallop. BUNYAN carries top weight, 120 pounds, and DONNAY has two pounds left. If not impaired by much traveling, DONNAY should win. BOCARATONE also is entered in this race, as well as in the Flash. With the light impost of 108 pounds he should get in the money if he starts here. SANDY FORD, WELLET and ARCTURUS are the others entered in the Old Dominion.

SIXTH RACE—VOYAGE may repeat in the sixth. He beat Chattahoochee by two lengths Wednesday. VILLAGER is a consistent campaigner and is picked to beat CHATTAHOOCHEE for the place.

SEVENTH RACE—DANGER SIGNAL looks best of the platers in the seventh race. CUDGELLER appears to be the horse he will have to beat, and his last race was better than that of the Bedwell horse. MOCKERY is as good as anything else in the race, and ought to be as good as third.

WESTERN NINE DEFEATS G. U. PREPS IN DEBUT, 7-6

Payne's Relief Pitching Is Feature

Allows Foes Lone Hit in Last 4 Frames to Hold Lead.

Owens, Fletcher and Freeman Do Bulk of the Hitting.

BRILLIANT relief pitching by Bill Payne, who held Georgetown Prep to one hit in the last four innings, brought victory to Western High School in its first baseball game of the season yesterday at Garrett Park, 7 to 6. Entering the box in the sixth inning immediately after his team had staged a two-run rally to assume the lead, Payne did not receive credit for the victory, however, inasmuch as Poore, the starting hurler, left the game with his team in the run.

Except for a triple by Crowley, the G. U. Prep pitcher in the last frame, the losers were powerless before Payne's slants, never threatening to score in the first three innings of his duration on the mound. In the ninth Crowley slammed a long hit to right field, but on an attempt to score on a squeeze play, was trapped off third and run down for final out.

Owens Slams Homer For Western.

With Quincy Owens featuring the Western attack with a home-run, the game appeared a rout for the Red and White in the first two innings by virtue of a 5-0 lead amassed, but Georgetown Prep came back strong in their half of the second to score three runs and went ahead in the fifth with a similar rally which left it on the long end of a 6-5 score. Western then produced its two-run rally which gave Payne the lead which he held for the rest of the game.

Although touched for six runs, Poore showed to advantage in the first five innings, allowing but three hits, and striking out seven batters. Capt. Bob Freeman and Fletcher did the bulk of the hitting for Western, each collecting two hits in their respective trips to the plate.

Rockville High Nine Bowns to Charlotte Hall

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlotte Hall, Md., April 4.—Charlotte Hall registered its second victory of the baseball season here today, when it snowed the Rockville High Nine under a 5-1 score. Earlier this week Charlotte Hall had blanked Leonard Hall, 12-0.

Bill Chesley, Charlotte Hall left fielder, led the winners' attack, registering three singles in four chances at the bat. Charlotte Hall started scoring in the second inning with two runs, added another in the third and completed its scoring in the fifth with a pair of tallies. Rockville was shut out with the exception of the sixth when it tallied its only run.

Dartmouth Triumphs Over Marines, 5 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., April 4.—The Dartmouth Indians scalped the Marine Nine today, shutting them out with a score of 5 to 0.

All the runs were scored in the first inning. Egan walked; Clough singled, Eagan taking third, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mack. Myllykangas hit one to right center and made home, following Clough in; Barber tripled to left and Downey walked. At this time Cather threw wild to second, allowing Barber to score, and when Eddie Gorman threw badly to third Downey came home.

Then Clough settled down and it was a pretty pitcher's battle to the end. Hollstrom for Dartmouth pitched strongly and fielded his position like a big leaguer, throwing out five batters at first and, to top it off, fanned two and forced Young to hit to the second baseman for the third out with the bases full.

Caldwell and Hagler To Coach Duke Frosh

Durham, N. C., April 4.—Athletic authorities of Duke University announced today that on the recommendation of Wallace Wade, newly-elected head of athletics and head football coach who will come to Duke in 1931, Merschell Caldwell and Ellis Hagler had been appointed freshman coaches for 1930-31.

Caldwell played in the backfield of the three University of Alabama championship teams of 1924, '25 and '26 and for the past three years has been coach of the Sidney Lancier High, of Montgomery.

After playing guard on the Alabama teams of 1926, '27 and '28, Hagler joined the Alabama coaching staff and this year has been coaching freshmen teams there.

MARYLAND U. HOLDS SPORT CARNIVAL

Track, Baseball and Lacrosse on Program Today.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S spring athletic program will be initiated in full force this afternoon, when three teams representing the Black and Gold play hosts to their respective foes in track, baseball and lacrosse.

The Terrapin Nine will cross bats with Cornell, which yesterday took a 9-to-3 beating from Georgetown, at o'clock, at which hour a dual meet will be held with Washington and Lee, while the lacrosse team is scheduled to take the field at 4 o'clock against Randolph-Macon. One ticket for 50 cents, will admit to all three contests.

While Maryland's athletes stand more than an even chance of coming through with victories in baseball and lacrosse, the trackmen are not generally favored in their meet with the Southern Conference indoor champions.

Generals Have Strong Track Team.

The Generals are undefeated on the cinder path this year and are especially strong in the hurdles and discus. What should develop into a thriller will probably be found in the 100 and 00 yard dashes, with Quinn, of Maryland, meeting Capt. Sandifer of the visitors.

Although it will be playing its first game, Maryland's nine looks impressive with the material every bit as impressive as the team of last year. In addition to Milburn and Phipps, two Washington boys, as pitchers, the Old Liners have Hauver, the star of last year's freashman team. Rosen is expected to do the catching, with Radice at first, Berger at second, Chalmers at short and Gaylor at third. Cronin, Hetzel and either Sterling, May, or Tansil are expected to start in the outfield.

Although losing half of last year's regulars, the lacrosse team is not expected to be extended in its game with Randolph-Macon.

Hyattsville High Nine Routs Alexandria High

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., April 14.—The Alexandria High School Baseball Team opened their season this afternoon by taking a 6 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Hyattesville High School. The game was played on Hayden Field before one of the largest crowds that has witnessed a high school game in the past two years.

French, on the mound for the visitors, kept the local high school well in hand throughout the entire game, while Bray, for the losers, pitched a very good game, but errors placed him in a number of holes.

Martin and French were the only players that were able to connect consistently. Meadif hit a home run in the seventh but failed to touch second base and was called out. Martin as the only Alexandria boy who secured two hits and played an excellent game in the outfield.

Episcopal High School Baseball Team will play its first home game tomorrow afternoon when it tackles the Eastern High School on Hoxton Field beginning at 3:30 o'clock. Coach Gallaway has not decided as to whom he will start.

Potomac Boat Club Reelects 4 Officers

At its sixty-first annual meeting held at the clubhouse last night, the Potomac Boat Club reelected the following as officers for the coming year: Francis L. Fahy, president; L. P. Allwine, vice president; P. J. Bergh, secretary; and E. P. Schneider, treasurer. At the same time the Messrs. P. J. Bergh, Eugene Colwell and Charles Prettyman were elected to the board of governors for a term of three years each, and William Belt was elected for an unexpired term of one year.

Plans for the rowing of the Eastern States for the summer were discussed and rowing men will be requested to report for training tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. at the clubhouse. The membership committee likewise voted to hold a membership campaign for 30 days, during which period, the usual initiation fee will be waived, in order to interest more Washington men in rowing. NAVY STREAK BROKEN BY YALE, 8-4

Elis Pound Out Necessary Tallies in the Early Frames.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 4.—In a seven-inning game under ideal weather conditions, Naval Academy tossers had their clean slate marred as sluggers from Yale University opened their season and Southern invasion by subduing the Middies, 8 to 4, in a fast, well-played contest.

The Eli swatsmiths bagged the contest in the early frames when they battered Bob Moore, former Baltimore Poly twirler, for six runs in the two frames he toiled. Navy, on the other hand, was unable to solve Rudd's fast curve until late in the game. Then Fitzgerald, Tar outgardner, got in the way of a drive of Ashworth's bat to help to stop a final inning rally which, as it was, netted the home team a trio of runs.

Yale presented a well-balanced team with McKenzie, Snead and Vincent hitting the ball hard. Navy also did well after getting off to a poor start owing to unsettled hurling.

Elon Nine Wins, 5-2, Over V. P. I. in Debut

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., April 4.—Elon College made hits count to take the opening game from V. P. I. in Miles Stadium this afternoon by a 5-to-2 score. The Gobblers outhit the visitors, eight hits to seven, and put runners on base in every inning except the third and seventh, but could not solve the great pitching of Briggs, visiting left-hander, in the pinches.

G. U. Golfers Invade Williamsburg Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Williamsburg, Va., April 4.—With Georgetown University of Washington as its opponent, William and Mary's golf team, undefeated in collegiate competition last year, opens its 1930 links season tomorrow at Yorktown. The Indian golfers won seven out of seven matches in 1929, and were runners-up in the national intercollegiate matches.

Georgetown, with Maurice McCarthy, the intercollegiate champion of 1929, as its No. 1 player, will present a formidable four against the Indians. The Hilltop team will meet William and Mary in four singles matches in the morning and two foursomes in the afternoon.

The course has a total length of approximately 6,400 yards, with its longest hole being 540 yards.

Wilcox, No. 1; Capt. Graven, No. 2, and Mullowney, No. 3, are men back from last year's undefeated Indian team. Weidenmeyer, a freshman, won No. 4 position in tryouts last Sunday. Wilcox, last year's captain, was amateur champion of New Haven for several years. They will play in the order named, with Wilcox being matched against McCarthy in the singles.

Woodberry Forest Turns To Track and Baseball

Woodberry Forest, Va., April 4.—Track and baseball practice at Woodberry Forest is under way in earnest, large squads in both sports having reported to the local coaches.

One of the largest track squads on record is working out daily under the tutelage of Coaches Dick and Mercer. The new cinder path on Hanes Field, considered by experts to be among the best in the South, has greatly increased the facilities of the local track artists, and it is expected from this date on that the caliber of the Orange and Black teams will gradually improve. Prospects for a winning team in this sport are fair. Capt. Bobby Stokes, Dick Barron and Jimmy Gwinn comprise a trio of sprinters which will be hard to beat. Payne in the hurdles, Gold in the pole vault, Northrop in the half, and Weaver in the discus and high jump, all letter men from last season's South Atlantic championship team, seem likely to repeat their good performances of 1929 and turn in their share of points in 1930.

On the diamond Coaches Saxton and Johnson are working hard to overcome much inexperience in their charges and produce a team which will show to better advantage than local ball teams of the last several years. Bob Lassiter, Venable and Andrews from last year's battery, Capt. Woollen on second, Lewis on third, and Sanford in the outfield compose a nucleus for this season's nine. It is feared, however, that an injury sustained in football may prevent Andrews from taking the mound at any time throughout the season.

Episcopal Bows, 7-6, After Gaining 5-0 Advantage.

SPOTTING their opponents a 5-run lead in the first inning, the St. Alban's aBseball Team climaxed a long uphill fight with three runs in the ninth inning yesterday to defeat the Episcopal High School, of Alexandria, 7 to 6, in the opening game of the season for both team.

Facing a 5-to-0 lead, St. Alban's came within one of its foe with a four-run splurge in the fifth inning, but an Episcopal run 1 nthe eighth inning left the loca lteam two runs behind.

Two doubles, a triple and a hit batsman accounted for the winning runs in the ninth just when it appeared as if the Saints were about to go down to defeat. With two out, Crouch doubled and Brewer tripled. After Lorton had been hit by a pitched ball, Kelsey came through with the winning hit, a double down the third base line, to score both of his mates. Altogether 43 hits were made during the day's fray, 23 blows being recorded by the losers and 20 by St. Alban's.

Rockne to Return Home; Will Coach, Says Doctor

Miami Beach, Fla., April 4 (A.P.).—Knute Rockne, football coach at Notre Dame, plans to leave here either Sunday or Monday with his family for their home in South Bend, Ind.

Accompanying the Rocknes on their return will be Dr. C. J. Barborka, of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., who is expected to arrive here tomorrow, after an airplane and train trip. Rockne has been here to recuperate from a leg ailment.

The coach was taken to St. Francis Hospital here last night for treatment for what consulting physicians termed a mild case of bronchitis. The attending physician, Dr. Walter T. Hotchkiss, said tonight Rockne probably would be able to return to his apartment either tomorrow or Sunday, and his departure for the North would follow almost immediately.

"I am sure that Mr. Rockne will be able to return to active coaching duties on the field at Notre Dame next fall," Dr. Hotchkiss said. "He is very much upset over erroneous reports reaching him that he has been seriously ill recently."

VA. SECTION OF LEAGUE MEETS

Old Dominion Nines to Form for Title Baseball Tuesday.

A MEETING of representatives of unlimited baseball teams of nearby Virginia has been scheduled for Tuesday night in the sports department of The Washington Post at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a league, which will be conducted under the supervision of the Capital City League.

Virginia teams will comprise one of the divisions of the extensive unlimited championship series planned this season and managers of several teams have announced their intentions to attend the meeting Tuesday night. Leaders of all teams interested are invited to attend this session.

The teams expected to send representatives are the Del Ray A. C., Jefferson District Fire Department, Cardinal A. C., St. Mary's Celtics, Bauserman Motor Co., Cherrydale Fire Department, Annandale White Sox, Ballston and Fairfax.

In recent years a well-organized unlimited league has been much sought by Virginia teams, but all efforts to organize have proven futile. Practically all of the teams have playing fields and organization of the teams has been started some time ago.

STOCKS' INDEX GAIN 3 POINTS IN BIG DAY

5,931,610 Shares Are Sold; Utility and Industrial Groups Feature.

AMUSEMENT LIST SAGS

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Bulls cast restraint to the winds in today's stock market and went on such a rampage as has not been seen in Wall street since the post-election whoopee of November, 1928.

The price index of 90 representative issues was pushed up 3 points to a new high level for the year, and transactions aggregated 5,931,610 shares, the largest turnover since the troublesome days of last November. There has not been such feverish activity in a normal bull market since the speculative orgy during the three weeks subsequent to the Hoover election, although sales ran higher during some of the violent rebounds last fall.

Rather heavy profit taking appeared at times, but speculators for the rise did not hesitate to rush in to take up the slack. A sore spot was the amusement shares, which were depressed by heaviness in Warner Bros., attributed to rumors that first quarter earnings for this company would not approach the optimistic estimates heard a few weeks ago. Scores of utilities and industrials, however, were hurled up about 1 to 11 points as stocks changed hands in blocks of 5,000 to 30,000 shares. Although public participation in the market appeared to be growing rapidly, the character of the trading suggested rather definitely that it was a speculative carnival of giants. Activity was concentrated in a group of pool favorites, while scores of shares were more or less neglected.

Market Seen as Business Aid.

The gain of $148,000,000 in weekly brokers' loans caused no surprise and apparently no qualms. While it is granted that loans can not continue to increase at the rate of the past month for any extended period, powerful speculative interests as yet apparently see no cause for worry. There has been no indication so far that Federal Reserve authorities regard the movement as getting out of bounds, although the reserve system is now in a much better position to apply the damper than it was when it made unsuccessful efforts a year ago. It is felt in many quarters that a strong market at this time will aid business sentiment and speed recovery.

Credit conditions remained comfortable, with call money holding officially at 4 per cent, but available in the outside market at 3½. Weekly business and trade reviews were somewhat more cheerful, pointing to better steel mill operations, moderate improvement in wholesale and retail trade, and a decidedly better tone in commodity markets. Not all reports coming to hand were favorable, however. Willys Overland reported a loss of nearly $5,000,000 for last year. President Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad said he saw little prospect of improvement in traffic during the second quarter.

General Electric Up 5 Points.

American Telephone and General Electric were outstanding strong spots, surging about 5 points to record levels for the recovery. Allied Chemical sold up about 9 and Case 11 points, although they sagged a little in profit taking before the close. Consolidated Gas, Stone & Webster, General Motors, Colorado Fuel, Radio, National Air Transport, United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, and Standards of New Jersey and California were among other issues reaching new high ground for the year. United States Steel sold up more than 3 points, and closed up about 2 net. Warner Bros. lost more than 3 points, and Brunswick Balke, Loew's, Paramount and Vanadium lost about 2. Worthington Pump dropped 5.

In the commodity markets, wheat futures sold up a couple of cents on bullish weather reports, but encountered heavy profit taking and lost most of their gains. Corn sagged moderately, and cotton declined 90 cents to $1.60 a bale in realizing on its recent advance.

Foreign exchanges were practically unchanged. Sterling cables held at $4.86½. The Latin American currencies were again firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 4 (A.P.).—In a big rapidly swinging market, new upturns of wheat prices today encountered heavy profit-taking sales, but resulting setbacks were followed by fresh rallies. Reports of hazardous crop conditions because of persistent drought in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska had something of an offset in assertions by some experts that needed moisture was likely to be received before damage became severe. There were late advices, however, of huge dust storms over the Canadian prairie provinces and of unfavorable weather as well for seeding in domestic spring wheat territory.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, varying from ¾c net decline to ⅛c advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to 1⅛c down, oats ⅛c to ⅜c off and provisions showing 2c to 6c gain.

At today's top quotations wheat was up about 2c a bushel over yesterday's finish here and as much as 13c higher than prices current last week. Under such circumstances the incentive for selling to realize profits was too tempting to be withstood. On the other hand, venture-some speculative sellers who tried to reverse their market position found difficulty in doing so as the day drew to an end, especially as Calgary reports toward the last said dust clouds were the worst ever seen south and west of there, making the surrounding region dark as night.

Acting as more or less of a curb, though, on friends of higher prices for wheat was the fact that the Liverpool market today closed at a material reaction from top levels reached earlier. Besides, export business today in North American wheat failed to equal yesterday's total, new purchases for Europe being estimated at only 1,000,000 bushels, mostly Canadian. A contrary influence, nevertheless, in the late dealings was notice taken that in the last 40 days Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma have had only about one-third of normal moisture, and that today's forecast pointed to cloudless skies and rising temperature during the next 48 hours, tending to make drought conditions more critical.

Corn belt weather conditions were favorable for field work, and this circumstance made the corn market responsive to late rallies in wheat. Country offerings of corn were said to be increasing from Iowa and Illinois. Oats followed corn.

Provisions reflected hog market upturns.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS TOUCH 1930 PEAKS

American Telephone 4½s Rise 5 Points, to 187; Rails Are Firm.

WARNER BROS. 6S LOSE

New York, April 4 (A.P.)—Bonds carrying share features ran away from the rest of the market again today. Many of these issues touched new highs for the year at the peak of the advance, and so large were the turnovers in several instances that the day's volume for the market as a whole increased about $5,000,000 over yesterday's total. Bonds of standard types failed to vary appreciably and continued quiet. There was, however, a firmer tone to the investment rails.

American Telephone convertible 4½s regained the leadership of the list with a maximum jump of 7 points, to 189, the highest since last fall. Subsequent profit taking in the stock carried the debentures down from the top, but the closing price of 187 represented a net gain of 5 points.

Amusement bonds moved erratically. General Theaters Equipment 6s advanced 4 points, to 148, a record price, and then lost their gain. Loew's 6s held only half a point of a 2-point advance, while Warner Bros.' Pictures 6s were heavy all day, finishing 2 points lower. Shubert Theaters 6s more than lost a 2-point gain. Pathe 7s declined 4½.

Reading Coal & Iron 6s came to life after several quiet months and scored a maximum gain of 3 points, most of which was retained. Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s traded in large blocks but rose only half a point on the day. Atchison 4½s, Alleghany 5s, Missouri Pacific 5½s, International Telephone 4½s and Remington Rand 5½s, with warrants, averaged slightly less than a point higher at the close.

Demand for numerous rails, utilities and industrials showed some improvement, but offerings about equaled the inquiry and prices changed only slightly. Some of the more active bonds were American Smelting 5s, Santa Fe general 4s, Canadian Pacific general 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Pennsylvania Railroad 4¾s, Southern Railway general 4s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s and Union Pacific 4½s. Utilities Power & Light 6½s rose a point.

United States Governments worked irregularly lower after showing small gains earlier in the day. None of the issues was more than moderately active.

The market for foreign bonds was the dullest of the week, and prices were uneven. European governments were firm.

Curb Review

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Weekend profit taking, which was heavier than usual because of the sharp advance in prices earlier in the week, brought about an irregular price movement in today's curb market, but the main price tendency continued upward. Most of the leaders in the public utility, aviation and specialty groups reached new high ground, with the oils selling close to the year's high prices.

Trading showed a moderate expansion in volume, but the day's sales of 1,580,600 shares were nearly 200,000 shares below the year's peak established earlier in the week.

Resumption of the advance in Electric Bond & Share, which touched a new high at 113¼ and then eased to 111¾, up 2½ net, was accompanied by unconfirmed reports that stockholders shortly would be offered the right to subscribe to additional stock at $90 a share. Niagara & Hudson, which is believed to be slated for the big board, was again turned over in large volume, closing a point higher, at 21, after having set a new peak slightly above that figure. Brazilian Light & Traction, which is expected shortly to figure in some deal involving American & Foreign Power and International Telephone, crossed 50 to a new high for the year. General Gas & Electric convertible preferred jumped 4½ points, to 99½, a new top, but lost a point of its gain.

Newmont Mining, which reported 1929 earnings of $23.35 a share, as against $15.52 in 1928, touched a new 1930 peak at 141¾ and then fell back to 136 for a net loss of 5 points. While there has been a substantial appreciation in the company's security holdings since the first of the year, the 1930 prospects are believed to be dependent chiefly upon developments in the copper situation. Aluminum Co. of America soared 8½ points to a new high at 350 in response to the decision of the Federal Trade Commission dismissing anti-trust complaints brought against the company.

Oils continued to display a strong undertone in anticipation of an early advance in crude oil and gasoline prices. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped 6¾ points on a few sales, Gulf advanced 3 points and retained all but a fraction of its gain, and Humble and Vacuum each closed more than a point higher.

North American Aviation crossed 12 to another new peak. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were Anglo-Chilean Nitrate, Deere & Co. issues, De Forest Radio, Electric Household Products, Foltis Fischer, Jefferson Electric, Libby, McNeil, St. Regis Paper and Taggart Corporation.

J.I. PEYSER RESIGNS TITLE COMPANY JOB

President and Fred McKee, Director, Quit Posts Following Merger.

BANK AIDS IN ASHEVILLE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Relieved from executive responsibility following affiliation Thursday of the Capitol Title & Guarantee Co. with the New York Title & Mortgage Co., of New York City, Maj. Julius I. Peyser, president and director of the local concern, has tendered his resignation. He has been asked by the directorate of the local company to hold his resignation in abeyance pending a meeting of the stockholders to be called soon.

Fred McKee, a director, has also resigned from the company and his resignation has been accepted. Maj. Peyser and Mr. McKee were serving in a representative capacity for outside interests and were not personally financially interested in the company, which is now arranging its affairs for management and control by other interests.

Since affiliation with the New York company, management of the local concern has been transferred to Ernest E. Weaver, assistant vice president of the New York firm. Maj. Peyser was elected president of the local company last July.

Bankers in Asheville.

The advance for the District of Columbia Bankers Association convention at Asheville, N. C., June 5 to 8, left for that city last night to perfect certain details insuring the success of the twelfth annual assembly of association members. Their departure followed an enthusiastic meeting of the general convention committee yesterday at association headquarters in the Becker Building, 1318 F street northwest.

Members of the party are George O. Vass, president and cashier Riggs National Bank, general convention committee chairman; W. W. Spaid, partner in W. B. Hibbs & Co., chairman of the entertainment committee; Robert S. Stunz, vice president and cashier Park Savings Bank, chairman of the sports committee, and Luther E. Schreiner, vice president and manager of the Dupont Branch, Merchants Bank & Trust Co., chairman of the hotel committee.

The market has now enjoyed an almost uninterrupted advance since the early part of the year, according to a review of the business situation, published by Y. E. Booker & Co., investment bankers, at 1508 H street northwest. Industrials and rails have about recovered the ground lost in the secondary decline during the weeks November 1 to 13, while utilities are substantially higher, having regained more than half their total losses since the beginning of the decline, September 23.

Department Store Sales Up.

Department store sales in Washington in February were 1.7 per cent larger than in the same month a year ago, the monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions published by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., revealed yesterday. Sales for the year thus far showed the same percentage of increase over the period last year.

Charles B. Lyddane, vice president Federal-American National Bank, will visit Asheville, N. C., next week.

Many local bankers will attend the sixth annual meeting of representatives of member banks in the Fifth Federal Reserve District at Richmond, Va., April 11.

Charles E. Howe, treasurer, American Security & Trust Co., has an interesting collection of clippings dealing with a campaign for the business improvement of Washington, staged sixteen years ago by the Washington Shippers Association, now extinct.

Newly elected officers of the Life Insurance Club of Washington are Dan J. Harrison, president; Philip L. Baldwin, vice president, and J. E. McCombs, secretary-treasurer.

Local bankers were grieved yesterday by news of the death in New York of Owen T. Reeves, for years a local bank examiner, with many friends in the financial district.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Another improvement in the insolvency record of the United States is noted this week in the reports to R. G. Dun & Co., which gave a total of 503 failures. This number is 30 below last week's total, and 55 less than those reported two weeks ago. The number reported for this week is 37 in excess of the 466 defaults of the corresponding week of 1929.

Arrangements were made today for the sale of memberships in the New York Stock Exchange and in the curb exchange, the "seat" on the "big board" was sold for $467,000, up $17,000, and that on the curb exchange for $225,000, an increase of $27,000 from the previously reported sales.

Advices received by the Rubber Exchange of New York today states that both Dutch and native planters in Borneo had voted for complete stoppage of rubber tree tapping during May and had appointed a dictator for its industry in Batavia.

March sales of the 283 W. T. Grant Co. Department Stores totaled $4,962,318, compared with $5,141,436 reported from the 222 stores in operation on March 31, 1929, a decrease of $179,118, or 3.48 per cent.

The American Smelting & Refining Co. today reduced the price of lead from 5.75 to 5.60 cents a pound.

Cotton goods were firmer and a little more active. Burlaps were easier. Raw silk quiet. More business coming along in small lots on wool goods for men's and women's wear.

The near month situation has practically monopolized the attention of the cotton trade here during the past week. Early week advances to the 16½ cent level or above for old crop months and to approximately 16 cents for the new were followed by moderate reaction. Demand tapered off after the recent heavy covering and there appeared to be a little more cotton for sale, which was attributed chiefly to realizing. The offerings were absorbed on reactions of some 35 or 40 points, however, and most of the active months reached new high levels for the movement later in the week when there was a renewal of covering by trade or speculative shorts in the old crop months and perhaps some buying of the new crop on reports that recent weather conditions had been less favorable for the completion of farm work in the South. July was relatively firm toward the end of the week, selling above the price of May and at one time very nearly a cent a pound above the price of the new October contracts, and while the demand for May was obviously less active than during the previous week, observers of the local trading said they had seen no indication that the leading long lines were being reduced.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Davison Chemical.

E. R.—I own 100 shares of Davison Chemical and would like your opinion of this stock.

Answer—Earnings for 1929 were the largest in recent years, amounting to $3.34 per share on the common, as against $1.42 a share for the eighteen months ended June 30, 1928. Judging from official remarks in the annual report for 1929 the stock is likely to go on a dividend basis this year. Davison is quite a factor in the chemical and fertilizer fields, and the stock may be regarded in the light of a speculation with excellent prospects.

Bullard Co.

R. H.—I wish you would furnish me with some information and an opinion on Bullard Co. stock.

Answer—The outlook is regarded as being considerably brighter for Bullard Co. as a result of a new process it has perfected in its manufacturing operations, which greatly reduces costs in metal finishing. Royalties are being received by the company for the use of this process, and this extra income is expected to swell earnings for 1930. Income for 1929 amounted to $3.60 per share, and last March the stock was placed on an annual dividend basis of $1.60. Bullard appears to have considerable attractivenes for the long pull.

Bulova.

J. K. R.—I notice Bulova Watch stock has been advancing. Are there any special developments in regard to the company?

Answer—It is reported in reliable quarters that recent buying of the stock is based on knowledge of increased business being done so far this year. Revised estimates of 1930 earnings are between $7.50 and $8 a share. Company intends to add new lines to its attractive merchandise, which should be reflected in increased earnings.

Remington Arms.

W. P.—Kindly favor me with an opinion of Remington Arms, as I hold some of the stock.

Answer—Profits for 1929 were equal to $1.75 per common share. Last January the company put into effect a new price schedule for ammunition, which is expected to mean profits for the current twelve months of between $4 and $5 a share. In view of the estimates of larger earnings in 1930, Remington Arms may be regarded as having considerable attractiveness from the standpoint of long-term holding.

Best & Co.

H. T. S.—I am considering the advisability of investing some money in Best & Co. What can you tell me about the company?

Answer—It was officially announced that February sales increased nearly 10 per cent over the same month a year ago. In line with its expansion program, the company opened a new store in Mamaroneck, N. Y., last month. Best & Co. operates a specialty department store in New York City, and reported for the year ended January 31, 1930, earnings equal to $4.20 per share on the common stock after preferred dividends. This compares with $3.26 a share in 1928, earnings being adjusted to reflect the two-for-one split-up last September. Sales in 1929 increased 9 per cent over 1928. The common dividend basis in December, which is equivalent to $4 a share on the stock outstanding before the split, and compares with a $3 anual rate previously. The stock may be termed a speculative investment issue suitable for over the long term.

Paramount Cab.

C. E. H.—Paramount Cab Manufacturing Co. has discontinued the operation of cabs in New York City and will in the future devote its operation to the manufacturing of cabs and trucks only. What, in your opinion, is the outlook for this enterprise under the new conditions, and would you advise the holding of this stock or the taking of a loss on it? Also, would you kindly inform me as to whether or not a dividend has been declared lately, and if so, the particulars regarding the same?

Answer—Officially stated, company has temporarily discontinued the operation of cabs in New York City and is now devoting its activities to the manufacturing and selling of taxicabs. What effect this may have upon earnings is entirely problematical, although it is obvious that the cessation of operation of cabs in New York City must curtail the revenues of the company to just that extent. However, this column can not advise as to whether or not you should retain your stock or take a loss, as advice of that character is never here given. The latest cash dividend declared by the company was 60 cents quarterly, payable January 2, 1930, to stockholders of record December 19, 1929.

Albany Wrapping Co.

R. P. A.—What can you tell me about Albany Perforated Wrapping Co., listed on the New York Stock Exchange?

Answer—Company is a manufacturer of fine tissues and paper toweling at its plant in Albany, N. Y., while ground wood pulp for its products is made at a plant of an entirely owned subsidiary in Nova Scotia. The business dates back to 1874. Capital stock consists of 156,000 no-par shares of one class only. Funded debt consists of $3,000,000 of 6 per cent bonds, due 1948. On the present common stock a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was maintained from 1925 to the end of 1928, but payments were discontinued in March, 1929, and have not since been resumed. Despite the substantial sales volume reported in each year since 1921, profits have been variable and in recent years represented only a small fraction of gross business, a situation brought about by general conditions within the industry. Latest report of earnings for six months ended December 31, 1929, showed net before Federal taxes of $187,930, or $1.20 a share, representing more than three times net of $56,251, or 36 cents a share, for corresponding period of 1928. Reported company lately expended $1,000,000 for new equipment.

About Two Companies.

J. C. L.—I would greatly appreciate it if you will advise me through your column in the near future what you think of the following stocks I own at much higher prices than those now quoted: International Combustion Engineering, Superior Oil. Should I hold these, hoping to come out on them in the near future?

Answer—International Combustion is in receivership. A recapitalization plan is expected shortly, and for that reason it would appear advisable to hold the stock until the plan is made public. However, no attempt is ever made in this column to forecast future price movements in any stock.

While it is true that Superior Oil is at present selling very much under the price at which you purchased it, the company's earnings are apparently on the up trend. The report for the year ended December 31, 1929, showed net income before Federal taxes of $231,269, or $1.07 a share. This compares with a deficit of $662,152, or a deficit of $1.54 a share, in 1928, after adjusting to reflect exchange of one new share for three old shares in accordance with the recapitalization plan approved by stockholders July 31, 1929. It is only natural to presume that if the present trend of earnings keeps up the stock will recover in greater or less measure.

FIVE YEARS IN JAIL IMPOSED ON ROBBER

Fairfax Judge Sentences Man for Thefts From Chantilly Store.

SURVEY ON SCHOOL COST

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The March term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court was closed yesterday by Judge Howard W. Smith, during the day George Smith, colored, of Warrenton, Va., was sentenced to five years in the State Penitentiary when he entered a plea of guilty to an indictment of robbing the store of Morris & Usilton at Chantilly on March 1 and stealing about $600 worth of merchandise. He waived the right to a jury trial and after the facts were heard by Judge Smith the sentence was imposed. Several days ago Roy Green and Harry Jackson, colored, of Warrenton, were sentenced to the State Penitentiary for two years each in connection with the same robbery.

Two other cases that were heard before the court were those of B. F. McKinney and Spencer Mulligan for driving while drunk. Both men waived a jury trial and entered a plea of guilty. Judge Smith imposed a fine of $100 and costs and 30 days in jail in each case.

On motion of the proper authorities that was filed with the court, Samuel Millard, H. L. Cunningham, W. H. Coulter, J. A. Wheeler and Leonard Brown were apopinted trustees of the Browns Chapel Cemetery Association in place of the former trustees who are now deceased. The appointees are to have all the powers and duties of trustees subject to the laws of the State of Virginia.

An order was entered in the case of Albert N. Wildman against Clement Storm setting aside another order entered by the court on March 20. This was done when Wildman signified his intentions to take the case to the court of appeals. The court ordered the judgment suspended for 90 days so that the appeal might be taken. During the January term of court in a suit for damages relative to some farm produce, a jury rendered a verdict in favor of Storm. Wildman by counsel filed a motion for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict. At a hearing on March 20, the motion was overruled by the court and exceptions taken which caused this order to be entered.

Thomas Lincoln Mackey was adjudged in contempt of court if he does not comply with a decision of the court within 30 days which ordered him to pay alimony to his wife. The court ordered that he be committed to the Fairfax County Jail if he fails to comply with this order.

On motion of E. P. Kirby, sheriff of Fairfax County, the court appointed Robert E. Lee as special policeman for one year on the property of the Independent Publishing Co. He is to be paid by the company.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fairfax Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, was held at the home of Mrs. Nora V. Allison in Fairfax. Mrs. L. E. Eaton was elected delegate and Miss Annie Woodard alternate to the State convention of the organization which is to be held in Strausburg, Va., on May 15.

The chapter voted to give $5 a month toward the suport of John Fletcher, a Confederate veteran of Vienna. It also voted to hold the annual June dinner this year on Saturday, May 31. Miss Virginia Eaton, Miss Virginia Allison and Mrs. I. N. Hall were accepted as new members in the chapter. The chapter's president, Mrs. Allison, ruled that after June 1 this year the old applications for membership usually filled out by the members will not be accepted. After that time new applications must be filed.

Miss Agnes D. Randolph, director of tuberculosis out-patient service in the State of Virginia, was in Fairfax yesterday to arrange an outline of the chest and heart clinic that is to be held free of charge to the public in the Fairfax County health unit's office on April 15.

The following decisions have been rendered by Judge Howard W. Smith in chancery suits filed in the Fairfax County Circuit Court: Kathryn D. Lawrence was granted a divorce from A. M. R. Lawrence. She was given custody of the three children, but he was granted permission to see them at reasonable times. The court allowed her $150 to pay for the suit and council fees and ordered that she receive $125 a month for the education, maintenance and support of the infant children.

Margaret Utta was granted an absolute divorce from David Utta and her maiden name of Margaret Peck restored.

A. LeGrand Stafford was granted a divorce from Ann Edith Daly Stafford and at the end of three years, upon his application to the court, this might be enlarged into an absolute divorce. Both parties were divested to any interest in the other's property.

Fred C. Wrenn filed a complaint for a divorce against Esther L. Wrenn. She in return filed a cross bill against him. The court dismissed his suit and granted her a divorce. He was granted custody of one daughter, Thelma Verona, 9 years old, and she was granted custody of another daughter, Minnie Elizabeth, 16 years old. The court granted permission for the parents to visit the children in the other's custody at reasonable times. He was also ordered to pay $8 a week permanent alimony.

Annie Townsend Chambers was allowed $40 a month by the court out of the principal of the estate for the education, maintenance and support of Owen Archibald Chambers, an infant in her care.

The Junior Auxiliary of the Zion Episcopal Church at Fairfax will hold its meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Miss Ida Hooe Jones, in Fairfax.

The Clifton High School is having vocational guidance talks at the weekly chapel meetings. The advantages and disadvantages of outstanding professions and occupations are pointed out.

Oakton High School is preparing to present the pageant of the Holy Grail on Thursday, April 17. The members of the junior and senior classes will represent the characters in Tennyson's work.

The office of the divisional superintendent of schools has issued a set of figures which show the cost of instruction per pupil in the various high schools in the county. These are estimated on the basis of enrollment for January. The cost per school is, Clifton, $49.22; Floris, $113; Lee-Jackson, $50.62; McLean, $41.61; Oakton, $49.39, and Herndon, $80.86. The exact figures on the schools at Fairfax and Forestville are not available. The one year of high school at Fairfax cost approximately $100 per pupil and during January at Forestville about $80. A $500 per year cost of an agricultural teacher was deducted from the Floris School and added to the Oakton School, as the instructor has classes there. The schools at Herndon, Floris and Forestville are all within a 3-mile radius of each other. The question of consolidation of schools in Dranesville District will be considered as a special order of business at the meeting of the school board today. It is believed by many that the consensus in the county is for the consolidation of the schools as a means for economy.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will hold a food sale today from 11 o'clock until 5 o'clock in the basement of the church. Fancy work also will be on sale, with Mrs. C. H. Lane in charge. Mrs. H. H. Anderson will have charge of the food sale. Miss Hattie Elgin and Mrs. A. L. Adams will have charge of the refreshments. Mrs. T. B. Snoddy and Mrs. D. B. Luttrell will assist Mrs. Lane at the fancy work table.

Ashley Money, of Colvin Run; Mrs. Ada Kirkpatrick, of Sunset Hills, and Mrs. Mildred Kidwell, of Sterling. A meeting has been called for Monday night, at which time plans will be completed for a permanent organization.

The annual junior-senior banquet will be served for the pupils of the Oakton High School in the school auditorium. Miss Clo Driver, big sister of the junior class, has charge of arrangements.

Kent County Man Admits Robbery

Confesses to Police That He Executed Holdup and Beating.

Chestertown, Md., April 4.—George Mitchell, 30-year-old Negro and resident of Kent County, this afternoon confessed to holding up and beating Alfred L. Baker, 50-year-old resident of the village of Fairlee, near here late Wednesday night and taking $100 in bills from the pocket of the helpless victim.

Mitchell was arrested by Sheriff J. T. Hadaway on suspicion last night, and was subjected to questioning today. Detective Sergt. Walter Martin, of the Baltimore police department, will come here tomorrow to question the prisoner further with regard to the recent holdup of Nathan Lieberman in the village of Melitota and of the robbery of the general store of William Ivens in the same village.

Mitchell said he was out of work this week and had seen Baker handling a roll of money in a Fairlee store.

EIGHT PLEAD GUILTY IN KIT KAT CLUB CASE

Sentences Totaling Eight Years Given Four Men and Four Women.

$1,500 BOND FORFEITED

Sentences totaling eight years in the House of Correction and $1,500 in fines were passed by Judge William H. Forsythe in the Howard County Circuit Court at Ellicott City, Md., yesterday, after eight defendants had entered pleas of guilty to charges in connection with a raid on the Kit Kat Club on the Baltimore boulevard near Elkridge.

The defendants included four men and four women. Betty Dalton, one of the defendants, failed to appear to answer charges and her bond of $1,500 will be forfeited if she does not appear today.

The grand jury had returned twenty indictments against the defendants. After they had pleaded guilty to the charges on which they were sentenced, the other charges were dropped by State's Attorney James Clark.

Nickles Harris, who pleaded guilty to maintaining and operating a disorderly house, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and a $500 fine on one count and was given another year on a second count. The terms will run consecutively. Jacob Cramer was given a year's term and also fined $500. John White and Patrick Morgan were sentenced to six months each on charges of disorderly conduct. The jury found that Light did not "use proper care in the operation of the automobile." Eight witnesses were examined, including S. E. Powell, Shanks, W. Va., a Celanese worker, who said Light struck his car twice in passing him before or about the time he struck Lyons. Bail of $1,000 was furnished by Light's father.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 4.—An absorption of the Cumberland Valley Fruit Products Co., this city, by the National Fruit Products Co., with plants here and at Winchester, Va., was announced today. The deal was by an exchange of stock, one share of the National for two of Cumberland Valley. National also assuming all Cumberland Valley debts.

The Cumberland Valley plant, situated on the edge of the city, has a capacity of 60,000 gallons of vinegar each year. It was indicated plans for establishing a large scale evaporating plant for apples at the Cumberland Valley place were being considered.

Fredericksburg Hospital Wins Medical Honors

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 4.—The Mary Washington Hospital, of Fredericksburg, after careful investigation has received the highest indorsement of the council of medical education and hospitals of the American Medical Association, according to the journal list just announced.

The Fredericksburg Hospital, by complying with the principles which the council deems necessary, is awarded honor recognition and indorsed of superior standing. The survey makes it possible for a hospital, regardless of its size, to be recognized as an approved institution if it has the essential qualifications. The list of highest standing institutions contains the names of only hospitals and sanatoriums that meet all requirements and omits entirely the names of 504 hospitals which, after investigation, were disapproved.

Resignation Asked Of City Attorney

Action Regarded as Part of Factional Battle in Martinsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 4.—The resignation of City Attorney J. O. Henson was demanded in a resolution passed without debate by the city council here last night. It alleges failure "to properly represent the City of Martinsburg and to give the city council of Martinsburg sound legal services and advice as is required of a legal representative."

City Attorney Henson, who was not present at the meeting, had no comment to make today. No action looking toward actual resignation is expected, the move being generally interpreted as another exchange between the two factions of the Republican party which holds four of the five seats in council as well as the mayoralty. The cleavage has been apparent for some weeks.

City Attorney Henson and Mayor George W. Appleby, the latter being a candidate for renomination, have been aligned on one side with Councilmen Chris Dailey, A. B. Irvin and Emory W. Kline on the opposing side.

Witness Describes Fatal Plane Crash

Stalled Motor or Frozen Crankshaft Blamed for Death of Two.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., April 4.—Either a stalled motor or a "frozen" crankshaft today was believed to have caused the death here last night of Corbet Perdue, 20, and Fleming Wright, 28, when the biplane Perdue was piloting crashed near the city airport.

Norman Taylor, who witnessed the tragedy as he was driving to the field to bring the aviators to Danville, said that he saw the propeller stop and the plane, then about 500 feet above the ground, go into a tail spin. Perdue will be buried here tomorrow and Fleming's body will be sent Sunday to Arrington for burial. Wright was killed when the engine was rammed against him. Perdue, who died on the way to the hospital, had two broken legs, major fractures of both jaws and a compound skull fracture. Little of the wrecked plane remained today, souvenir hunters removing all but the heaviest parts.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was musing—in a state of reverie.

"Day dreaming?" I asked.

She came to, with a start.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "have I been asleep?"

"Just in a daze—a day sleep."

"It must be the weather!"

"What were you dreaming of, Luella?"

She sank back on the sofa, waved a languid hand:

"Oh, lots of things: Of shoots, and slips, and ceiling cracks, and Brussels sprouts, and swings. There is such a poem, isn't there?"

It sounded to me like a parody on Alice in Wonderland, and I told her so.

"No," said Luella, "it must be from 'Love in a Garden,' by Charles Adams.

"Adams? Adams? He's the Secretary of the Navy isn't he?"

* * * * *

"AND a good one, too," agreed Luella, "much better than Josephus Daniels.

"But what would a Secretary of the Navy know about 'Love in a Garden?'"

Luella laughed, outright. "You were never in the Navy, were you?"

I had hoped that Luella knew nothing about all these nautical carryings-on, coming as she does from a small inland town.

"What on earth started you off on such a tangent, in your dreams?" I asked.

"I was thinking," said Luella, "of the old folks at home."

"The old folks at home! How poetic! And what started that train or ship of thought?"

Luella always has a reason for everything. "Here," she said, "showing me the newspaper, "look at this story:

'Front Page of Newspaper
Is Flashed Across County.'"

Think of that. The complete front page of a newspaper printed in California was read in New York three hours after publication.

* * * * *

"AND that set you dreaming of the old folks at home?" I was anxious to get the connection.

"Oh," said Luella, "I got to wondering how long it'd be before they flashed the front page of my home town paper over the radio——"

"You don't think they'll ever do that?"

"America is a wonderful country," she bragged, a breath of admiration choking off her ecstasy.

"I'll grant you that, but when they start flashing small town newspapers all over the map—good night."

Luella lampooned me: "I'd rather read that than some of this big town stuff we get—about people we don't even know."

And perhaps she's right. After all, there's nothing like the gossip from the old home town.

Costs Virginian $13.20 To Club Fish to Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., April 4.—Charles Adkins, of this city, spent three hours in the city jail yesterday because he clubbed a fish to death. Under the Virginia law fish can be caught at this season of the year only with a hook and line. Adkins was found by the game warden in the low water of Dan River where a German carp had become marooned in a pool.

Adkins, with a stick, dispatched the fish and he was arrested. Later he paid a fine of $5, which, with the added costs, ran his bill up to $13.20.

WATER FIRM CHECKS WILL BE DISHONORED

Annapolis Banks to Wait Until Political Battle's Smoke Clears.

PAY ROLL IS AFFECTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—Business affairs of the Annapolis Water Co., enmeshed in a snarl as a result of political jockeying during the past week, reached an acute stage today when officials of local banking institutions let it be known they would not honor any checks drawn on funds of the company until they are advised as to who are the firm's legally constituted office personnel.

This action directly affected the pay roll of a local contractor for labor now engaged in the construction of a filtration system at the company's plant. In an effort to offset this emergency, Mayor Walker E. Quenstedt called a special meeting of the city council tonight to make a direct appropriation until the main difficulty is adjusted, but two of the ten members were absent, and it requires a full attendance to act on such an appropriation. The meeting was deferred until tomorrow at 12:15. The sum needed to cover the pay roll in question is $450. It was explained that the city can appropriate this from the regular municipal treasury funds, but there are other sundry items that can not be paid except directly from company funds.

The attitude taken by the city banks, moreover, has intensified the hesitancy among many water consumers about paying their water rents, now due. Many had flatly refused to settle accounts, and now general movement in that direction appears apparent.

Meanwhile, Democratic officials, who were retained in their posts by virtue of an outgoing Democratic regime, are calling a special meeting of the water board directors. The Republican officials were named at a subsequent meeting, when the directorate came under Republican control through the appointment of T. Roland Brown, as president of the board. The new administration restored the by-laws to their original form and elected men of that party.

Each side has assumed the position of waiting for the other to take some legal action, which appears as offering the only solution of the controversy. The whole affair has created feeling bordering on bitterness.

Legislation Helps Veterans' Orphans

Virginia Is One of Three States Which Now Extend Scholastic Aid.

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—Virginia is one of three States which have recently passed legislation sponsored by the American Legion giving scholastic aid to orphans of World War veterans.

An act in the interest of World War orphans was approved during the recent session of the General Assembly, and New Jersey and Kentucky have also passed similar measures within the last few months, according to W. Glenn Elliott, State adjutant.

Scholarship acts are now under consideration by the Legislatures of South Carolina, Massachusetts, New York and Mississippi, Adjutant Elliot said.

VIRGINIA PORT AIDED BY COTTON EXPORTS

IN PREFERRED POSITION

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—Increased production of cotton goods in Virginia and Carolina mills is contributing to the development of direct exports through Hampton Roads of cotton piece goods, hosiery, underwear and yarn, despite a detrimental effect on trade in unmanufactured cotton, an expert survey by the research department of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce shows.

Cotton piece goods exports through Hampton Roads for the five-year period from 1924 to 1928 were only 1,750 tons, but this figure was more than doubled in the single year 1928, when exports were 3,615 tons, the survey shows. Cotton piece goods exports from the whole United States have approximated 50,000 tons or more annually during recent years, according to the report.

"It is of particular interest to observe," the report declares, "that finished cloths, such as ginghams, chambrays, suitings, denims and bleached sheetings were responsible for the larger part of the doubling in exports from 1927 to 1928, although exports of gray goods also showed an increase.

"Hampton Roads is in a preferred position for the handling of direct exports of cotton goods because it has more numerous steamship services than other Southern ports well situated with respect to mill sections, and because a very considerable portion of the domestic movement of cotton goods from the Southern mills already is handled through the Hampton Roads gateway on the basis of highly systematized and expeditious service.

"The very material economies in transportation and handling charges which may be effected by employing a Hampton Roads routing for the direct export of cotton goods from Southern mills are undoubtedly familiar to most of the New York exporters, commission houses and mill representatives responsible for the export routing. It is likely, however, that much can be accomplished in the interest of bringing about increased foreign shipments through Hampton Roads by familiarizing the export officials of these firms with the service advantages of Hampton Roads for the handling of their shipments."

Moore Is Praised By Finance Group

District Assessments Based on Facts Rather Than Guesses Urged.

Warm tribute was paid to Representative R. Walton Moore, of Virginia, by the District finance committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in the chamber offices at noon yesterday to consider Representative Moore's bill to provide a fiscal relations commission for the District.

Stressing their faith that District citizens are ready and willing to do their part toward the maintenance and upbuilding of the National Capital, the committee urged that the ratio of contribution be based upon facts rather than upon guesswork and that the only way to secure such facts is by means of a properly authorized investigating agency created by act of Congress.

In response to the committee's protest over high assessment of downtown business property, the District Commissioners submitted a report from the Board of Assessors emphasizing the difficulties caused by the legal requirement for the enforcement of a full 100 per cent valuation in making assessments.
